

Student Council, Pub Board Elections Set for Tuesday

Students will vote again for members of the Student Council and Publications Board on Tuesday, May 8. Polls in the Union and Ag hall will be open from 12 to 7 p. m. on that day.

The Council voided the first election held on April 12 on five points. (1) The election official did not place the ballots in the box; (2) Little attempt was made on the part of election officials to see that voting was uninfluenced at the polls; (3) Certain groups were disenfranchised, meaning that all students were not allowed to vote for seniors-at-large on the Student Council; (4) No provision was made for party affiliation; (5) No opportunity was given for proportional representation.

In Tuesday's election, the following rules will be enforced: A new ballot for party affiliation has been added with a space provided to mark "Student Party" or "Progressive." The voter will mark his affiliation to provide for the minority representation. For every 125 votes (or major fraction thereof) cast in favor of the minority party, that party is entitled to one member on the Student Council. These members will be chosen from defeated candidates having the highest number of votes.

All university students will cast votes for senior-at-large representatives on the Council. Juniors vote for senior Publication Board candidates; sophomores vote for junior Pub Board candidates and freshmen vote for sophomore Pub Board candidates. Every student in a college may vote for the candidate representing his college for Student Council. These offices are not limited to one class.

Nu Med Society Elects Officers For Coming Year

Grace Heins was elected president of Nu-Meds for the coming semester at their business meeting May 2. Other officers elected were Dorothy Mastin, vice president; Kathleen Hayes, secretary; Virgil Cooper, treasurer; and Don Heins, publicity chairman. The new officers were introduced by outgoing president, Dick Sunderman.

Speaker for the meeting was Dr. J. E. McThornspan, Bone and Joint specialist from Lincoln. He talked on the part medicine is playing in the war, giving special emphasis to bone and joint surgery. He pointed out that great advances were being made in this field during the war. Highlighting his talk was a description of German hospital units under supervision of German doctors and nurses. He also described scenes in concentration camps in which Germans had committed atrocities.

Otis Wade is sponsor of Nu-Meds and Dick Sunderman presided at the meeting.

Sigma Eta Chi Initiate Four New Members Sunday

New members of Sigma Eta Chi, Congregational girls' sorority, who were initiated April 30 at the Vine Congregational church are: Betty Hurlburt, Doris and Lorraine Kinney and Charla Ann Sharrick. President Betty Fee conducted the initiation service, and the sorority breakfasted at initiates were presented with corsages and identification bracelets and the sponsor, Mrs. Jerry Adam, was given a corsage.

After attending church service at Vine Congregational church, the group climaxed the day with a Founder's Day luncheon at the New Central cafe. Mrs. E. E. McClintock of New York City was the guest speaker, and actives, patronesses and alumnae attended. In charge of decorations was Betty Hurlburt, and Betty Fee presided as toastmistress.

Mary Alden Wins One of Fourteen Danforth Awards

Mary Alden, senior in teachers' college who will graduate in May, was selected by the Danforth Foundation of St. Louis, Mo., as one of 14 girls from 14 different universities in the U. S. to receive the Danforth Fellowship award, announced Dr. O. H. Werner of Teachers college.

The award amounts to $1,000 plus liberal allowances for expenses. She will be sent to some university to spend a year of training in religious welfare activities.

Miss Alden, who is a member of Alpha Chi Omega, is the second Nebraska student to win this award. Two years ago Eleanor Crawford, an Ag college home economics major, won the same honor.

Climbing Ivy...

Grandfather graduated from the University of Nebraska. The other group looks at the tradition a bit more objectively. They think of the value to the student body as a whole. They plant the ivy next to U hall. The ivy grows up to be big and strong. It wraps itself around the tottering structure. It strengthens the moldering mass of bricks and mortar. U hall does not fall down. Dean Bengtson is not crushed. With a good growing year they may be able to untie the binder twine that now holds the university buildings together.

Sinfonia Initiates Eight Members Last Tuesday

The Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia fraternity initiated eight new members last Tuesday evening at 9:00 in the Little Theatre of the Temple. New initiates are, John Davis, Lynn Ellers, Fred Teller, Kent Tiller, Norman Toderhoft, James Nehez, Forest Waggoner and Sam Warren.

The group also elected officers for next year. Lee Kjelson is president and supreme councilman, succeeding Roy Johnson who has been president for two years. Ray Schomburg holds the offices of vice president and treasurer and Sam Warren is secretary, warden and historian.
