

Nix and Nays Of Fem Ways

A touchy subject of college instructors and professors is about to be unmasked, classroom conduct.

Very few people stop to consider the fact that the "do's" and "don'ts" of polite society also apply in the classroom. An instructor or professor is in his present position for the reason that he desires to help students acquire a firm foundation on which to meet the forthcoming problems of life. The student's presence in the classroom affirms the scholar's efforts. Therefore, any and all actions or attitudes which bring about the most advantageous environment for study and learning should be followed.

Tardiness, talking, other than class recitation, letter writing, or reading of unrelated material are taboo. Likewise, primping is very distracting to the whole class, not to mention the poor taste it shows. Nor is it proper to rush out the moment the bell rings. The class should be properly dismissed, before students dash for the door, and then only after the instructor has made his exit should the students depart.

Courtesy to instructors and professors, as well as to fellow students, is an important rule to follow. To be alert, interested, and always attentive will assure a profitable hour of class work in preparation for a profitable life.

Women Want Luxury Gifts This Christmas (As Usual But More So)

BY BETTY KING.

Christmas—the season when everyone beats their brains out trying to figure out what to buy great-aunt Mailldia, cousin Susie, and that certain someone on her list.

As far as women's gifts this year are concerned, luxury gifts are tops. Perfumes, lingerie, jewelry, gloves, purses—all are favorites with women.

For some reason perfume and cologne are not as scarce this year as last. There are several popular scents: Stirring, Excitement, Escape, Emerald, Golden Arrow, and Sirroco. There are the old standbys too, like Bond Street, Tweed, Blue Grass, and Woodhue. These scents come in either perfume or cologne. Every coed likes them, and she can't have too much cologne. Along the same line are the scented lingerie cases, scented and quilted hangers, sachets.

Jewelry Hits High.

Jewelry hits a new high this year (good looking and expensive). Favorites are lapel pins with earrings to match, lovely dinner rings, massive bracelets, and ornamented combs. Ornamented combs are new and popular with most women. There are lovely ones trimmed with rhinestones, jet, pearls, silver, or tiny bright-colored beads. One of the most unusual is a set of two little combs trimmed with black velvet and pearls and a matching black velvet choker.

Gloves are always good—if you know the size. There are still leathers such as doeskin and pigskin available. Easier to find are the fabric gloves in brilliant jewel colors. These come in a more-than-elbow and shortie lengths.

Purses Good.

Purse manufacturers have concentrated on turning out the most attractive purse possible with a minimum of priority materials.

For that reason there are a great number of drawstring purses and box-styled ones in the stores. The most unusual is a rectangular box-style, the top is completely covered with tortoise shell, the rest of the purse is either brown or black faille.

Wishful Thinking

BY ROBERT HOLMES.

The weapons of war have been changed into instruments of peace; the war cry is now laughter. The heavenly bodies no longer shine down upon a world of death—children at play need not fear a plane overhead. There is peace!

This peace belongs to whoever wants it. It is the birthright of every individual. People of this world and of every nation, take this peace that is yours; be happy and gay.

Back along the battlefields, the bodies of the dead rest. They seem to realize that the world has at least found peace. Each cross casts a shadow of acknowledgement upon the ground, and the shadow, though small, is so large that it covers the entire earth. Never must we forget the price that they paid!

Each nation is back to its own way of life; its people have looked forward to this day. With the pressure of war lifted, the sun seems brighter and the stars seem lighter. The home is a place of comfort.

The grief, for those who have not returned, is great and at times almost unbearable; but still there is peace.

Let me tread the lonely paths of this earth and seek out that one who caused such grief and sorrow to the world.
