

University Urges Building Program Officials Submit Tentative Project List to Unicameral

(Editor's Note: This is the last of a series of four articles to be published by the Daily Nebraskan dealing with the university's 1947-48 budget, now being considered by the state legislature. Today's article deals with the university building program. The Nebraskan urges students to clip this series of articles and mail them to their parents. In this manner, it is hoped that an increasing number of persons will become acquainted with the university's problems.)

The University of Nebraska is in urgent need of a long-time tax supported building program.

List 50 Projects.

To acquaint the people of the state with its needs, the university submitted a building plan as a separate statement accompanying its budget requests. The long time program lists 50 projects to be built at a cost of about $15,000,000.

Any major building program upon which the university embarks of necessity must be financed in large part by state tax funds. At present there is a bill pending before the state legislature which would provide for

Crosby Asks UN District Divisions

Lieutenant Governor Robert Crosby spoke on "A Nebraska Approach to World Government" yesterday at an all-student convocation. He was introduced by Professor J. P. Senning of the political science department, who said of him, "Citizen by birth, lawyer by profession, and a public servant by choice."

One of the problems of a world government is the method of representation, Crosby stated. People can be given a voice in governmental affairs by "the counting of noses" or by geographical sub-divisions. Examples of representation are the Pan-American Union, which allows one vote for each nation, or an equality to geographic sub-divisions. In the establishment of our own constitution, the problem also came up. The result was a compromise, with a house containing each type.

Stationed at San Francisco.

Crosby said, "It was my good luck to be stationed in San Francisco when the members of the Allied nations got together to draft the United Nations charter. The basic argument was representation. I don't think anyone there was idealistic enough to suggest a representation of noses. The problem was that of how to represent political regions.

"Since 1875 the state legislature has represented noses, each person representing approximately 30,000. In many states, political districts are represented. Wars have usually been fought over symbols. During the past 200 years, the symbol has been the national state. You cannot hope for peace until people's thinking is free of this symbolism, until people are free to think of the world as not national states but as of people."

100 Districts.

Lt. Gov. Crosby suggested that the world might be divided into 100 legislative districts composed of approximately 20,000,000 people each, and each of which would elect representatives to a world congress directly. "If we had a representative from the mid-central United States he would have something in common with other men from agricultural temperate zones all over the world. Representatives must care for the PEOPLE.

"When we are willing to realize that there are few differences among people, we can have universal peace."

Danes Present Stunts, Dances Here March 5

Gymnastics Team Offers Varied Program of Skills

An entertainment highlight of this year will be the National Danish Gymnastics team performance here on March 5 in the coliseum.

These 42 Danish men and women, 18 to 22 years of age, will present a varied program of gymnastic stunts, exercises of grace and beauty, strength and co-ordination, and native folk dances in costume, as well as a colorful flag ceremony.

Tickets.

Students may secure their tickets in advance for 50 cents in Room 207, coliseum or Grant Memorial hall. Student tickets at the door on performance night will be 75 cents. The physical education department is sponsoring the show.

All members of the group were active in the Danish underground movement during the war. They are all students in Copenhagen and other nearby Danish cities, and have had long training in Danish gymnastics.

Plans are being made for an informal tea in the Union where students will be able to meet and talk with the Danes. During their stay in Lincoln, the troop will be guests of Lincoln people of Danish background.

a one-mill levy tax on property. The levy would return to the university about $8,000,000 over a period of ten years.

Pressing Needs.

If the bill, introduced by Sen. Fred Mueller of Kearney, is approved by the legislature, the most pressing building needs of the university could be met.

The need for a university building program has been brought into sharp focus by three major developments: (1) The necessity for providing adequate space for a student enrollment, now overflowing classrooms and laboratories, which will remain 100 to 140 percent above pre-war levels for the next four years, and at least 30 percent above peacetime totals for the next ten years; (2) the need for more space to carry on research work; and (3) the need to expand facilities housing many of the university's public service agencies.

Buildings Under Construction.

Three buildings are now under construction on the Lincoln city campus—an armory for the Army and Navy ROTC training program, a general classroom building, and an addition to the chemistry building to be used for chemical engineering. They are being built with $1,018,000 in surplus funds allocated to the University by the state legislature in March, 1945.

University buildings, like homes, factories and farm buildings, deteriorate with age to a point where the wisdom of replacement far outweighs the increased cost of repair and maintenance. Consider for a moment

Nationally famed in the field of chemistry, Welsh is a former business partner of Senator Hugh Butler.

Modified Pay For Athletes Draws Favor Speakers Agree On Subsidization

Subsidization of college athletes in a modified form was advocated by three members of the speaking panel on "Vets' Views" Thursday afternoon at the Temple.

Speaking in favor of the assistance for university athletes were Harry C. Good, head basketball coach; Norris Anderson, sports editor of the Lincoln Star, and Ed Schwartzkopf, student representative on the athletic board and a member of the Husker football team.

Jack Norman, sophomore student in the college of arts and sciences, was the only member of the panel to uphold a simon pure policy for Nebraska athletics during discussion of the question, "Should College Athletics Be Subsidized?"

The three speakers in favor of a payment program emphasized that their approval extended only to a policy by which athletes would be provided with books, tuition, room and board, items which they would probably not be able to afford when they spent their working time in athletic practice.
