Cheer Leaders Confused; Can't Find Answer

Who's yer Hoosier? Dodie Eastbrook and Art Beindorff, twinnings of the cheer-leading squad, want to know if a Hoosier is animal, vegetable, mineral or Carlton Broderick jr. They claim things have gotten out of hand. Nobody knows who, what, or why is a Hoosier? So they're asking for help.

Next Thursday's rally, before the Indiana-Nebraska game, will be built around the idea of "Who's Yer Hoosier?" Art and Dodie are so interested in the answer that they're begging every organized house to bring their idea of what a Hoosier looks like.

There will be a trophy for whatever lucky house can answer the problem the most originally, but the kids have run into trouble about judges. Nobody wants to decide what a Hoosier is. So the final committee will be announced later.

The rally will be held on the lot east of the Union, Thursday's the day—7:00 p. m. is the time.

Right now, all nine of them aren't sure of anything.

They just want to know, "Who's Yer Hoosier?"

Novaes Gives Audience Rare Musical Treat

BY SAM WARREN.

Guimar Novaes treated Lincoln concert-goers to a rare musical experience last night, combining in her piano playing the power of a man with the warmth of a woman. Moving from Bach and Scarlatti thru Beethoven and Chopin on to the moderns, Madame Novaes held her audience absorbed throughout the evening.

She put a spirited keenness and an aliveness into her playing that was never showmanship but rather the joy which only a true artist at his chosen instrument can know. Perhaps this is the "poetry" that many a critic has mentioned in regard to Novaes' performances.

Changing Moods.

No listener could have thought her Bach mechanical or dull. It may have been lulling sometimes, but "Fantasia and Eugee" was always interesting and compelling. At times it was brisk and gay; at times gentle and compassionate.

Her little Scarlatti sonatas were so vital, yet delicate and delightful that the audience's applause demanded another for an encore at the end of the group. Providing a sonorous contrast was Beethoven's "Sonata in D Minor." The slow movement of this work was one of those tranquil, lovely moments that compels the unwavering and constant attention of an audience. Changing mood.
