

Rushees Treat Campus To Fall Fashion Parade

BY BARBARA KIECHEL

While the upperclassmen usually manage to salvage enough from their summer allowances or jobs to supplement their wardrobes with a few new fall numbers, it is to the rushees that they turn for the real fashion parade. And they never let us down! If the prospective pledges had spent the entire summer locked in their rooms surrounded by the latest copies of "Vogue," "Harpers," and "Mademoiselle" they couldn't have presented a better picture of what's new, what's good, and what's becoming.

Suits, of course, are one of the most important items. We knew that they were to have classic lines, probably wing sleeves, nipped-into-nothing waistlines, and peplum effects, but we never expected the multitude of colors and styles—even in those wild technicolor dreams that followed seeing "Lady in the Dark" that the rushees blossomed out in. Nancy Miles, who found her haven at the Alpha Phi house, undoubtedly had an eye to color when she chose a creamy wool suit with brown alligator accessories. With Nancy's vibrant red hair, the effect was stunning.

Informal Sport Suits.

Checked sport suits were just right for the informal parties, and they will look both collegiate and streamlined at football games and open houses later in the fall.

Petite Delta Gamma pledge Nancy Gish made a gay picture in her brown and white checked suit, with a perky matching beret, and brown shoes and purse.

Also making stop-look news were the freshmen who chose soft wool shirt-waist dresses. They have become the coed's pets—something we reach for automatically, and feel utterly right in all day. In a forest green dress, unadorned and classic, willowy Mary Illingsworth, Alpha Chi, was charming. Russet accessories completed her costume.

Brown Rivals Black.

Brown seems to be closely rivaling the perennial black, perhaps because this is the first year for some time that it has been available. Pi Phi Mary Soenichsen was lovely one afternoon (not that she isn't always) in a dark brown long-sleeved dress, accented with touches of chartreuse. Her shoes were the half-pump, half-sandal affairs which mystify everyone by staying on, and her feathered hat continued the brown and chartreuse motif.

Frankly Feminine.

Honey-haired Grace Smith, a Gamma Phi pledge who gained fame in her active city as Omaha's "Miss Central," was anybody's dream in a frankly feminine black sheer. Black lace and a softly draped skirt—well, on Grace, you'll find that it's wonderful.

We think that Dame Fashion would have had a field day if she had been in Lincoln for rush week. Probably she was!

More than 400,000 copies of college publications were distributed in response to requests from farmers and homemakers in 1942-44.
