'Again?' Cries Hill As Each Assistant Bites The Dust

Cripes, here they go again! Just what Cornhusker Business Manager Charlotte Hill does to her assistants is destined to remain a secret, but whatever it is must be good. Another assistant business manager, Marilyn Adler, resigned yesterday, and once again the yearbookies want a new assistant.

First Myrtle Johnson left school and got married, and now Alder can't take the pace. So, hear ye, hear ye, if anyone has aspirations and ambitions, a bit of time, respectable scholarship, and sophomore standing at least, he, she or it may pick up an application in the Cornhusker office this week, fill it out, and deposit it in the school of journalism office.

The new assistant will be chosen by the UN publications board Monday at 3 p. m. in the Journalism office. All applications must be in by that time, and all applicants must be present at the board meeting, according to Forrest Blood, chairman of the board.

'On the Beamers' Meet Thursday in Union

On The Beam committee of War Council meets Thursday in room 316 of the Student Union. New committees will be organized and a campaign for magazines begun, according to Chairman Fred Teller.

Every house is asked to have a representative there, Teller said.

Committee Proceedings Open Miniature Peace Conference

First meetings of the twelve conference committees of the experimental peace conference will take place from 3-5 p. m. Friday afternoon.

Classes will be dismissed at that time so that all students can attend the committee meetings.

Committee chairmen and vice-chairmen of the twelve conference committees of the experimental peace conference will meet this afternoon at 4 in room 315 of the Union. Al Reddish, member of the planning committee, and David Fellman, professor of political science, will give instructions to the chairmen on conducting a committee meeting, keeping meetings under control, and drawing up resolutions.

Gerry M. Casey, member of the planning committee, stated that speaking delegates may confer with members of their organized groups for essential information during the committee meeting. She urged that all students attend the meetings of the committee they are interested in, not only to help the speaking delegate, but to get a better insight into problems which will be discussed at the plenary sessions and later committee meetings.

Faculty members will be present at the committee meetings as advisers but will have no voice in the proceedings of the meeting.

Meeting place for each committee is as follows:

- Committee No. 1—Security Organization, Union parlor X
 - Committee No. 2—War Criminals, Union, parlor Y
 - Committee No. 3—Territorial Problems, East Asia, Union, parlor Z
- (See COMMITTEES, page 4.)
