

Bench Warming With Dick Dilsaver

Last Saturday's startling upset of the dope-bracket by the Cornhuskers still has us in a daze. We'd never seen the Scarlets play in competition yet this year and believe now that it's all for the best.

Norris Anderson, writer of Sunday's story of the game, has been grieving over the fact that he didn't accept a wager from a Missouri fan who offered the odds "Horse Sener" 30 points and 3-1 odds. It would make almost anyone unhappy to miss such an opportunity, wouldn't it?

What was really good to see was the way Chauncey Simpson, coach of the Tiger squad, treated his players. He didn't resort to swearing at the man for a half hour for making a mistake and still got his motives thru to his proteges. It can't be said that the Tiger payers didn't show the Huskers some nice playing. The statistics which give the Tigers 14 first downs to Nebraska's six makes that plain.

Quickest brain work of the day should be credited to young Clive Ostberg, third string center, whose fast thinking saved the Huskers from a possible Missouri touchdown. It all came about in the second period as the Mizzou team were innocently lining up for the play. The catch came as one Tiger was seen pulling a sleeper on the sideline, and was apparently unnoticed by any of the Husker defense. "Osty", seeing that the Tiger hide out was going to remain unseen by any of the Nebraska players, promptly got into high gear and dashed onto the field as a substitution, all on his own accord, in time to warn the Scarlet defensive of it's danger which might have been very serious if not noticed.

Dewey . . .

Dewey offers a better picture for the future.

"We need a congressional clean up and close harmony between congress and the president, which we could have under Dewey."

"Dewey will help save the American way of government, which we are losing at present."

"Dewey has a clearer idea on international problems and he would encourage individual enterprise."

"Dewey may be blunt but he gets things done with a minimum of waste."

Democrats . . .

"Number one reason is foreign policy—management of the war to a rapid close and the difficult task of solving the peace and cooperating with our Allies."

"He's the only one who has the international knowledge to give us a good peace if the damn congress lets him."

The third main reason given for Roosevelt is Dewey's incompetence, described as follows:

"Dewey is essentially reactionary and isolationistic and definitely is a tool of the extreme right."

"Dewey is backed by Fascists." "No use for 'The Brush'".

Hard Hitting Iowans Next On UN Slate

Elated over last Saturday's homecoming victory, a rejuvenated Husker squad is now preparing to meet the University of Iowa Hawkeyes. Art Stark, Husker line coach, watched the Iowans as they lost to Indiana Saturday and declares that the Hawkeyes will bear watching.

First stringers took a well-earned rest during Monday's practice drills leaving the second and third teams to scrimmage with one another. The third squad was victorious in a two-quarter drill.

No Injuries.

Full strength against the Hawkeyes is expected as no serious injuries were received in the Missouri game. With the Iowa City team boasting a rugged, heavy line all Nebraska manpower may need be available.

Expected to appear on the starting lineup for the Iowa game will be the squad that began the game with the Tigers. Possible changes might be made in the backfield but linemen who started Saturday will probably maintain their positions.

A bright outlook for the future was revealed in the showing put on by Lew's backs Saturday. All shone brightly with Selzer, Lamberty, Knight, Collopy, Betz, Perdue and Gradoville, all freshmen, showing distinctly in action against the Tigers.

Selzer has led the Huskers in all-around play during the season and Lamberty's spectacular showing makes him contender for a halfback position at any time.

Doyle Leads Line.

Keith Doyle remained outstanding among linemen while Lyle Kops, Lyle Colerick, Bernie Kasdan, and Frank Hazard supported the work of Doyle in fine shape.

The amazing spirit shown by the Huskers Saturday is accredited to the recovery of a fumble by Lyle Kops, which set up the first UN touchdown. From this point on, no matter what the Tigers tried, Husker spirit, not skill, would squelch it.
