

R. G. GUSTAVSON

Fellow Students of the University of Nebraska:

A hearty welcome to you from the entire staff of the University. You are particularly fortunate to be living in a country that has escaped the ravages of war to a very large extent and has the resources to make education, with all that that word implies, available to so many. You can justify the investment of society in you by preparing yourselves to help build a world where the opportunity to learn will be available to an ever increasing number of people. Your principal task here is not to accumulate facts, but to learn to be a critical thinker. Critical thinking frequently leads to convictions, which lead in turn to demands for great courage. Be not afraid. Great causes demand great loyalties. Prepare yourselves to give the world your best. May the coming school year be one of great significance to you.

Veteran Housing Still "Critical" 500 Married Students Lack Living Quarters

Over 500 married veterans registering in the university this fall are still looking for housing, according to E. B. Brown, director of the university student housing bureau.

While the bureau has placed all single male students applying for rooms, housing for married vets is still critical, Brown said. "The University has converted everything possible into rooms and apartments in an attempt to place the large group of married vets. No more reconversion is possible," the housing director explained.

Dorms Near Completion.

Single men are in a better position to obtain rooms with the new dormitories on 15th and U streets nearing completion. Building B will be the first of the three-story buildings to be finished. Sixty-eight men will move into it sometime next week. Building C, with a capacity of 68, will be ready for occupancy about Oct. 15. Largest of the three building A, will be finished in December and will house 136 students.

Buildings B and C are filled, but there are still quite a few openings in building A. Applications will be taken for rooms in this dorm around the last of November, Brown said. Men who already have been promised rooms in these dorms are now being housed at the air base, the field house and in private homes.

Expansion Planned.

"Eventually," Brown stated, "the university hopes to expand the men's dormitory project to include six small buildings, one

Reporters Asked To Work On Daily

Students interested in reporting for the Daily Nebraskan are asked to contact Duke Novotny, editor, or Jack Hill and George Miller, managing editors, at the Daily office in the union at 1:30 p. m. every day.

Regular reporters will be paid monthly on an inch-rate basis.

large dorm and a central dining hall."

There is also a list of available double rooms for men, according to the bureau head. However, these rooms are not located close to the campus.

Director Brown reported that he has a listing of part time jobs which are now open. Any male student interested in part time work this year may file applications at the housing bureau office in the administration building.

W. C. Harper Named New Funds Chief

W. C. Harper, assistant dean of student affairs, has been named business manager for student activities, T. J. Thompson, dean of student affairs, announced Wednesday.

Harper succeeds A. J. Lewandowski, who retains the positions of business manager of athletics and director of athletics. Increasing pressure of business in Lewandowski's office prompted the move, Dean Thompson said.

Chatfield.

Mr. Lee Chatfield has been appointed assistant dean of student affairs, as general counsellor to students. His office is open from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. "Our office will attempt to give cooperation to students in any way," Chatfield said.

Mr. Bert Brown, also associated with the office of the dean of student affairs, is in charge of student employment and housing for men. His office and Mr. Harper's is located in 209 Administration building.

Dean Harper's assistant student activities manager is Miss Maxine Melka.

Chancellor Delegated To UNESCO

Chancellor R. G. Gustavson has been chosen as one of the ten United States delegates appointed by President Truman to attend the second international congress of the UNESCO, scheduled in Mexico City Nov. 6.

"UNESCO is intended to let the people of one nation speak to those of another," Chancellor Gustavson told The Daily Nebraskan, Wednesday. "It attempts to concentrate the minds of men on peace instead of on war. It works through education, from the basic teaching of reading and writing to the seeking for a free flow of information in the fields of art, government, social science and the sciences."

Information Exchange.

Gustavson said that the international exchange of information, apparatus and ideas includes shutting of students, professors, experts and workers as well as scientific writings, works of art and current educational studies—a kind of international barter.

At the Mexico City conference the delegates will wrestle with problems regarding establishment of an international radio and television service, so that the world's people will be able to see and hear each other as well as read each other's publications.

Russia's refusal to join UNESCO (whose membership is open to any United Nations member by virtue of its own choice) is a bitter disappointment, the chancellor said. Definite attempts to encourage Russian membership in UNESCO will be made, since mutual misunderstanding and suspicion have characterized Russian-UN relations. A really free flow of ideas into and out of Russia is an immediate and imperative goal of UNESCO, the chancellor believes.

In Dr. Gustavson's opinion there is more and more student interest in the workings of the United Nations and its arm, UNESCO.

Asked what the UNESCO conference hope to accomplish, Chancellor Gustavson replied, "If we could do something to stave off World War III, we'd be doing something."

Classes Open As Scheduled

Estimates Put Enrollment Well Over Ten Thousand

Classes will open as scheduled at 8 a. m. Thursday, Dr. G. W. Rosenlof, Registrar and Director of Admissions, announced Wednesday. Unofficial estimates on total enrollment for the entire university range up to fifteen thousand students.

Returns from registrations Wednesday noon show that 6,347 students have completed registration procedures including payment of fees. Final figures will not be available for at least ten days. A year ago at this time approximately 5,800 students had finished registering.

2,000 Unregistered.

Approximately two thousand undergraduates have not registered as yet, and no figures have been published on the College of Medicine or the School of Nursing. Registration in the College of Dentistry has been closed.

Recent installation of International Business machines has speeded up registration, Dr. Rosenlof said. By this same method, final grades will be out two weeks after the semester.
