Taking on all the aspects of a real cloak and dagger "whodunnit" is the Kosmet Klub's atomic secret . . . the names of the seven coeds which will appear on the ballot for Nebraska Sweetheart.

Following the petticoat politicians "rose bowl bombshell" certain K-Klubbers started counting their enemies one by one and by pairs amid cries that the show was destined for failure without the traditional presentation of this specific coed cutie. THEN . . . the Kosmet's Kounter Kwickie . . . not only will there be a secret ballot but even the candidates names will be a secret. Something new has definitely been added and this time Australia didn't think of it first.

To add insult to perjury a call was received yesterday afternoon in this office of "ye olde" that sweet and innocent voice coyly in-bordered on calamity. A very quired . . . "Are the girls who are candidates for Nebraska Sweetheart supposed to be at the dress rehearsal in the Union tonite with the rest of the cast?" . . . (Voice on this end) "Who is this please?" . . . CLICK!!! See what I mean . . . intriguing to say the least or even the most or even to say and certain words were.

Seriously tho the show ought to be strictly reet. The prexies of each sorority will undoubtedly be first in line to scan the sheet for more than voting purposes. Regardless of the outcome of the whole thing the advertising has certainly been scrutinized by the student body and a packed house ought to be the result. This Kosmet Klub show ought to be well worth 75c to any and everybody.

Cross Campus By Mary Lou Blumel

University of California students at Berkeley are considering using new rooters caps next season that are unique in the nation. Yell leaders modeler the caps at the last football game. The caps, blue and gold, are modified ski caps with a sun visor designed to eliminate the need for rooters putting pieces of card and paper under their caps to shade their eyes. If enough students like the caps, they will be ordered for the California rooters by next football season.

New Year's Day is traditionally the day for Bowl football, but Indiana university has jumped the gun a little. They and the Chanel Chargers meet in the Powder Bowl to settle the female football feud between the organized and the independents. Both teams are being chosen by members of the university's varsity squad, and the coaches say that students on the Indiana campus should not be surprised if they see pluchritudinous damsels weaving in and out of the crowd on college row now until December 6, with books tucked under one arm and a football under the other. The girls are taking every opportunity to keep in trim.

Last Saturday was the date of the University of Oregon's annual sophomore Whiskerino. Men students have been growing beards for weeks so that they could compete for the whisker prize at the Whiskerino dance. Those who failed to grow beards were punished by a dunking! The winner was chosen by audience's applause at the dance, and the campus bar-presentation the night of the Ball, pause. After being presented with his prize, the winner was shaved by the campus barber and the chairman of the committee in charge of the dance. Those attending the dance were permitted to witness the removal of the beard.
