

Two Parties Name Candidates

Progressive Party Elects H. Andersen, J. Kessler

Harold Andersen and Joe Kessler were nominated as the Progressive Party candidates for senior and junior class presidents at Tuesday evening's party convention held in the Union ballroom.

Large banners and demonstrations of each delegation for its favorite candidate marked the convention which elected Ernie Larson as party president and Phyllis Johnson as first vice president. Don Chapin was chosen as second vice president and Marilyn Adler, secretary of the party.

Only one roll call balloting was necessary for the landslide election of each party officer and class presidential candidate in the smoothly-operated convention. The sole snag, momentarily disrupting party proceedings, was the question of the eligibility of one of the candidates for junior class president. After several hurried phone calls and involved discussion it was voted to support Kessler for the office.

Andersen is president of his fraternity, Phi Gamma Delta and Student Council, managing editor of the Nebraskan, member of Phi Beta Kappa, and listed in "Who's Who in American Universities and College." Kessler, a member of Phi Delta Theta, is Nebraska's star backfielder on the varsity football squad.

Ely Culbertson Deserts Bridge, Talks on Post-War

BY MARY ALICE CAWOOD.

Although known all over the world as the originator and dramatizer of a system of contract bridge, Ely Culbertson regards cards as his "bread and butter," and declares that his real interests lie in his widely discussed post-war peace plans, which he spoke on last night at the Irving Junior High school in the Lincoln Town Hall series.

Born in Russia, Mr. Culbertson has studied at six great universities and speaks eight languages. He jokingly remarked in a press conference Tuesday that he is the only man to speak English with an accent and Russian without an accent. Six years ago this man of international background realized that a new system of international law was desperately needed. Having always been interested in social and political reforms, he began to form such a plan.

Principle Useless.

He explains that a principle, however noble, is useless without the machinery with which to carry it out. Culbertson cites the Dumbarton Oakes plan as representing the rudiments of that machinery. "However," Mr. Culbertson continued, "this plan must be drastically improved if we are to have international law for collective security." He maintains that this plan as it now stands is not a collective security. It is not collective because it is based on domination of a few great powers, and it is not secure because it is based on nothing else than a wish fulfillment. "The Dumbarton Oakes plan is little more than the ever-recurring, ever-disastrous place of the victors with its thinly disguised foul politics," stated Culbertson. "Unless this plan is amended we will be laying the time bomb that will explode inevitably in a third world war."

Culbertson proposes four amendments to the Dumbarton Oakes plan and explains each amendment. The first is the proposal for a council of world (See CULBERTSON, Page 3.)

Results of the war show tryouts will be announced next week. Army tryouts will be held Saturday.

"All the participants in the tryouts have been exceptionally good," commented Ghita Hill, president of War Council.

Dialect Troubles Plague UN Play, Add Much Humor

BY BETTY KING.

The University Theatre will present the first comedy of the season, "Papa Is All," December 7, 8, and 9.

The dialect of the play adds much to the laughter altho it presents difficulties to the actor. The odd sentence order of Pennsylvania Dutch speech has evolved from an attempt to attune English words to the musical cadence of the German dialect that for years was the common tongue to the area in which the play takes place. When properly spoken the dialect is musical and charming, no more obtrusive than Yankee or Southern speech.

Meaningless Words.

Such words as "already," "yet," and "still" have crept into the speech of the Pennsylvania Dutch for purposes of rhythm, and are not spoken as if they had any meaning.

As an example of the distorted phrasing: In reference to the weather, Mrs. Yoder asks Papa if it's falling weather out (raining). Papa replies, "Look yourself the window out onct and see for yourself if it's falling weather out."

Another example concerns Mama and her daughter, Emma. Mama on making an exit, says to Emma, "I'm going to get my See DIALECT, Page 3.)

Student Party Nominates J. Whedon, B. Sakayama

Members of the Student Party for Democratic government met in a well ordered caucus in Temple auditorium last night to elect Bill Miller chairman of the party and Jean Whedon and Bill Sakayama party nominees for president of the senior and junior classes. Twenty party members were chosen to serve on the party executive committee.

Bill Miller, was elected permanent chairman on the first ballot, running against Jean Whedon, Ann Wellensiek and Natalie Neuman. Gene Dixon was nominated and withdrew.

Jean Whedon was declared party nominee for senior class president after three ballotings, the first two of which failed to show a majority for any candidate. Names of Barbara Stahl, Gene Dixon and Miss Whedon were on the second ballot which eliminated Miss Stahl and left Dixon and Miss Whedon to make the third try. Gene Merchant, Bob Hastert, Natalie Neuman, Anton Kasha and Joan Witt were also nominated for the position.

Repeat balloting was again necessary when the first vote for junior class president nomination gave Mary Ann Mattoon, Bill Sakayama, and Ed Robinson the top number of votes but failed to show a majority for any one of the three. Gene Dixon, student council members, confirmed the realization that to be eligible the nominees must have attended the university the preceding semester, disqualifying Robinson. Other nominees were Madeline Holtzschler, Kathy Legge and Lowell Anderson.

Miss Whedon is treasurer of Mortar Board, secretary of YWCA, vice president of WAA, a member of Alpha Lambda Delta, Iota (See STUDENT, Page 4.)

Thirty-four members of the On-the-Beam committee will have (See TASSELS, Page 7.)

Beauty Queens, Faculty, MB's, Are Auction Goats

BY LES GLOTFELTY.

If pop is going out for a new pair of socks, if mom is heading down to buy some groceries, or if little brother has a nickel and visions of a chocolate ice cream cone, grab them, get the money and head for the Union ballroom. You won't be charged with grand larceny or breaking and entering, but you might end up with a date with a beauty queen or Gene Dixon or practically anything else from a singing waiter to Mortar Board to clean the room so you won't have to swing in by the chandelier anymore.

Seriously, War Council is sponsoring a big stamp and bond auction on Wednesday evening, December 6, appropriately entitled "Chance of a Lifetime." Faculty members and students on the campus are offering their services to be auctioned off for benefit of the sixth war loan drive. C. M. Elliot, assistant professor of economics and insurance, and Karl Arndt, associate professor of economics, will act as auctioneers.

Save Your Pennies.

To put the auction over and for UN to do its part in the war loan drive, students must literally "go to town" on the bidding, and the way to do that is not only to save pennies here and there, but to hit pop for money he would be investing in bonds anyway. As he gets in a good mood Thanksgiving day, gently touch him for a bond's worth of cash or some stamp's worth of moola and stick it in a sock until December 6 and get your money's worth not only in bonds and stamps but in entertainment.

Incidentally, not only does the auction promise to be uproarious with Mr. Arndt and Mr. Elliot, but there will also be some surprise entertainment to calm things down when the bidding gets too hot to handle. December 6, December 6, December 6, fun, fun, fun, money, money, money. See ya!
