Featured with the orchestra are Artie Malvin, taking singer Johnny Desmond's place, and Lillian Lane, formerly with Claude Thornhill's band. Red-headed Bobby Nichols, 21 year old trumpeter who gained fame with Vaughn Monroe, is also with the band.

A special Good Friday broadcast by the University Singers and a speaking cast will be aired by radio station KFOR at 4 p. m. today. Music from DuBois' passion cantata, "The Seven Last Words" will be featured in the dramatic presentation.

One of the two most widely-performed musical works for the Easter season, "The Seven Last Words" retells the story of the crucifixion. Dr. Arthur Westbrook will direct the University Singers who opened Holy Week last Sunday with the performance of Faure's "Requiem."
