

Husker Baseball Nine Plays Today

Coach Frank Smagacz's University of Nebraska baseball team will make its first start this afternoon at 4 p. m. against the University of Colorado nine on the varsity diamond in the first tilt of a two-game weekend series.

While spring vacation and inclement weather have hampered outdoor drills lately, the Huskers will be set to make their first postwar appearance a winning one.

Smagacz has not definitely decided on his starting pitcher, but has listed a probable lineup for the rest of the positions.

Among the possible pitching choices, the Scarlet coach can call upon husky Jim Sandstedt, Omaha sandlot performer; Harold Jacob, former chucker for the Lincoln Blues; Floyd Strok, Arlington curve ball artist; Wally Scheef, Gretna hurler; Bob Libbs of Beemer; Jim Weiss, who saw service on the Nebraska football team last fall, or John Olson, an NROTC moundsman.

Bill Kinnamon will handle the backstopping chores, with letterman Dean Jackson at first base, Bobby Rubino at second, Wes Maser at shortstop and Wilbur Baack at third.

Another football player, Truck Williams, will hold down the right field spot, while Bob Bolen will cavort in the center garden. Frank Brown gets the call in left field.

Smagacz has intimated that the Huskers are strong in the pitching department, although the club's hitting may be weak.

Nothing is known about the visiting Colorado team, but the Buffs usually come up with a potent ball club.

In case of rain Friday, the two seven inning games will be played Saturday, beginning at 2 p. m. If the first game is played as scheduled on Friday, the second contest will begin Saturday at 2 and will be a regulation nine inning affair.

Bill Keefer and Joe Wilcoxon will umpire the games.

ing the number of times action was transferred from the platform to the stage. Here, too, Lucas showed poise and control while waiting for the stage curtain to rise.

The second original play, "The Wrong Answer," written by Don Douglas, was a humorous story concerning the fortune telling episodes of a Lockheed war plant worker played by Jim Zoubek.

Scene of Action.
The lobby of a family hotel in California was the scene of the action. Dean Wells as Harvey Jackson, the hotel manager, was amusing in the role of a hen-pecked husband.

Herbert Spence and Dede Meyer seemed completely at ease in their characterizations of two workers who collaborated to call an end to Well's fortune telling hoax.

Other players in this comedy were Phyllis Snyder, Barbara Berggren and D. Ann Richardson. Peggy Kirschman served as the director.

The 16-piece band, which will furnish the music for the Junior-Senior Prom tonight, will travel over 300 miles to reach the Coliseum. Sonny likes to fly, so he is buying a plane to use on distant night stands. He is also trying to get a fleet of cars for the band.

Sonny is recording for a new outfit, "Vogue Picture Recordings," which has pictures depicting the title covering the entire record. His two latest releases are "Patience and Fortitude" with "Here I Go Again" on the reverse side, and "We'll Gather Lilies" coupled with "Slightly Barbaric."

Dunham opens at the Casino Gardens in Hollywood on April 27 for four weeks, and then moves on to the sound stage for a few movie shorts.
