

Three Casts Present Plays Tomorrow Nite

Three one-act plays will be presented by the Experimental Theater tomorrow night, at 7:30 p. m. in the Temple Theater, Temple building.

James Parrish's "Just Off Piccadilly," takes place in a gloomy room in an empty house just off Piccadilly Square in London. The cast is comprised of three characters, including Mere Stalder as The Man, Beverly Cummins as The Woman, and Don Johannes as The Stranger. Clarence Flick is directing the play.

Other Casts.

"27 Wagon Loads of Cotton" by Tennessee Williams, is divided into three scenes which have as their setting the front porch of a home in Southern Mississippi. Blanche Duckworth will play the part of Flora; Henry Lee, Jake, and Dean Graunke, Viccaro. The play is under the direction of Herbert Spence.

William Saroyan's "The Hungers," deals with a group of struggling individuals desperately seeking their goals. The scene is laid in a writer's room in New York City on a rainy day in late fall. The Young Capitalist will be played by John McDonald; The Writer, Gaylord Marr; The Girl, Joan Lewis; The Old Woman, Dorothy Lasher; and The Stagehand, Avrum Bondarin. The play is directed by Avrum Bondarin.

Negro Week Proclaimed By Governor

Gov. Val Peterson presented a formal proclamation to Charles Washington, junior university student in arts and science, Monday, when he set this week as Negro History week in Nebraska.

The week, which is to be observed throughout the nation, was originated to call attention to the progress made by the race since its freedom from slavery and contributions to the American way of life by the American Negro.

In issuing his statement, the governor said, "In the space of a few generations the Negro race has made itself known in the fields of science, arts, religion, music and the industrial world."

Programs, discussions and meetings will be sponsored in Nebraska by churches, social and civic organizations and special study groups during the week.

PBK's to Hear Northwestern Man Tonight

Members and guests of the Nebraska Alpha chapter of Phi Beta Kappa will hear Doctor Ernest H. Hahne of Northwestern University speak on the topic, "Management of the Federal Debt," at their dinner-meeting tonight at 6:15 in the Union.

Doctor Hahne's discussion will be appropriate in view of the current fervent controversy among the two major political parties about governmental spending. He will correlate the aspects of federal debt management as an economic factor in the future.

Varied Career.

Before assuming his present post as lecturer in economics at Northwestern University, Hahne taught economics and sociology at Dakota Wesleyan University and later at the University of Chicago.

Early in the New Deal era, he was an administration member of national code authority under the now defunct NRA. Hahne also served as special federal assessment and tax consultant. During the 1944 presidential campaign he was on the Republican national committee research staff.

Doctor Hahne has been a frequent contributor to encyclopedias and the author of numerous articles on finance.

Blue Print Issues

The January issue of the Blue Print has been mailed to all subscribers. Students who have not received the January issue or other past issues should report to Room 306 of the Union. Subscriptions for the second semester may be purchased from any staff member.

AVC Studies Expenditures Of Veterans Norris Chapter Opens Campaign

A plan to survey the monthly expenditures of the 6500 veterans attending the University of Nebraska under the GI Bill will be conducted from Saturday, February 15 to March 15, by the George W. Norris chapter of the American Veterans Committee.

Believed to be the first of its kind in the nation, the project will determine statistically how veterans are managing on their present educational allowances.

All student veterans are asked to keep a record of expenses incurred during the period from February 15 to March 15 for the following: food, rent, cleaning and laundry, clothing, personal articles, transportation, educational materials i.e. lectures, periodicals, and reference books, etc., personal insurance, entertainment, and miscellaneous items.

AVC intends to make the aggregated figures available to Representative Edith Nourse Rogers (r., Mass.), who recently introduced House Bill No. 870 which will raise subsistence allotments under the GI Bill to $100 a month for single students and $125 for married ex-GI's, plus $10 a month for each child.

Further instructions concerning accumulation of the data will be issued by AVC at a subsequent date. For the present, student-veterans are asked to begin an accurate account of their personal expenses.

Coeds to Give Penny Carnival

The Coed Counselors will sponsor their annual Penny Carnival on Saturday, Feb. 15, in Grant Memorial gymnasium from 2 to 4:30 p. m.

Twenty-three organized houses and groups have been invited to participate in the carnival by submitting plans for and arranging an entertainment booth. Booths will be voted on by a committee of faculty members plus the popular vote of those attending.

Winning booth will be awarded a trophy which is presented every year. Second and third place winners will receive honorable mention.

Tickets are now on sale by the Coed Counselors, and they may be purchased at the door. The tickets are 25 cents, and everyone is required to have one.

In the past, the Penny Carnival has provided an afternoon of entertainment and fun, and, with the help of all of the university students and their friends, this year's carnival will prove an even greater success.

