What Are We Worth?

After the discussion and explanation of the university requests on the budget for the biennium on Vet's View. forum Wednesday night, student interest on its progress in the state legislature should be running high.

Chancellor Gustavson outlined policies for the administration of the university which puts the student first, as he should be. Students will have the best instructors and the best buildings under this program, with the ever-present qualifying phrases "if the legislature sees fit to approve the budget as it was submitted."

One of his statements deserving the most consideration was that people will gladly support a first-rate institution but not a third-rate one and should not be expected to do so. It takes the co-operation of the students, faculty and administration to see that this is a blue-ribbon university that the taxpayers will be proud to support. If the budget is approved in its entirety and the $6,500,000 is granted to the university, we will know how the state regards us; if not, we can only accept what they appropriate and work to earn

The Budget will be an evaluation of the university by the people of the state of Nebraska. What are we worth? —S. J.

A Suggestion

One of the more sensible suggestions which has come to this office for the alleviation of the basketball situation concerns the N Club.

All present and former members of the N club have reserved seats for basketball games. Since there are certainly over 100 members who attend the games, four of them could take turns patrolling the coliseum during games, watching for trouble-makers among the crowd. When an over-excited fan is sighted or when booing becomes noticeable, the N Club men could quietly escort them to the door.

Certainly the student body and Lincoln spectators have respect for the members, who are Nebraska athletes. If not, their size can create respect.

There would then be no need to have Lincoln police on June Gast will be the piano acduty at all university games. There should never be that need in the first place, but since the excitement is too great a strain on some individuals' control, N Club members taking over that duty will serve the purposes even better. Since the university is for the students, why should we need outside aid when we have a group on the campus which can take over the job?

Ministers Meet In Conference At Ag Campus

The College of Agriculture for the past two days has been the scene of the first annual meeting of the Nebraska Town and Country Church conference.

Chancellor Gustavson gave an address Wednesday morning on the topic, "The Place of the church in a democracy," which opened the conference. Included in the meetings were speeches by rently registered, unless additionvarious prominent ministers throughout the state, and open discussions both afternoons on "How Competition Between Churches Can Be Eliminated," and "Social Significance of Mechanical Farming."

The conference was presided over by Rev. R. F. Magnuson, pas-tor of the Methodist church in Waverly. Features of the meet were the Wednesday night program by the Saronville rural choir made up entirely of farm people, and a number of talks, including the closing speech, by Dr. T. F. Gullixson, president of the Lutheran seminar at St. Paul,

Nearly 200 people were present for most of the two day program, representing 13 denominations. All discussions were made on an interdenominational basis,

YMCA Hears Green Verify Serious Housing Crisis

That the university is still faced with a housing shortage was verified Wednesday when Prof. Roy M. Green talked before members of the Hiram club at the YMCA.

The engineering dean explained that the university is extremely crowded, and said that it will be impossible to accommodate, two years from now, those cural buildings are provided by the recently elected legislature.
