

Men's Activities' Board to Function Point System Will Affect Spring Elections' Slates

Men's Activity board has issued for enforcement a revised men's point system which will go into effect next fall, according to Innocent president Bill Thornburg.

This enforcement of the system will affect spring elections in that all candidates who would be overpointed if elected will not be eligible to run for office.

Several changes have been made in the system this year. These include the addition of Ag Union Board and Ag Men's Social Club, Student Foundation, Nebraska Masquers, and University Theatre to the point system. Also the ratings on several offices have been changed. Business managers of the Daily Nebraskan and Cornhusker now have five points instead of four, sports editor of the Nebraska is three instead of two and the Student Union Board president is four instead of three.

The Board was organized in 1937 and approved by a majority vote of the male student body at that time "to regulate and limit the participation of male students in extra-curricular activities so that more men may have a chance to participate and so that a few individuals are not overburdened."

New board members will be Innocent and Corn Cob presidents; Student Council president if a man, otherwise a designated representative; editors of the Daily Nebraskan and Cornhusker if men, otherwise designated representatives; heads of the Ag Exec Board and whatever Barb organizations there may be; and two faculty members.

Maximum number of activity points that a man is allowed to accumulate during a semester, as determined by the board is as follows:

1. A male student with a scholastic average of 72 or above and who is of sophomore standing (freshman and first-year transfer students are not eligible for pointed activities) may carry six points. A student of sophomore standing having an average of less than 72 shall not carry activities totaling more than three points.

2. A junior with an average of 72 or above will be allowed to carry activities totaling seven points. A student of junior standing having an average of less than 72 shall not carry activities totaling more than four points.

3. A senior having an average of 72 will be permitted to carry eight points. Seniors with less than a 72 average may carry not more than seven points.

Anyone who would become overpointed if he takes an office, is not eligible for that office. The MSA Board has the power to restrict to the established maximum the number of points a student may make in a semester.

No student may drop a low point activity in any semester to accept a higher pointed activity in order to remain below the maximum point limit as set by this board.

Any office received by virtue of election to another office is classified as an auxiliary to the See MEN'S POINTS, Page 2

UN Blameless On Delayed Vets' Checks

School Agencies Prompt, VA Slow

Failure of student veterans to receive subsistence checks on schedule is not due to delay on the part of university authorities, said Prof. J. P. Colbert, director of the University of Nebraska veterans consultation board.

A statement prompted by an announcement from the regional office of the VA earlier this week attributed delay in arrival of checks, in part, to slowness on the part of the university in supplying VA with the necessary registration reports; Prof. Colbert said the university has made a special effort to see that student veterans keep the VA posted on changes in address, and that they promptly file "earning reports" with the VA. There have been only a few isolated cases where students have failed to co-operate in this program.

6,000 On Rolls.

"The University of Nebraska prides itself on the prompt manner in which it has forwarded registration reports of World War II veterans to the regional office of the Veterans Administration," Prof. Colbert said. "One week after registration for the current semester was completed at the university, we mailed some 6,000 such reports to the VA office in Lincoln."

"In my opinion, the main cause of delay in the arrival of subsistence checks to student veterans on the campus is due chiefly to the huge backlog of uncompleted work in the Veterans Administration finance office," declared Prof. Colbert.

Faculty Submits Senior Proposal For Final Vote

Committee Recommends Limitation of Activities

Proposed plans for Senior week came a step nearer final consideration last Wednesday, Dean Marjorie Johnston announced yesterday, when the university Senate's Faculty Committee on Student Organizations and Social functions voted to submit the plans to the President of the Senate, Chancellor R. G. Gustavson. Dean Johnston is secretary of the committee.

ter's first production of the year, and appeared in several University Theatre shows last year. She also played in "Night Must Fall," which was given by an Omaha stock company.

The box office will be open this week from 12:30 to 6:00 p. m. Because of a large number of reservations already made thru mail orders, students are urged to make their seat reservations as soon as possible, according to Dallas Williams, University Theatre director.

Acting as a "clearing house," the committee submitted the plans, with two suggestions, after hearing the report of the Senior Week planning committee presented by Helen Laird, Marian Mitchell, and Fred Teller.

"We suggested that the social activity be confined to June 5, 6, and 7, instead of the proposed four days," Dean Johnston said, "and that the Senate take special notice of provisions regarding the removal of examinations."

Suggestions.

"We felt that by limiting activity to a shorter period, it would be easier to hold student's interest," she said. Because there is a Senate ruling that a student must attend an examination period for each course from which he will receive credit, "action must be taken by the Senate to eliminate examinations or to substitute for them," Miss Johnston continued.

The proposed plans, which were drawn up only after consultation with the chancellor, will be considered with the committee's suggestions whenever the University Senate convenes again. Senate meetings are not scheduled on any regular basis, but are called when the administration feels sufficient matter is at hand for consideration.

Formation of Senior Week has been a major project of this year's Student Council who formed the committee of seniors and Council members.

YW-YMCA Plan Survey To Study Minority Housing

All 10 o'clock classes will take a poll next Wednesday concerning the current problem of housing of minority groups.

Department heads received questionnaires Monday morning from members of the university Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. The questionnaires will be picked up the following Friday and are to be tabulated over the weekend.

"The Y.M. and Y.W. are working for democracy, and in keeping with their aim of helping everyone, they feel that the time has come to do something for the members of minority races on the campus," said Miss Mildred Taylor, Y.W.C.A. campus advisor.

Committee Members in Charge.

Patricia Neely, Phyllis Harris, Camilla Palmer, Charles Goolsby, Lindwood Parker, and Owen Scott comprised the committee which planned and organized the poll. Arrangements have been made thru Registrar G. W. Rosenlof and Dean T. J. Thompson for distribution of the 5,500 questionnaires.

Miss Taylor added that the poll was prompted by a feeling on campus that the students are directly affected by the housing set-up, and the board of regents who effected the present rulings are of a different generation and, as such, may have different views on the problem."

The date and time for the poll was selected because it is believed that more students have 10 o'clock classes, and that more students attend classes in the middle of the week.
