

Gold Adds To Chemurgy Study Fund

An addition of $1,400 has been made to the Nathan J. Gold Chemurgy Fund, Perry Branch, director of the University of Nebraska Foundation announced recently. Mr. Gold, Lincoln businessman, has previously contributed $5,600 to this fund.

The $7,000 fund will be used to promote "interest, study and development in the general field of chemurgy, not only for research and scientific study, but also for practical experimental work," Mr. Branch said.

Expenditures

Expenditures from the fund include $1,500 toward construction of a safflower seed processing pilot plant. One thousand dollars is slated for a fellowship in castor bean research and the same amount is being set aside for a fellowship with the general objective of stimulating research in greater utilization of farm products in industry and the improvement and production of such crops.

Recommendations for expenditures from the fund are to be made by a committee consisting of Chancellor C. S. Boucher, T. B. Strain, president of the Foundation; and Nathan J. Gold, with the approval of the executive committee of the Foundation.

Vet Likes Hobby, Job Combination Of Pie-Baking

(ACP). Pie-baking might seem to be a strange hobby to the average student on the campus, but to John Rowle, North Texas State Teacher's college, Denton, Tex., freshman, it's a combination of hobby, hard work, and a means of earning expenses for attending college.

Employed as baker in the kitchen of a local grill, Rowle shoves a white baker's cap on the back of his head and produces the formula for butterscotch and chocolate pies, which he says are his specialties.

Nothing Unusual

"Aw, there's nothing unusual about baking pies," draws the boy who baked an estimated 16,000 pies during the past year. "Besides helping pay my way thru college, it's fun."

Rowle begins to assemble the ingredients that go into the making of 24 pies—all that the oven will hold.

"I began taking short orders here four years ago," he explained, "but a year later I began learning to bake. I've been working entirely in the kitchen ever since."

Art Association Honors Kirsch, The Nebraskan

Prof. Dwight Kirsch, art honorary Delta Phi Delta, and The Nebraskan are recipients of certificates of commendation from the Nebraska Art association, Mrs. George Tilden, chairman of the association, announced recently.

Presentation of the awards was made on the basis of contributions made to the furtherance of interest in midwest art, stated Mrs. Tilden. Other certificates of commendation were awarded to newspapers, colleges, libraries, organizations and individuals over the state.

Large Report

Notification of the awards to UN groups was released in a 380-page report submitted by Mrs. Tilden to the association's national headquarters in New York. The report credits the schools and universities of the state with contributing greatly to the growth of art consciousness among children and young people.

fund two years ago, Perry W. Branch, Foundation director, announced Tuesday.

The fund is to be used to aid University students in any department who show a need for financial help and an ability to carry on satisfactory University study. Twenty-nine students have already been aided by the fund.

Former Bombay Student Enrolls In University

Estelita L. Saldanha from the Portuguese colony of Goa on the west coast of India, has enrolled in the university next semester.

After studying literature he received from numerous midwestern universities, Saldanha said that he selected Nebraska because he considers it to be the most "typically American."

Hopes For Degree

Hoping to obtain a degree in educational psychology in 1947 from the university, the Portuguese student previously attended the University of Bombay in India.

Awaiting passage to the United States at Lisbon, Portugal for eight months, he arrived in New York City aboard a freighter Dec. 12. Saldanha plans to return to India to teach following graduation.

Pharmacy Group Appoints Dr. Holck to Committee

Dr. Harold G. O. Holck of the Pharmacy college has been appointed to a special committee on graduate study in pharmacy established recently by the executive committee of the American Association of Colleges of Pharmacy. Purpose of the committee is to interest more students in graduate work in pharmacy.
