War Council Sets $1,500 Goal in Drive

With a $1,500 campus goal set for the sixth war loan drive which begins tomorrow, the war council and Tassels are planning a special bond drive, a slogan contest, a war bond raffle and a "Chance of a Lifetime" auction at which prominent campus personalities will offer their services for war bonds and stamps.

Ghita Hill, war council president, stated that during the fourth war loan drive last year the campus bought enough bonds and stamps to go beyond the $1,000 goal and that with the increased need, and the larger enrollment, it is expected that contributions will exceed the goal again this year.

Buy Field Ambulance

The $1,500 will go into the fund for a $1,950 field ambulance which will bear a plaque with the name of the University of Nebraska. The fund was started several weeks ago from the weekly Tassel war stamp sales, and progress will be reported on a poster in the Union lobby showing an ambulance traveling toward a wounded soldier on the battlefield.

Tassels are also sponsoring a slogan contest with prizes of $5. (See WAR COUNCIL, page 3.)

Nebraska Colleges Outline Postwar Aviation Courses

Aviation courses at the university and five other Nebraska colleges will be established, continued or expanded after the war, according to replies received in answer to a nation-wide survey of educational institutions made public by Ernest R. Breech, president of Bendix Aviation corporation.

Other Nebraska schools planning postwar aviation curricula are Hastings college; Kearney State Teachers college; Kearney; Doane college, Crete; Union college, Lincoln, and the University of Omaha, Omaha.

The university, in common with most of the other 455 American schools which responded to the Bendix survey, said it would require large quantities of the usable government owned aircraft equipment for teaching purposes, which will be declared surplus after the war. The need for supplying the nation's colleges with quantities of surplus usable aircraft and equipment at low cost, Lease Equipment.

"This equipment will be made available to the nation's schools on a sale or lease basis, under provisions of the federal surplus disposal law," Breech stated.

The university is one of the 307 colleges which have specific plans for teaching some aspects of aviation after the war, according to Breech, who headed the surplus aircraft disposal committee of the aeronautical chamber of commerce.

The survey further disclosed that 212 schools already offering aviation curricula plan to continue or expand, and that 95 schools which do not teach aeronautics at present are definitely interested in or planning to establish postwar courses, Breech stated.

Miss Estevez is an exchange student and is completing her second year as a student of home economics at Ames, Ia.

Speaking beautifully enunciated English with a charming trace of an accent, the black haired, dark eyed student told of the free public school system in Uruguay which includes all the grades from kindergarten thru college with a high school course comparable to our college course. High school students are required to take four years of history, literature, French and geography and two years of algebra, physics and chemistry. The 21 year old former teacher speaks Spanish, Latin, English and French and understands Portuguese.

Theatre Clubroom for Speech Majors Is Dream Come True

BY BETTY KING.

The house that Jack built couldn't compare with the clubroom the speech majors have decorated. Started at the instigation of Dallas Williams, director of the University Theatre, the clubroom has been wholly a student project.

For the last week, room 154 Temple has been all confusion—ladders, paint, brushes and people in old coveralls. The speech majors have given all their free time to redecorating the room. Out of all the confusion came a room to be proud of. The walls were painted a soft, cool green, the ceiling a warm cream color. The crowning glory was the draperies—a gay rose print on a white background. Now, if the speech majors can talk enough people into giving them old furniture, the room will be complete. The success of this campaign is practically assured. Was there ever a speech major who couldn't talk a man out of the shirt on his back, let alone the chair he's sitting in?

Speech Students Relax.

Speech students now have a place to sleep between classes, to play bridge or just to talk. Anyone walking into room 154 finds someone stretched out recuperating from the work that went into decorating the room. This is a place to relax, to have fun, and the students are using it for just that.

According to Williams, the room is intended to serve as a clubroom for the proposed Nebraska Collegiate Players. The group is rapidly being formed and a committee has been appointed to draw up a constitution.
