

Kreisler To Appear At Coliseum

Fritz Kreisler, who has been a dominant figure on the American concert stage for over 30 years, will offer a violin recital tonight at 8:15 in the coliseum. He appears as the fourth attraction of the Lincoln Newspapers Series.

Kreisler, who made his American debut over 50 years ago in Boston, is noted as a composer as well as violin virtuoso, having written numerous selections for solo violin and a string quartet. Three numbers listed for tonight's recital are his own. His compositions form a standard part of every violinist's repertory.

Kreisler is fond of good reading and delving into other fields of learning. He is fascinated by the study of mathematics and is keenly interested in new inventions, sharing this dual interest of things musical and scientific with his close friend, Albert Einstein, who is an accomplished amateur violinist.

Advocates Early Entry

Kreisler is an advocate of bringing children an early appreciation of fine music, for "Music," he says, "is a builder of character. Children can learn to like and understand symphonic music just as easily as what is known as swing." He adds that "Some swing is really fine music and some symphonic pieces are musical atrocities."

Tickets in all the reserved sections, priced from $1.20 to $3.60 are still available, according to Walt's Music Store where they are on sale along with student and servicemen tickets which sell for 50 cents.

Kreisler's complete program for tonight is:

"Concerto in B minor," Allegro Moderato, Andantino, Finale, (Saint-Saens)
"Scherzo," "Retrospection," from String Quartet, (Kreisler);
"Viennese Rhapsodic Fantasia" (Kreisler); "Spanish Dance" (De Falla).

Critic Cites 'Our Town' As Stellar Production

By Don Johannes.

For the sixth program of the year, the Experimental Theater presented short scenes from six plays. The result was a highly varied and interesting evening.

The opening production, "Game of Chess," was directed by Rex Coslor and featured Don Hall as the nobleman, Alexis, and Carl Borton as the laborer, Boris. Hall, seen in a minor role in the last Experimental Theater program, turned in the outstanding male performance of the evening.

Winterset.

The second offering was a scene from Maxwell Anderson's "Winterset," directed by Barbara Berggren. Dale Wisser and Marjory Allen appeared as Mio and Miriamne. The highly dramatic episode was probably the best received play of the group.

Next the audience witnessed the flowering of young love in the drugstore scene from Thornton Wilder's "Our Town." An effective picture of life in Grover's Corners, New Hampshire, was presented by Betty Schultz as Emily Webb and Gilbert Haase as George Gibbs, with Carol Johnson in the dual role of the stage manager and Mrs. Morgan. With Dean Graunke as director, "Our Town" was the smoothest running production of the evening.

Houseparty.

Fourth production was "Houseparty" by Britton and Hargrave. Leading roles were handled by

Chancellor Addresses Seven Clubs

Completing one of the busiest weeks of speaking a university chancellor has ever had, R. G. Gustavson will address an ag college convocation tomorrow, bringing to a total of seven the groups he has visited.

Opening the week, Gustavson discussed land reclamation with the State Reclamation board Monday night. He traveled to Fremont on Tuesday to speak to the Fremont chamber of commerce.

Height of Activity.

Wednesday represented the height of the chancellor's activities as he attended the agricultural college rural conference in the morning, aired his views on the university budget over a radio forum in the afternoon and clarified the university's part in soil conservation experimentation with the state soil conservation commission Wednesday evening.

Chancellor Gustavson traveled to Omaha yesterday to address a group of church leaders at All Saints church in the evening. He will end his addresses for the week tomorrow at ag college.

Gertrude Page as Florence and Herb Spence as Alan Bradford. Making a brief appearance as Ronnie was the play's director, Dave Andrews, working under the thinly-disguised (and over-worked) pseudonym of W. T. Hatch. For her characterization of Florence, the unscrupulous shady lady, Gertrude Page should receive credit for the best female performance. She was, however, hard-pressed for honors by "Our Town's" Betty Schultz.

Saroyan.

William Saroyan's "Time of Your Life" offered its principals, Jack MacDonald as Joe and Lorene Novotny as Mary, the weakest plot material of the evening. However, MacDonald's performance managed to hold the interest of the audience. Henry Lee directed.

