

Polls Open For Party Vote Today

Polls open at nine today for students to register their party preferences for the Student Party, organized last year or for the newly organized Union Independent Party.

Students will name their party preference at the polls in the Union basement from 9 to 6 today, and must present their identification cards before casting their ballots. Ag registration will be in the Activities building.

Student Party.

The platform of the Student Party as summarized by Bill Miller, president, is as follows: "The Student Party's purpose is, as always, to provide a means whereby individual students, both unaffiliated and affiliated, ag and city, veteran and non-veteran, can nominate, support and elect candidates of their own choice without the domination or dictation of any faction or bloc.

Open Meeting.

"Our candidates are nominated in an open meeting of all party members, with every party member having the right to nominate and vote for the candidate of his choice. The system was found to be the most democratic and the most practical in last year's spring election, and led to a victory for our party in 13 of the 14 elective positions."

Union Independents.

The newly organized Union Independent Party plans to represent all students attending the university who wish to help promote the welfare of the activities of the university by supporting qualified candidates for offices, according to Don Chapin, officer of the new party.

Nominations will be made at an open caucus of all members, who will nominate and support qualified members of their organization.

U. S.-Russian Relationship Discussed

"The ability of Russia and the United States to allay their mutual suspicions and fears will largely determine our world peace," Dr. Maxim K. Elias, university paleontologist, stated last night when he addressed the fourth of a series of lecture meetings on world affairs held at Love Memorial library and sponsored by the university extension division.

Dr. Elias declared that "there are no reasons why there should be serious disturbances to world peace if we do not pay too high a price in the appeasement of suspicion between these two dominant nations, and if America and Russia, which are and probably always will remain politically different, can continue to be cooperative neighbors and friends in peace as in war."

Illyrian Triangle, Mistaken Identity, Unfold on Stage

BY DEDE MEYER.

"Twelfth Night," Shakespearean comedy in three acts, opens a three-day run tonight at 8 in Temple theater as the University Theater's third major production of the year.

"Twelfth Night" is the story of a lovely maiden named Viola and her twin brother, Sebastian, each of whom believes that the other was drowned when they were shipwrecked. Viola, disguising herself as a man, enters the service of the Duke Orsino, who is wooing the beautiful but disdainful Countess Olivia. Viola secretly loves the Duke, but aids him in his courtship for Olivia. The countess, meanwhile, falls in love with Viola, thinking her a man. Affairs are made more complicated by the arrival of Sebastian, who looks exactly like his disguised sister. As might be expected, everything is at last brought to a happy ending.

"Twelfth Night" becomes more amusing at the appearances of such incidental characters as the drunken Sir Toby Belch, his weak-witted friend, Sir Andrew Aguecheek, and the vixenish Maria, maid to Olivia. This play has been rightfully called Shakespeare's greatest romantic comedy.

Many people, upon seeing a stage performance, accept it at its face value, but fail to realize the immense amount of work involved in its production. From the very first day of try-outs, held in January, everyone connected with "Twelfth Night" has worked, and worked hard. Shake-

W. Hice Names Best Stories In 'Nebraskan'

Pat Jensen's story on the Penny Carnival, printed in the February 13th issue of the Daily Nebraskan, has been selected by William H. Hice, instructor of journalism, as the best story of the month.

An article by Jack Cressman on the closing of freshman registrations in the Colleges of Business Administration and Engineering, was awarded second place, and the number three place was given by Hice to Marthella Holcomb's writeup of the Tassel election.

Best Feature.

Tom Green's feature story about Frederick Beutel, new dean of the law college, which appeared on February 24th, was selected as the best feature of the month.

Inches of published material were counted to determine the reporters who had written the most material for the Daily Nebraskan in February. The four highest reporters in order of inches published are Jeanne Kerrigan, 28; Sam Warren, 21; Lois Hendrix, 21; and Pat Jensen, 21.

The judging of best story and best feature of the month will now be a regular feature of the Daily Nebraskan. Inches will also be counted each month to determine the person writing the most inches for the Nebraskan, according to Hice.

Students Sign Petition For Ag Union Location

The petition proposing an Ag Union to be located on the lower floor of the Activities building, contained 420 of the needed 480 signatures late Wednesday, according to Allen Klingman, representative of the Ag Men's Social club, which is sponsoring the move.

Pointing out the need of recreational facilities for students of the ag campus, the petition states that the previous planned location in the basement of the Foods and Nutrition building is inadequate in view of increased enrollment. The lower floor of the Activities building is proposed to be ideally suited and four specific reasons are stated.

When the required number of signatures are obtained the petition will be presented to the Union Board of Managers. According to the petition the recreational center would be "installed and operated as part of the recreational program of the Student Union of the University of Nebraska."

Grades Out!

Grades for last semester may now be obtained in room 103 of the Administration building, the Office of Admissions announced Wednesday. Students should present their identification cards when they call for grades. Students who are unable to go to the office may send a self addressed stamped envelope for mailing.
