Vet Program Will Survey Budget Plan

Chancellor R. G. Gustavson will air his opinions and facts and figures about the university budget which is now undergoing the scrutiny of the state legislature when he appears on the "Veteran's View" radio forum Wednesday afternoon.

State Senator Harold C. Prichard of the First legislative district, and Carl Booton, a student veteran who is a junior in Teachers college will complete the panel of speakers. The moderator will be Paul Bogen of the speech and radio department.

Education Problem.

Senator Prichard has indicated that, in his opinion, the problem of education in this state is the most important one confronting the legislature. The Vets organization some time ago, established the policy that they would do all within their power to promote and secure an appropriation from the state legislature which would place the university among the best in the nation.

Booton will be speaking as an official representative of the Veterans and will present the views and demands of the group.

Second Step.

This forum is the second step in a series of moves designed to inform the electorate of the university's needs and potentialities in addition to the sentiments of the student body relating to their educational training, according to director Don Baker.

The broadcast will be held in the Union lounge at 4:00 p. m. on Wednesday. It is an audience participation program designed to permit students, faculty members and their guest to ask questions of and direct comments to the panel speakers and the radio audience.

Alumnus Gives Statue to School Of Fine Arts

Robert L. Ferguson, Lincoln, university alumnus, has presented the school of fine art with a piece of marble Italian statuary. Director Arthur E. Westbrook has announced.

The gift is in memory of the late Victor Krause, Lincoln interior decorator, who graduated from the university in 1911.

Known as "Knife-Grinder," the statue is based on an old Greek myth, and was purchased in Italy in 1920 by Mr. Krause. It is a modern reproduction of an original, and is made of Carrara marble. Its pedestal is made of serpentine marble. At present, the statue stands in the browsing room of Love Memorial Library.

Berggren And Lucas Are Leads

BY NORM LEGER.

After three open tryouts and a final tryout period, the cast members were chosen for "Angel Street," the University Theater's third production of the year.

Bill Lucas, who played the part of "The Wreck" in "My Sister Eileen," will take the role of Mr. Manningham. Playing the part of Mrs. Manningham will be Barbara Berggren, who has appeared in "My Sister Eileen," and "Girl of the Golden West."

Rex Coslor, experienced University Theater player, will take the part of Inspector Rough. Nancy, the maid, will be played by Pat Boyd. Dorothea Duxbury, known for her role of Ruth in "My Sister Eileen," has been cast as Elizabeth, the cook and housekeeper.

Max Whittaker is director of the play. Walt Davis who handled the lighting for "Girl of the Golden West" has been named as an assistant director.

Thriller.

A victorian thriller by Patrick Hamilton, "Angel Street" is set in a gloomy old house in London in the latter part of the 19th century. It tells the story of a diabolical husband who is slowly driving his wife insane as a part of his plan to obtain a fortune that is hidden in the Manningham home.

"Angel Street" first opened in London under the title of "Gaslight," but did not win its real success until it opened in New York City a year later under its present name. Vincent Price, now a leading film actor, played the part of Mr. Manningham in the New York opening. Judith Evelyn, currently acclaimed for her role in "State of the Union," played the part of Mrs. Manningham.

The University Theater's production of "Angel Street" will open February 27 for a four night run, with a Saturday matinee on March 1.

Subscription Drive Opens For Awgwan

Opening a second semester subscription drive, the Awgwan staff under the direction of Walt Simon has announced that the three top fraternities in number of subscriptions gold will be supplied with Chesterfield cigarettes for one of their meeting nights.

This announcement was made in conjunction with the appearance of the January issue of the university humor magazine, said to be the most original in the history of the school. Simon explained that the Chesterfield company, one of the magazine's largest national advertisers, is taking part in the subscription drive as a token of the cigaret company's interest in campus life.

Awgwan solicitors will visit all fraternity houses during the coming weeks and the top three will be given their awards in February. He added that a tentative picture schedule of the activities of the winning groups will also be included as part of the recognition.

New subscription rates will be offered to the fraternities as an added inducement and Simon has promised bigger and better editions in the next three months.

Federalists Announce Objectives

As a result of stimulated interest in the Student Federalists' program for federal world government, the university's Federalist chapter recently voted to change their organizational set-up at a recent meeting so that a larger number of students may attend discussions.

To facilitate this objective and to interest more people in the principles of federal world government, the organization voted to sponsor one convocation a month. This convocation will consist of a panel of well known speakers, including members of the state and local governments and university faculty members.

Topics

The topics for discussion at these meetings will be concerned with international and universal issues. A special feature of the panels will be audience participation and the polling of the opinion of the audience to the topic question.

Milton Field was named chairman of the program committee. This committee will plan convocations and special study groups that will meet at various times to discuss and study pertinent questions in regard to problems facing the advocates of world government.

A membership committee headed by James Kile, was also elected. This committee will soon put on a membership drive, with the purpose of having all people who accept the ideal of federal world government join the national student federalist organization.

The finance committee is headed by Kermit Rohde, who will undertake the raising of funds for the continuation of the organization. Herman Turk heads a research committee, which was formed by request of the national organization who wants this chapter to write specific papers on any and all phases of world government.

Beaux Art Ball Answer To AM-FM

Everyone has been asking the question of the week—"What does AM-FM mean?" Rather than keep the tortured student body in such suspense any longer, here is what it's all about.

Feb. 7th is the date and the Beaux Arts Ball is the big event. For the enlightenment of the unenlightened, this is the annual costume ball sponsored by the School of Fine Arts. This year the theme of the ball is television and radio—Amplitude Modulation—Frequency Modulation—Get it?

Costumes can be anything that has to do with television, radio or characters from either. Here's the chance to satisfy that insatiable desire to be a radio tube, or would you rather be a wire? Be that as it may, the ball will be held in the Union ballroom from 9:00 to 12:00 and prizes will be awarded for the two outstanding costumes. Tickets are $1.20 per couple or 76¢ single, tax included, and can be procured (bought, that is) from any member of any of the Fine Arts honorary organizations or at the booth in the Union during the noon hour.

Get on the beam, kids, there's a ball in your future!

Impressionist Art Exhibited At Galleries

The Abraham Rattner art exhibit now at Morrill Hall shows some of the best work of one of America's leading painters. Rattner's work, at first glance apt to appear surrealistic, is actually classed as impressionistic, the continual appearance of faces and projections of color inciting the surrealistic accusation.

At first appearing artless, the paintings after careful surveillance indicate careful and meticulous planning applied to each tiny figure. Rattner has many human figures mixed up in his paintings, and it is sometimes difficult to discover them. Good practice is afforded by the picture, "Composition of Fige Figures."

Subtle Backgrounds.

A subtle background of satire is conveyed in several of the works. "The Market" pictures a grocery store with a lot of people grouped in the shape of a fish, staring at the prices. "Clown and King" shows a clown with one green eye and one red one.

The entire display assumes a self-division that is noticeable at once. There are some still lifes and romantic landscapes, as "The Calmer Type," and there is the second type consisting of the vivid eccentric designs.

Abraham Rattner, having won top awards throughout the country—first prizes in the Pepsi Cola art contest and the Pennsylvania Academy's 140th annual display—is considered a leader in American art. Some characteristics of his technique have a French influence, but, as an individual, he is entirely original. His present show here is tops in interest and should create enthusiasm on the campus.