Final offering was a scene from Zoe Akins' "The Old Maid," directed by Thelma Pogue. Convincing performances were given by Barbara Olson as Charlotte and June Gast as Delia. Jan McElwain was an attractive Tina and Jay Holmes appeared as her suitor, Lannig. The Misses Olson and Gast succeeded very well in catching the mood of the play.

Last night's complete program offered convincing evidence that it is possible for the Experimental Theatre to offer better acting opportunities than the year's five major productions. Those people who miss Experimental Theatre presentations also miss some of the best acting seen in the Temple.

Directory Fate Eyed By Council

At the request of the faculty committee on Student Organizations and Functions, the Student Council recommended to the committee at the Wednesday meeting that the student foundation be granted the right to publish the student directory for the year '47-'48. The other organization applying for publishing rights was the Y.M.C.A.

A report was made to the council by the three delegates from the university who attended the international union of students convention in Chicago during Christmas vacation. The delegate speakers were Jack Hill, Eugene Bertram and Don Geyers.

An announcement was made that there are two student council vacancies. These are one junior man in pharmacy and one junior man in dental school. Fillings for the two posts are open to all junior men in the colleges with the vacancies; they will close on Monday, Feb. 4, at 5:00, the day preceding elections.

The council discussed the possibilities of having a senior week, and decided to schedule a senior class meeting in the early part of the second semester at which time senior class members will present their views on the matter.

John Delehant Will Address 250 Seniors

Federal District Judge John W. Delehant will address the mid-year commencement exercises Saturday, February 1, Dr. R. J. Pool, commencement committee chairman, announced Thursday.

Judge Delehant's address is titled "Tomorrow and Instructional Freedom." The exercises for mid-year graduates will be the first held at the university since 1918. Approximately 250 students will receive degrees, including several for the doctor's and master's degrees, from Chancellor R. G. Gustavson.

Limited Space.

Because of limited space in the student union ballroom, there will be no procession for the faculty at this simplified commencement, Dr. Pool declared. The group to be seated on the platform will include only the chancellor, the active deans, the regents, the registrar, the chaplain, and the master of ceremonies. Candidates for degrees will assemble in cap and gown on the third floor of the Union and will file into the ballroom under the direction of the registrar's assistants.

Commencement exercises will begin in the Union ballroom at 11 a. m. Graduating seniors, in cap and gown, will proceed into the ballroom to the processional march played by Prof. Myron J. Roberts, organist. Chancellor Gustavson will preside over the exercises. The Reverend Robert E. Drew, director of the Wesley Foundation, will give the invocation.

Medical Grads.

The University of Nebraska College of Medicine also announced commencement exercises for about 75 candidates for degrees of Doctor of Medicine, to be held March 22 in Omaha.

Dr. Carl Georgi Elected Chemical Society President

Dr. Carl Georgi, assistant professor of bacteriology, has been elected president of the Nebraska Section of the American Chemical Society.

Election was held in December by mail ballots, and the announcement of Dr. Georgi's election as president for a term of one year has just been made. He succeeds Lewis Harris of Lincoln.

Other new officers are Dr. D. E. Fox, Kearney State Teacher's College; Dr. Raymond Borchers, agricultural chemist at the University of Nebraska, who was elected secretary treasurer; and Dr. Walter Militzer, chemist at the University of Nebraska, elected as councilor.

Chancellor R. G. Gustavson will address the ag student body today at an all ag campus convocation which will be held in the College Activities building at 4 p. m.

First Appearance.

All classes on Ag campus that normally meet at this hour will be dismissed and most offices will be closed to facilitate in getting a record attendance for this, the Chancellor's first formal appearance on the ag campus.

Dr. Gustavson has chosen for the title of his speech, "How Shall We Know the Truth," a broad thought provoking topic. He has made no other comment in regard to the topic, but it will include discussion and solutions for many of our current problems.

Ag Exec.

The Ag Exec Board, sponsors of the convocation, has made all arrangements, including Dean Burr's permission to release all students from conflicting classes, and most important, has arranged for the chancellor to make the address to the ag college students.

This appearance ends one of the busiest weeks of speaking a university chancellor has ever experienced. It makes total of 7 groups that he has visited. He made the opening address at the Agricultural College Rural Conference on Wednesday morning, but has not yet appeared before the entire student body.
