

UN Extension Division Rates 4th in Nation

"Last year's enrollment of 7,798 in correspondence study courses made the University of Nebraska the fourth largest institution in the United States in this field of work," declared Dr. Knute O. Broady, director of the university extension division, in an address to the Lincoln Rotary club Tuesday.

"In fact, the University of Nebraska is the recognized leader nationally in the high school correspondence field. It produces more than half the syllabi that are used throughout the country," he said.

Not "Campus Affair"

Dr. Broady insisted that the university is not purely a "campus affair," but a service institution to the state. Any individual or group in the state can turn to its own university in confidence that assistance is available, he added.

The extension division offers nine types of activities: evening and Saturday classes on and off the campus, college and high school correspondence study, citizenship education by correspondence, film service, school building advisory service, travelling art galleries, publication of instructional materials, community program service, and conferences and institutes. Each is provided in cooperation with some college, school or department.

Student Workers Handle Theatre Equipment Loans

Any student or off-campus group wishing to see the facilities of the University theatre are invited to consult with the staff at the Temple, Dallas Williams, theatre director, announced Thursday.

Costumes may be rented from Barbara Jo Jenkins, costume chairman, from the costume room off 154. She is on duty to display costumes during the following hours:

- Monday, 3 to 5 p. m.
- Tuesday, 10 to 11 a. m., 2 to 2 p. m.
- Wednesday, 3 to 5 p. m.
- Thursday, 10 to 11 a. m., 1 to 2 p. m.
- Friday, 3 to 5 p. m.
- Saturday, 10 to 12 a. m.

Any type of lights, spotlights, stage equipment or properties should be arranged through the stage manager, Gaylord Marr. He is at work in the property room below the Temple stage from 3:30 to 5:30 p. m. each school day.

Equipment Available.

Shop equipment, and the facilities of the workshop, are available to on or off-campus groups through appointments made with Gloria Beaumont, technical assistant. She is at the workshop at these hours:

- Monday, 1 to 5 p. m.
- Tuesday, 2 to 5 p. m.
- Thursday, 1 to 5 p. m.
- Friday, 2 to 5 p. m.
- Saturday, 10 to 12 a. m.

Small charges for wear and tear, and to defray cost of cleaning costumes, is made for these services.

Autumn Day Bids French Class Frolic

BY TRIPHAMMER PEEPASH.

The weather is warm, the sun is blazing and the French professor drones the language in a dull, sleepy voice. This is one of those bright blue October days, which is a crime to spend anywhere but out enjoying the poetic beauty of it all.

To keep classes is a detriment to the university. The professors are liable to go mad from gathering wandering minds from thoughts other than French and likewise eyes from the windows.

Autumn Not for Studying.

Balmy autumn days weren't meant to be spent in musty university hall either, so I'll rebel with thought of my own on my "druther dos." Gazing out the narrow window, I see some navy boys passing on their gleeful way. They must be warm in their wool uniforms, but I envy their freedom in the open spaces.

If I had my way, a picnic would be the order of the day. Various gulches around the edge of town are no doubt beautiful now with fall colors. Even from this hard desk, I can see six varieties of green, four of yellow, red and brown, and the gray underside of the poplar leaves.

Talking of leaves, they are falling fast on the lawns, from which the fraternity and sorority pledges will soon be raking them. That task finished, there will be a blaze and the inevitable wiener roast. Now I'm reminded of my favorite subject, food, and how excellent a hot fudge sundae would taste in the crib.

Convertible and Photography.

A red convertible, top down, just buzzed by on R street, heading east. The Yum-Yum Hut will be their next stop, and then out in the country for some snaps of themselves and the scenery. On my way to this unblest class, I noticed several groups taking advantage of this remarkable picture-taking weather.

Even that yellow monstrosity of a convertible had its top down today as it whizzed around the campus. This day would even be warm enough for a beach party at Linoma or Valley with a picnic naturally involved.

And now between the monotonous voices in the classroom and the sound of that airplane slowly drifting over, I'm getting sleepier and sleepier. Maybe classes should be held outside today. The futilely opened pages of the book wherein all my French is contained are getting closer and closer. Must keep my mind on the verbs... the nouns... the verbs... the no... And the French class drowns on.

Inter-Fraternity Council Chooses Hecox President

Fred Hecox, Phi Kappa Psi, was elected president of the inter-fraternity council at its first meeting Wednesday night.

Vice president for the forthcoming year is Stewart Harrison, Sigma Nu, and John Van Horne, Delta Tau Delta, will act as secretary. Boyd Hecht, Sigma Phi Epsilon, is treasurer.

Council members from the active, organized houses on the campus are:

Council Representatives.

Harold Jacobsen, Phi Gamma Delta; Bob Wallin, Sigma Chi; Bob Meyer, Delta Upsilon; Don Barry, Alpha Tau Omega; Ray Scholtz, Sigma Alpha Epsilon; Gene Merchant, Beta Theta Pi; Leo Beck, Phi Delta Theta; Art Schrieker, Beta Sigma Psi; Sol Schwartz, Sigma Alpha Mu; Stewart Harrison, Sigma Nu; Boyd Hecht, Sigma Phi Epsilon; Fred Hecox, Phi Kappa Psi; John Van Horne, Delta Tau Delta; Bob Tangeman, Kappa Sigma; Harry Saunders, Theta Xi; Jerry Cohn, Zeta Beta Tau.

The next meeting will be held Oct. 25 in the Union.

