All Campus Table Tennis Tourney Opens on Tuesday

Play in the all-university table tennis singles tournament will get underway Tuesday, November 13, in the basements of the coliseum and Student Union.

Any student on the campus may enter this event. Entries are due by Monday, and pairings will be posted on the coliseum bulletin board the following day. An individual champion will be declared but no supremacy points are to be awarded.

This tourney will be run entirely separate from the intramural team tourney now in progress.

the eye of southwestern fans as they battle for bowl positions. The Aggies won last year and they still have Bob Fenimore, so it's the Aggies.

Texas gets the nod over Baylor, Texas Christian should drop Texas Tech, Rice over Arkansas and Texas A&M over Southern Methodist in other cattle country contests.

In the deep South Tennessee over Mississippi, Georgia Tech over an improved Tulane outfit and L.S.U. over Mississippi State.

On the Pacific Coast Southern California has been weakened by navy transfers but should edge the California Bears in a tight game, while Washington ought to repeat over Oregon State in the second game this season between the two teams.

Turkey Race Finishers Earn Bonus Points

Interest in the cross country turkey race to be held Tuesday, November 20, over a campus course, is mounting as the big day approaches.

The first sixteen men finishing the 7/8 mile grind will score points for their organization. The top six group winners will toward the group championship, receive supremacy bonus points. Participation points will be awarded organizations having six or more men finish the race, while if 12 or more finish, a bonus of 10 points will be given.

Any man enrolled in the university except track lettermen and members of the two-mile squad are eligible to compete.

Prizes to winners at the completion of the struggle will be made by the Turkey Day queen and her court. Turkeys, geese, ducks, and chickens comprise the list of delectable awards.

K State Tickets

Tickets for the Nebraska-Kansas State game have been saved for a Nebraska block, according to Dodee Easterbrook, cheerleader.

In order to sit in the reserved section at Saturday's game, students must purchase their tickets at the student entrance to the stadium before Saturday noon, Miss Easterbrook stated.

Big Six play reaches the final stages this weekend, with Nebraska concluding its conference play against Kansas State and Iowa State and Oklahoma meeting in a battle to clear up some of the confusion which exists in the top circles of the loop.

If Iowa State defeats Oklahoma, the Sooners will have to knock off Missouri the following week to gain a tie for the title, if Oklahoma drops the Cyclones then the Missouri Tigers will be forced to win over the Sooners to gain a share of the championship. To add more confusion to the picture, the Tigers must also dispose of Kansas in a Thanksgiving Day game to retain their lofty perch.

Now that the writer has confused himself, it is only natural to turn to selections in 25 of this week's games.

For the second week, Nebraska should come home victorious. A win over Kansas State will give the Huskers the championship of Kansas and indications are that the Scarlet will turn the tric.

Oklahoma seems to have too much for Iowa State, although speedy Dick Howard who scampered for long runs against Kansas State and Nebraska, will test the Sooner defenses.

Kansas goes to Marquette and in view of the lacing the Marquette lads handed Kansas State they should add another win by defeating Kansas.

Missouri has an open date this week as they rest for their crucial game on the 17th with Oklahoma.

Army faces Notre Dame in the top game of the day. The Irish were held to a tie by Navy after outplaying the Middies, but Army still has Blanchard and Davis, as well as a strong line which has been overlooked in descriptions of the team. Army's margin won't be large, about three touchdowns, but they should win.

Navy and Michigan meet in another battle of giants, and although Navy's spirit has been low, injuries have taken two quarterbacks from the Wolverines. Navy in a close one.

Columbia and Penn present another clash of undefeated elevens, with the spadkling Columbia attack meeting the rock-ribbed Penn defense. Penn has faced tougher foes and on this basis are favored to halt the touchdown march of Gene Rossides and company.

Elsewhere in the East Penn State over undefeated Temple, Cornell over Colgate and Yale over Brown.

In Big Ten play the Indiana-Minnesota game heads the parade, with the Gophers fighting to retain any shreds of national prestige. Bernie Bierman's teams do not lose more than two games a season, so Indiana should fall.

Ohio State will have no trouble with Pitt, Purdue will have even less with Miami of Ohio, Northwestern to down the Badgers of Wisconsin and Illinois to resume their winning ways over Iowa.

Great Lakes seems to have hit upon a winning combination and Michigan State will suffer.

Two Missouri Valley teams, Tulsa and Oklahoma A&M, hold
