Another One?

And still another organization!

War Council dropped off of the university organization list early this year, and we thought that maybe some of the more unnecessary activities and organizations were to be weeded out. Instead, we added another one to the already overgrown list last week when the Inter-Organization Council decided to perpetuate itself.

This council is composed of representatives of every organized house and extra-curricular activity on the campus. Its purpose is to bring about co-ordination and co-operation between the many organizations on the campus, with the aim of giving all organizations opportunity to understand one another and get together on policies and programs. The Inter-Org Council will be under the Student Council in that a Student Council member will have charge of scheduling meetings and notifying members, but will remain an independent activity as far as action is concerned.

The organization has a noble purpose, but the whole business seems a little pointless to us. We already have more organizations on this campus than we can find use for. Most of the present groups do have a distinction of doing something more or less useful, however. But all the Inter-Org Council can do is talk. Of course, the Council hasn't been given adequate opportunity to prove itself yet, and if it can manage to dig up some definite, concrete service which it performs, then more power to it. If, however, the Inter-Org Council remains on the impotent and abstract basis on which it was founded, then, like War Council and like perhaps moribund Coed Counselors will some day, it should bite the dust!

Aces in Entertainment

Tonight is the annual Orchesis Christmas recital.

This modern dance group of the university, under the direction of Dr. Aileen Lockhart of the women's physical education department, presents two recitals annually, one at Christmas time and the other in the spring. The Orchesis members and the recitals have become very well known around Lincoln, more outside the university than within. The dance presentations represent a tremendous amount of work and skill on the part of the dancers and the director, and any students who have attended the recitals in previous years can attest to their excellence.

Tonight's recital is set for 7:30 in Grant Memorial. There is no admission charge although the presentations are easily worth a price. For an evening of superior entertainment, the Orchesis Christmas recital can't be topped.

Help!

What's that??
Geez Louise!

And so ran the comments Monday morning when Cletus Fischer walked into the Crib wearing the latest creation in men's hats. At least we guessed it was a hat—it was on his head anyway and said head seemed to be enjoying its presence.

Huh, and men yell about women's hats!

This fugitive from a yarn factory (getting back to the subject of Fischer's hat) is striped in red, white, blue—and maroon. It is what we used to call, in our grade school days, a stocking cap. With two exceptions. Namely, two navy blue, round globs of fuzz sticking out from either side.

For a long time we gazed at the hat (along with 20 other Crib occupants) and gradually we saw it begin to creep up from around his ears, toward the top of his head. The two blue globs traveled right along with the cap until pretty soon they had assumed a position on the top of the head, about where one might find, if one used one's imagination, a pair of horns. The hat perched thus precariously upon the top of Cletus' head, looking as if it were ready to take off at a moment's notice.

After more careful scrutiny, in which time we managed to add four more furrows to our forehead, we discovered that the peculiar blue globs were nothing more than a pair of unruly ear muffs. The band connecting the muffs was concealed under the upturned edge of the cap and its tendency to contract and press against the head was causing the cap to be forced upward until the muffs came close enough together to stop the contraction and bring the hat to a state of inertia atop the head.

You TOO can solve such simple problems by enrolling in a course in physics I for a mere twenty dollar fee. Only one easily comprehensible text book required: "Physiological Stereoisomerism and Its Accompanying Phenomena." Guaranteed to pass with a mere one hour of study for ten minutes of class. Five exciting hours of lab for each hour of recitation. Hurry, put your name on the waiting list now so you will be sure to get into a class next semester!

Ishkaboda bluey phweet tee ta blub ha ha ha ha he he chuckle chuckle . . . hold on there, hold on—you've GOT to learn to put THINKGS like that out of your mind!

And while we're putting things out of our mind, let's not go back to Fischer's hat.

Dutch Meyer, who is peering over our shoulder, Bob Gillan having just left, wants to know what "thinkgs" are. This word, featured two paragraphs above (providing the proof readers don't read too carefully), is interposed in order to give UN students something to brood over during lectures, when reading the textbook might seem insulting to the teacher. Dutch is also yelling around, trying to attract the attention of some one who knows how to spell "Albakurkee." He can't understand why the Getta Ples have to hold their annual convention in Albacerkie—why they can't pick a city easier to spell. Gee he must be dumb!

Lou says we have ads today so I'd better stop.

... ON STAGE EVERYBODY. . .

Tuesday night at the half the NRO'S skipped out into the middle of the floor, took a quick look around, smiled, straightened their lines, and then swung into one of the most unusual performances ever witnessed by a group of college students . . . they had on khaki (very little) and white cotton shirts . . . they gave a superb show and tripped off in a burst of uncontrollable applause. . .

... LOVE . . . LOVE . . . LOVE . . .

The Christmas season has everyone in a merry mood . . . some of the beaming ones do not beam because of the season however . . . they go with girls they like . . . Al Yearly is a good example . . . he and Marilyn Harris sparkle at each other every minute . . . and wonder why there are only 60 in on hour. . . Shirley Lewis is going with Mr. Johnson and liking it . . . lovely couple. . .

The Sigma Kappa house party Saturday evening will be very entertaining for Bill Kemnitz . . . he is attending the affair with Lona Leonard. . . Jim Lundberg will also be there . . . he will party with Miss Carolyn Koehne . . . that name looks familiar. . . FLASH . . . The newest and most exciting romance on the campus is really baffling everyone. . . It is the most important love affair since the NRO's have been here . . . the two are made for each other and they realize it. . . The perfect couple is Mr. Ed. Kamerling and Miss Betty Storjohn . . . he calls her "Bitsy". . .

Miss Nadine Anderson is sitting on the desk begging me for this typewriter. . . Shirley Campbell is sitting on my lap typing this for me. . . Marilyn Miller is trying to help me think of a name for a column. . . Now if all these girls were pestering you, wouldn't you leave and go to some nice quiet place and relax? . . . All right . . . then let's say I ran out of paper. . . So good night everyone . . . and remember that with all this cold weather ahead, you should keep plenty of alcohol in your radiators. . .

than their predecessors in the late twenties. Second semester averages for the 1927-28 school year at Nebraska, for example, averaged 2.276.

Dean Harper said Phi Upsilon Omicron, home economics sorority, led all organizations on the campus the second semester of the 1944-45 school year, with Omicron Nu, also a home economics sorority, in second place. One or the other of these two organizations has been in first, second or third place continually in the last ten years.

Contrary to general belief Beta University of Nebraska is not named after William Jennings Bryan. It is named after the state of Nebraska, which lies between Kansas and South Dakota.

Contrary to general belief the typewriter was not invented by Don Ameche. Les Glotfelty invented it so she could get people on the staff who couldn't write.