James Brown, the dashing Princeton undergrad hero of Paramount's "Our Hearts Were Growing Up," has brought a library devoted to photography. He's one of the most enthusiastic amateur lensers in the film capital.

Fellows Must Seek Originality To Make Impression on Coeds

BY NINA SCOTT.

Get the mop out and clean up your mind, Mr. Shestak... this is not a reply to your Awgwan devotion... don't waste your time and read on...

While traveling among unknown men one notices that the bearded of the species think they are pretty cute... after several years in college they are naively confident that the witty remarks they make are devoured by women without so much as the blinking of an eyelash... and the movies do not hinder their egos...

Take Van Johnson (and who wouldn't?) who wrinkled his freckled nose and cooed, "How come you're so cute?"... why, we were sent clear out of this world and several others... we sat in history 9 class and visioned Van wondering why we were so cute and really had all sorts of replies for him. After a few eons the boys caught on and began every sentence with "How come YOU'RE so cute?"... for a month or so it was choice, but, after all, it has been run way into the ground. Besides, Van Johnson could call a girl a big fat fish and she would immediately begin seeing a mermaid when she stared into the mirror...

Why Can't Men Be Original?

Then, Dana Andrews had to go and notice that his leading lady's hair bounced as she cavorted around the fair grounds. We practiced bouncing our hair and they caught on to that, too... "Baby, you're what I have been waiting for... your hair bounces," was heard between every traffic light on O street. Now we don't care if our hair bounces, skips or runs away with itself. If the script writers can dream up these vaguely romantic quips, why can't the boys with whom we coke and joke...???

They (i.e. "the boys") absolutely swallow everything uttered by the current cinema handsome and expect us to swallow the same. Don't they think we know when it comes from their quick minds and when it comes from the double feature?

It Won't Work.

Personally, I wish Paul Henreid had never stuck those two cigarets in his mouth... he looked silly. Frank Sinatra manufactures that break in his voice and now every other man acts like a fugitive from an adolescent boys' choir. And the crowning glory is that pest, the North Star... it may have given Robert Cummings the way home, but it's going to send lots of other would-be Robert Cummings home for good. Our necks are getting stiff from this looking over the right shoulder business...

Sorry to say I have no suggestions as to unique remarks to substitute for those mentally buried... but if I were a man I would begin this morning exercising my mental processes. Anyway, it's cheaper than going to the Stuart.

Ragged Edges

BY BET KING.

This is the weekend for migrations. Everyone has chosen either Ames or Omaha as their goal. The Gamma Phi's are going to storm the Iowa town en masse. Groups from other houses will be there to enjoy the game. Football has been cutting into the weekends of Pi Phi Kathy Legge and Phi Psi Bob Tegt. This weekend, though, she can follow him to Ames.

The ATO's are making a party of it by taking their dates. Lincoln was never like this before, and we'll lay odds that Ames will never be the same again.

Omaha Migration.

Among the group migrating to Omaha will be Harlan Helgeson of the Beta house and Phi Donna Lou Peterson. There's a rumor that another Phi-Beta duo, Blackie Blanchard and Gene Rainey, will join them. An interesting time should be had by all.

Never let it be said that a Beta lacks a sense of humor. Bill Swanson proved 'taint so. He presented kite-girl Dona Leigh Brugh with a huge cardboard Beta pin. The question is, was it all in fun?

The grapevine brings us the "startling" news that a couple of Sig Alpha's and Sigma Nu's are planning to enjoy the lovely picnic weather tonight. This friendly spirit on the part of fraternities is always amazing.

Sixty-four Dollar Question.

The Brown Palace would like the answer to this sixty-four dollar question. WHO called them Tuesday night and asked for Freddie? Just about everyone in the house—rushed to the phone. People should be more careful, huh, fellows?

Speaking of the Brown Palace, hear tell they have a fellow over there, Bill Grewcock—to be exact, who is scared of women. A word to the wise, gals is sufficient—don't scare the guy to death. Times aren't that tough.

Brek-ups occur all the time, it seems. This time it's Gamma Phi Ann Doudna who no longer wears the Beta diamond of Dick Cullen. The line forms to the right, guys.

The Brighter Side.

On the happier side is the news that Phi Bev Murray sports a pin from Ken Kimball, Omaha med student. In the same group is arrow-gal Mary Sherwood with her diamond from Lt. (j.g.) Blake Moranville of the Navy Air Corps. One of the more fortunate of the engaged girls, Phyl Westcott of the triple Delta house, has her fiancé, Roy Ramer back as a civilian. Sister Shirley Strunk has Pvt. Bob Smith on his toes. He sends red roses by the dozen for no apparent reason. Good deal.

The SAE's helped the Alpha Chi's celebrate their sixtieth anniversary Monday night with a solid rendition of "Happy Birthday to You." Anniversaries should come more often.

Alan Ladd, whose own signature is in high demand by the movie fans, started collecting stars' autographs for his small

LAAF Requests Coeds to Entertain At Base Hospital

Coed are needed to entertain at informal parties, dances and games given for convalescents at the L. A. A. F., according to Sara Hurtz, Red Cross recreation director.

As members of the hospital unit of the Lincolnettes, the coeds go to the air base hospital the first three Sundays of each month. Consisting of half university and half business women the group leaves the city hall at 6 p. m. and is back by 9 p. m. in time for the officers dance.

Unit Organized.

The hospital unit was first organized in July 1944 under the direction of Valevia Brownell. University women can join the hospital unit by registering with the recreation department at the city hall and can join the Lincolnettes by contacting Norma Carpenter in the personnel office of Miller & Paine.
