BY JACK HILL.

Homecoming dance plans move forward as Elliot Lawrence and his band begin their midwestern tour which brings them to the Coliseum on the night of Nov. 2. Lawrence, who recently recorded two new numbers for Columbia Record Corporation, will be playing a full schedule of five college proms through the month of November.

Featured as the young man with the band, Lawrence is a comparative newcomer to the entertainment field, but he will bring an aggregation to Nebraska which is highly recommended on

Advancement Division Will Meet Friday

To discuss the university's problems with Chancellor R. G. Gustavson, the university Advancement Committee, made up of chairmen of 20 districts from all parts of the state, will meet at the Union tomorrow afternoon.

Organized last spring, the committee, meeting for the first time this fall, was established by the Alumni Association in counsel with the University of Nebraska Foundation under the Association's state-wide plan.

Lunch.

Prior to the meeting the members of the committee will have lunch at the Union tomorrow noon with Association and Foundation officials.

R. R. Moodie, West Point, is chairman of the committee, and Morton Steinhart, Nebraska City, is vice chairman.

Schooner Story Will Be Reprinted In New Anthology

Rudolph Umland's short story "The Threshers Tale," which has been printed in two university publications, will be reprinted in a forthcoming book "Furrow's End," an anthology of "stories on the land."

First publication of the story was in the "Prairie Schooner," university literary quarterly magazine. It was also reprinted for "Mid-Country," a university anthology.

Honorary Colonel Filings Are Open To Senior Women

Filings for honorary cadet colonel presented at the Military Ball on Dec. 6 will be open to senior women, it was decided at the Student Council meeting last night.

The military department in conjunction with the Council will hold an all campus election to select the colonel on Tuesday, Nov. 5. All students will be eligible to vote in that election.

Filings will be open until 5 p. m. on Thursday, Oct. 31. Each organized house will select one senior woman to file and the filing will be open to all unaffiliated coeds. Women must file at the Student Activities office in the coliseum.

Narrow Down

After all filings are in, a committee of Mortar Boards and Innocents will narrow the candidates down to five coeds who will be voted on Nov. 5. The military department will submit to all organized houses a list of qualifications which Mortar Boards and Innocents will use in selecting the five finalists so that candidates will be chosen who fill the qualifications.

Six students will count the ballots. Four will be taken from the military department and two from the student council. The results of the election will remain secret until the Honorary Colonel is presented during the Military Ball.

Union Board

Other business at the council meeting included the appointment of Al Cooper to fill a vacancy on the Student Union Board. He will

Innocents Pick Judges

The judging committee for Homecoming decorations has been announced by Bill Thornberg, Innocent president. Judging will take place Friday evening, Nov. 1, and the committee will include Miss Kady D. Faulkner and Mr. Murray Turnbull of the university art department and Mr. Walt Ducker of the Magee Department store display staff.

Decorations will be judged on their originality and connection with the Homecoming game the following day. All fraternities, sororities, co-ops and other organized houses are urged to enter the competition for the Homecoming Cup Award, given by the Innocents society to the house judged to have the outstanding entry.

Thornberg pointed out that the Homecoming displays are an essential part of Nebraska tradition and that entries this year are expected to be the most colorful in the history of Homecoming. Although all entries are expected to stay on a strict budget, Thornberg commented on the many houses which had started their decorations already and the enthusiasm with which the project has met.

Dorsey Band Will Appear At Coliseum

Tommy Dorsey, the "Sentimental Gentleman of Swing," is scheduled to play at the coliseum Monday evening, for a two-hour concert. Featured group will be a new ten-girl string section, the most recent addition to the T. D. organization.

The Dorsey band comes direct to the Coliseum from a 22-day engagement at the Texas State Fair in Dallas, where a stadium was built expressly for T. D.'s programs.

Ziggy Elman, famous trumpet, will share honors with Charlie Shavers, voted one of the top three American trumpet men in Downbeat's popularity poll. Drummer will be the renowned Ray Bauduc, and Stuart Foster will supply the vocals.

The movie, "The Fabulous Dorsey's," which brothers Tommy and Jimmie are making together, is scheduled for completion in Hollywood this month. The plot revolves about the brothers and their bands, and includes the many popular entertainers which

Rally Tonight! Find Who's Yer Hoosier

"Who's yer Hoosier?" may be a novel-sounding rally slogan, but the novelty can't be compared to that of the results this slogan will bring at tonight's rally.

Each house on campus will be on hand with an exhibition of what its members have decided is a Hoosier. Will it be beast or man? Plant or animal? Carton Broderick Jr. in Shirley Jenkin's bathing suit or Elmer Sprague bedecked with an "Innocent" floral horseshoe? Members of you-know-what brandishing Carrie Nation hatchets or Mortar Boards carrying lanterns in search for the model Junior woman? Who will be awarded the trophy of trophies for revealing the identity of the Hoosier?

Be there tonight as a witness to those weird and ludicrous presentations which will be judged by men of the football squad and athletic department.

The rally is to be held on the lot directly east of the Union, and will begin promptly at 7 p. m. so that everyone can get back to the books (it says here) for those Friday exams. And remember, you co-op, dorm, fraternity and sorority people, the success of this rally depends on you, so come out tonight, and bring a Hoosier with you!

Cosmopolitan Club Elects Five Committee Heads

The Executive Council of the Cosmopolitan Club has elected chairmen for its activity committees, according to Margrethe Schioler, corresponding secretary.

Joanne Strain has been elected chairman of the social committee; Edward Asregadoo, chairman of the intellectual activities committee; and Rambaran Ramdin has been elected chairman of the publicity committee.

Mohamed Abou Saheb has been elected chairman of the membership committee, and Margrethe Schioler, corresponding secretary.

At the next meeting of the club, at 2 p. m. Sunday, in room 315, of the Union, Rambaran Ramdin will discuss "Aspects of Hinduism."

AUF Director Extends Drive; Last Donation Taken Friday

The AUF drive has been extended until Friday and all donations must be turned into the Union booth at that time, according to Mary Claire Phillips, AUF director.

AUF contributions finance the work of such World Student Service Fund agents as Frenchman Gabriel Nahas who will lecture here as a part of YW's Religious Week activities. Visiting American colleges under the auspices of the WSSF, Nahas will advise American students of the background and present conditions of Europe's students.

Much Decorated.

Six military decorations from four Allied countries and a five year record as a Special Service agent in the French Underground partly cover the background of experience Gabriel Nahas brings to his WSSF work. Following the fall of France, Nahas organized a clandestine paper edited and printed by students of his native city, Toulouse.

In 1943, wanted by the German and Vichy police, he arranged for an underground railroad to carry British pilots shot down in France over the Spanish frontier. As a result of this all student effort, hundreds of pilots were saved. Such men and activities may be directly traced to the work of the World Student Service Fund and through it, AUF.
