Published daily during the school year except Mondays and Saturdays, vacations and examination periods, by the students of the University of Nebraska under the supervision of the Publication Board. Entered as Second Class Matter at the Post Office in Lincoln, Nebraska, under Act of Congress, March 3, 1879, and at special rate of postage provided for in section 1103, act of October 2, 1917, authorized September 30, 1922.

The Daily Nebraskan is published by the students of the University of Nebraska as an expression of student news and opinions only. According to article 11 of the By Laws governing student publications and administered by the Board of Publications: "It is the declared policy of the Board that publications under its jurisdiction shall be free from editorial censorship on the part of the Board, or on the part of any member of the faculty of the university; but members of the staff of The Daily Nebraskan are personally responsible for what they say or do or cause to be printed."

This Is 30 . . .

WE'LL REMEMBER.

The look of the campus with the lilacs in bloom . . . crowded classes, overworked professors and too little time to study . . . the sight of temporary buildings being erected on the quadrangle to house the overflow of students.

The advice and help given us by Chancellor Gustavson, who deserves the respect and admiration of every student and faculty member in the university.

Our disappointment when the Faculty Senate ignored the request for Senior Week . . . the way students turned out to vote for Student Council members, although the faction (and there is such a thing) scored a victory.

The many people who are interested enough in the university to be concerned about the budget.

The complaints and compliments about what was or was not printed in The Daily Nebraskan . . . and most of all, the loyalty of a good staff and their constant effort to make this a better paper.

AND WE HOPE TO SEE.

More lilacs, more beauty and less need for signs stuck in the grass all over campus to remind students to keep off . . . more new buildings like Burnet Hall and chem engineering to provide adequate space and facilities without the necessity of ugly temporary quarters.

Dr. Gustavson as chancellor for years and years.

Final exams abolished for seniors and a chance for them to enjoy the last of their college days . . . a Student Council which will act on its own judgment, not the advice of "The Wheels" behind it.

Enough money appropriated for the university to enable it to carry on its work of education.

The kind of campus newspaper that you, the students, want and deserve to have.

'Daily' Reviews . . .

Chancellor announced possible expulsion of all drunken drivers.

New Tassel prexy was Harriet Quinn . . . upperclassmen elected Jo Fankhauser to reign as queen at the Junior-Senior Prom . . . Raymond Scott played for this event, which closed the formal season.

Faction Field Day.

New registration procedures went into effect late in March . . . a record vote of 2021 in the spring elections in April carried the independents into office and left the infant Cornhusker party out in the cold . . . plans to erect 11 barracks as temporary classrooms got underway.

Andrews and Wiseman were men of the hour with their "Ak-Sar-Ben Nights," presented as the Kosmet spring show . . . 900 were cited for academic prowess at the honors convo . . . Tassels and Corn Cobs announced new pledges.

The Engine College had a busy week of open house and exhibition . . . 20 new Mortar Boards were masked on Ivy Day . . . Innocents tapped 13 for the first time since 1943 . . . Shirley Hipps reigned as May Queen and the Alpha Phi's and Kappa Sigs won the sorority and fraternity sings.

Lahr Leaves.

Orchosis presented their spring modern dance recital . . . it was announced that men's dorms would be ready for occupancy in the fall . . . Pat Lahr resigned as union director . . . Marcella Slajchert was named ISS delegate by the Student Council.

The Publications Board announced that George Abbott would head the summer Daily staff . . . also that Jo Ackerman and Duke Novotny would be 1948 Cornhusker and Rag helmets . . . and refused to authorize publication of a new magazine, "Cornshucks" to replace the old Awgwan.

So here we are again, right back where we started. It's all history now, so let's have some more.

Berggren, Lee Take Honors For Direction Of Hit Show

BY NORM LEGER.

A bright future in the theater is in store for Barbara Berggren and Henry Lee, senior speech majors, if Saturday night's production of "Thunder Rock" is an indication of their talents of play direction. What was expected to be little more than the third and final production given by the Actors Lab turned out to be one of the best three act dramas presented on the Temple stage this year.

Other Merits.

In addition to its excellence from a production standpoint—well handled sound effects, skillful use of lights, and good timing—there were performances of high merit turned in by every member in the cast.

Dale Wisser, playing the lead role of Charleston, the escapist who finally finds the reason to bring him back to reality, had enough power and intensity to make his performance dynamic.

Don Johannes, as Sereeter, Charleston's friend who disagreed with him and acted according to his own belief that the world is not doomed, was able to create a character so real as to make the audience hardly aware of any "actor and play" thoughts.

Explosive and Genial.

Despite the explosive utterances which marked the beginning speeches of Inspector Flanning, Carl Booton had the genial gruffness and pseudo-crank frame of mind to make the Inspector a lovable, even if harassing, character.

Don Hall, as Captain Joshua, the leader of a tiny group of early 19th century pioneers who are, in the play, nothing more than figments in the mind of escapist Charleston, gave his usual high quality elder age characterization. Herbert Spence and John MacDonald both turned in performances which reflected no small amount of ability as Dr. Stefan Kurtz and Briggs.

Anger Plus Pessimism.

Marjorie Allen was a charming and delightful Melanie, and even her moments of anger and pessimism added to, not detracted from, these characteristics.

D. Ann Richardson had the strength and vocal power to make her interpretation of Miss Kirby, an early crusader and suffragette, effective and convincing. Gertrude Page handled the role of the wistful Anne Marie with ease as did Richard Espergren with his duroles, Nonny and Chang.