UN Foundation Receives Fund

The establishment of a new $1,500 scholarship fund was announced Tuesday by Perry W. Branch, University of Nebraska Foundation director.

Income from the fund will be used to provide a scholarship for an outstanding sophomore or junior student in the College of Animal Husbandry.

The scholarship recipient will be selected by a commission composed of the chairman of the Animal Husbandry department and two other faculty members appointed by him.

To be known as the "Arthur W. and Viola Thompson Scholarship Fund," the money is a gift of Arthur W. Thompson of Lincoln.

Religion-Science Relationship Told Gustavson Declares Faith In New Era of Research

BY NORM LEGER

Speaking to a capacity audience in the union ballroom yesterday morning, Chancellor R. G. Gustavson pointed out that the purpose for which scientific knowledge is used will be determined by the moral forces at work in the world.

Giving a definition of science as "that body of knowledge of techniques which enables us to place limiting values on our preconceptions," he stated that religion is based on more than knowledge alone. "It is purely a matter of faith," he said, "and it attempts to answer such questions as 'Is there a moral force at work in the universe?' and 'Does life go on beyond the grave?'"

The Good Life

The Chancellor defined religion as "living the good life in a world made good," and said that the problem that faces the individual today is the one of "living a good life in a world not made good."

He related the problem to the present day athletic system, and indicated that moral concepts will determine the choice we make: Whether we will allow the subsidization of athletics so that games will reach a near-professional level or whether we will support an athletic program in which the emphasis is placed on fun for the players and spectators.

Our Creative Powers

Chancellor Gustavson stressed the needlessness of war to gain limited material goods, because today with the knowledge of science these goods may be gained in other ways. He asked the question, "are we willing to use our creative powers for others as well as ourselves?" and pointed out the need to create enough for all, to feed the peoples of the world, and to supply them with their needs. He spoke of the spirit of sharing that he has found to exist in Nebraska, and mentioned the farmer in the state who received nationwide recognition for being one of the first to offer his surplus grain to UNRRA.

The Chancellor concluded by re-emphasizing the importance of the individual, stating that "the value of human life is high."

Nobel Prize Winner Will Speak June 9

Dr. Arthur H. Compton will be the speaker at the June 9 commencement exercises, announced Chancellor Gustavson in his speech Tuesday.

Dr. Compton has long been an authority on universities and university problems. He was co-author of the book, "On Going to College," and now he is the chancellor of George Washington University in St. Louis, Missouri.

After graduating from Princeton, Dr. Compton took his Ph.D. at Cambridge, and entered the field of education. In 1927 he was awarded the Nobel Prize for his work in physics.

Dr. Compton has written and lectured extensively. Some of his books are "The Freedom of Man," "X-rays and Electrons," and "On Going to College."

Union Plans Tournaments For Students Bridge Highlights Weekend Events

Bridge classes will be resumed in room 313 of the Union Thursday afternoon when both beginning and advanced students will be eligible to play.

Dale Ball will supervise, and tables will be made up according to player's experience and skill.

Monthly Tournaments.

Any persons who plan to enter the monthly bridge tournament scheduled for 2 p. m. Saturday must register in the Union office by noon of that day, according to Miss Patricia Lahr, Union director. Each team will play four rounds of five hands.

In the preliminary round of the inter-collegiate bridge tournament, four university teams will play the initial round by mail in room 313.

Saturday Dance.

No dance has been planned for Friday night, but Lee Hancock's orchestra has been booked to play from nine to midnight in the ballroom Saturday. Admission will be 44 cents per person.

"Confirm or Deny," the story of an American newspaperman in London during the war, is included in the Sunday weekly variety show. Starring in this movie are Don Ameche and Joan Bennett.

Deadline Set For Hepburn, Tracy Entries

Deadline for entries in the contest to find two university students resembling Katherine Hepburn and Spencer Tracy who will be presented at the world premiere of "Sea of Grass" on March 4 has been set for February 20. Each entry should be turned in to the Daily Nebraskan office with the name, address, and telephone number of the student.

The winners will appear on the Stuart theater stage on the night of the opening with the mayor of Lincoln and other civic leaders. They will receive prizes of $25 each in addition to the plaques and telegrams sent by Hepburn and Tracy from Hollywood.

The preliminary tryouts will be held on the Temple stage February 24. Finalists will compete on February 26. Judges for the contest will be Dallas Williams, director of the University Theater, E. D. Rich, representative of Metro Goldwyn, and Shirley Jenkins, editor of the Daily Nebraskan.

Mr. Williams has a set of 8 by 10 pictures of the stars which are available to all entrants. The make-up department will help in making the entrants to look as nearly like the stars as possible.
