A crew of 36 men under Ensign Davis installed radar equipment on the planes and kept it intact.

The stunts will be performed in the same manner as they were for the Kansas game, and cheerleaders urge all students to take part by sitting in the student section.

Does It Walk? Does It Talk? Rally and See!

It isn't a dance—it isn't a convocation—it isn't a banquet—but it's in the Union ballroom at 7:15 tonight. And what is it? The big mystery rally for the South Dakota game.

Promising thrills and surprises, the cheerleaders have been tongue-tied on the subject of this rally. All the information that could be forced from Art Beindorff, cheerleader, was that "We're staying right there and not going any place this time."

Rumor, Rumor

One of the rumors circulating about the rally is that the Corn Cob pledges will be presented to the student body.

Keeping mum on the subject, the cheerleaders chorus: "You can believe it or not but the best way to find out is to come to the rally!"

Board of Regents Names Edgecomb Associate Prof

R. E. Edgecomb has been promoted from assistant professor of civil engineering to the rank of associate professor effective November 1, announced by the board of regents.

Two new faculty members were also announced by the board. William J. Arnold was appointed an instructor in psychology effective September 1, 1946. He is now a visiting lecturer at the university. Arnold W. Gadekin was named assistant professor of rural economics, effective November 7.

Dr. Werkmeister Writes Philosophical Essay

Dr. William H. Werkmeister, associate professor of philosophy, has written four books on that subject during the past five years. He has recently contributed a lengthy essay on "Cassirer's Advance Beyond Neo-Kantianism," which appeared recently in a book edited by Paul A. Schult, called "The Philosophy of Ernest Cassirer."

Line Forms at Right For MB Ball Tickets

SHUFFLE, SHUFFLE, LITTLE FLOWER.
HURRY AND ELECT YOUR MAN OF THE HOUR.
HALTER, TIE HIM AND HIDE HIM AWAY.
THEN RUN BUY A TICKET TO THE MORTAR BOARD BALL DEC. 1.

The Tassels will begin the sale of tickets Monday and urge coeds not to become so engrossed in planning how they are going to transport their dates on totum poles to forget to purchase the $1.50 tickets.

Mortar Boards are standing in the halls of all campus buildings holding forth their black and gold hats to accept money for the tickets. The profit from the ball goes to the MB scholarship fund from which scholarships are presented to coeds in the spring.

For 55c, spectators may enjoy the evening's entertainment which not only includes the presentation of the six most eligible bachelors but also an amazing display of mental ingenuity in the form of spectacular corsages displayed in the hair or on the manly shoulders of the manly men.

Morton Wells will play for the dance which will be held in the coliseum and will be the first postwar semi-formal affair.

Don Cossack Chorus Appears At Coliseum After USO Tours

The Russian Cossack chorus which will appear at the coliseum on Nov. 20 at 8:15 p. m., recently completed a USO tour under the direction of Serge Jaroff.

The songsters embarked early in June for the European theater of operations to entertain American servicemen with their Cossack folk songs and church music.

Organized in 1920.

In 1920, Choirmaster Jaroff decided that this group of soldiers from the Don valley could become a great singing ensemble, so he organized them into their present company.

They lived for years in Paris, singing at the Salle and Pleyel and in almost every city in France, Belgium and Holland. They performed ten times in one season at the opera houses in Cologne and Frankfurt.

Looked for Lost Friends.

A few of the Cossacks spent much of the time on their recent European tour looking for friends and members of their families who were lost in the war years.

Tickets for the Nov. 20 performance are being sold in reserved sections for $3.00, $2.40, $1.80 and $1.20, tax included. Students and servicemen may obtain special 50 cent tickets which are on sale at Walt's Music Store, 1140 O street.

Churches Plan Usual Service For Holiday

Since a number of students will be visiting their homes during Thanksgiving vacation, few of the campus church groups have planned special Thanksgiving services. Regular services will be held, however.

Dr. William Pfeiler, professor of Germanic languages at the university, will speak on "Our Responsibility in Europe" to the 5:30 Sunday evening forum at the Presbyterian student house. Following the program there will be a 6:30 fellowship supper.

Speech Majors Read Selections Of Saroyan, Benet

BY MARTHELLA HOLCOMBE

First of a series of reading hours by speech majors, sponsored by the Experimental Theatre, was presented Thursday night in the Temple Studio Theatre, under the direction of Paul L. Bogen.

Bill Swanson read two selections from William Saroyan's, "My Name is Aram." His first, "A Nice Old Fashioned Romance," told the tragically-humorous tale of Saroyan's experiences while he was the oldest boy in the fifth grade. During both it and his second selection, "Presbyterian Choir Singers," Swanson reflected the spark-
