

HUSKER HIGHLIGHTS

By
George Miller

The mystery is solved. News that Bernie Masterson is the new leader of Nebraska grid-iron fortunes brings approval from all corners of the state. The former Husker star has a large following of home state fans who followed his career, both in the navy and as a professional player with interest, and he will receive wholehearted backing from all loyal Cornhuskers.

Masterson is a staunch advocate of the "T" formation, so next year's Husker eleven will undoubtedly be well-schooled in the intricacies of the quick-opening plays of the T.

During his years with the Chicago Bears Masterson was invaluable in schooling Bear quarterbacks. Although his prowess as a coach was not widely publicized, his fame was well known in the inner circles throughout the National Professional League.

Recent releases from the University of Kansas indicate that Art Peterson, Husker basketball star last year, is having difficulty breaking into the starting five for the Jayhawks. The gangling Peterson undoubtedly has a deadly basket eye, but his defensive skills are not up to Big Six standards, and apparently Phog Allen was not long in finding this weakness.

Nebraska basketball squads in coming years will draw upon a huge reservoir of student talent. At the present over 500 university students are competing in the cage sport, either as intramural players or as members of the varsity and B team squads.

Credit for much of this revival of athletics goes to Intramural Lou Means who has rejuvenated the intramural program in all sports, and as a result varsity squads in all sports will benefit.

Next on the intramural slate is an all-university wrestling tournament which will give wrestling coach Jerry Adam a line on potential varsity material, as well as providing competition for university students who may not believe that their grappling skill is on a par with the manbending tactics of varsity squadmen.

Wrestling Meet Opens Dec. 17; Practice Now

Wrestling has taken over the intramural spotlight temporarily with announcement from Director Lou Means that competition in the rough and tumble sport will begin on December 17.

Coch Adam Helps.

Organizations pointing for the group championship have had full squads working under the tutelage of Coach Jerry Adam this week. All men are urged to practice and gain the benefit of Adam's instruction any afternoon from 4:00 to 6:00 in the coliseum basement.

Entries are due in the intramural office by Thursday, December 13. Pairings and matches will be posted on the following day. There must be at least four competitors on a team in order to qualify for group championship points.

Five points will be given each participant, while the first three winners in each weight division will gain points on a 5-3-1 basis.

Three Pound Leeway.

Contestants cannot weigh in with more than a three-pound edge on the weight limit of their class. Matches will be three bouts of two minutes each with falls clinching the bout. Regular intercollegiate rules will be followed.

L'Alliance Francaise Hears J. P. Trudel Wednesday

Describing the manner in which French Canadians celebrate Christmas, Jean-Paul Trudel, assistant in French, addressed L'Alliance Francaise Wednesday evening.

Mr. Trudel pointed out the differences in educational systems and different religious customs between Americans and French Canadians.

The holiday season was stressed at the meeting by singing French Christmas carols.

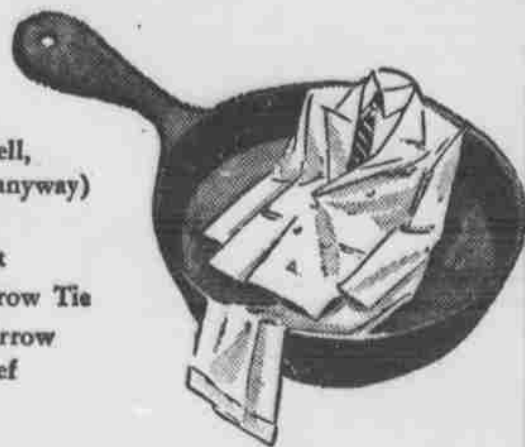

Sir Cedric Hardwicke was knighted by King George V at the New Year's honors in 1934 for his contributions to the dramatic arts.

Contrary to general belief, George Tierney Shestak is not an alias for Les Glot.

Huskers, 14 Strong, Off To Minnesota

Fourteen men were named by Coach Pop Klein to make the trip to Minneapolis for the Huskers' opening basketball game. The squad left Lincoln at 7:30 this morning and will arrive in Gopherland at 7:30 tonight. A light drill is scheduled for Saturday, and the team will arrive back in Lincoln at approximately 9:55 Sunday night.

Players making the trip are Gayle Lebsack, Leo Schneider, Fred Hecox, Dale Livingston, Bus Whitehead, Don Barry, Jim Sandstedt, Tom Cook, Chick Story, Don Claussen, Bob Korte, Joe Brown, Mac Robinson and Chuck Mulvaney.

Barry Fitzgerald will be killed for the first time on the screen in Paramount's big Technicolor drama of the gold rush days, "California."

Barry Fitzgerald is the film colony's best spareribs cook. A bachelor, Barry knows his way around the kitchen.
