

It Says Here

BY PAT NORDIN.

Social events of last evening were, as usual, confined mostly to candy passings—and showers. The Gamma Phi's had a double feature Monday night. The Deltas were there en masse to witness the Jim Sharpe-Duana Nelson announcement. Evidently Jim wasn't shy—just reticent. The Farm House boys accompanied Charlie Brim who now shares ring and pin with Trudy Lucas.

Marilyn Lyness passed candy to the Towne Club announcing her engagement to Duane Nielson. Sister Mary Alford and Masquer prexy Dean Graunke were next on the list, while Norma Fischer and Stanley Sohl, Theta Xi, Mary Lou Ferguson and Beta Sig Cliff Wegener also made it official.

As for the showers—AOP! Marlene Nelson received the first of hers last night. This may happen frequently from now on since the girls seem to believe in tradition.

Among the missing is Bob Hildebrand's DU pin. DU brothers feel that a careful search of the Alpha Chi house might prove enlightening.

The pinning of Phyl Skiner, Farm House, and Phil Schlingel was followed by a serenade at Love Hall. The boys have been kept pretty busy lately.

Delta G. Nancy Watkins is again wearing Curt Hasselbach's Beta pin. Wedding bells will sound for the two next year.

DU Don Shaneyfelt is commuting between Lincoln and Sioux City this semester. Big attraction is Tri Delta Lou Rowley.

Editorial Note:
In spite of our attempts to improve this column, we have had almost as many unfavorable comments on it as similar columns have received in the past.

Before the semester began, an attempt was made to get news from every part of the campus by asking unaffiliated groups as well as organized houses to submit the news of social activities. Only a few groups have been faithful in their response.

We have tried to live up to our part of the bargain by printing exactly what was handed to us, and by printing only that. But the groups who are not mentioned are unhappy with the state of things.

So "It Says Here" will have to go. This is your newspaper, and we want you to read it and like what you read most of the time.

Unless enough people let us know that they want a column similar to this to remain in the

Trio Presents Brahms Senior Recital Today

The season's schedule of Wednesday afternoon senior recitals opens at 4 p. m. today in the Temple with a performance of the seldom heard Brahms "Horn Trio" so-called because the French horn is substituted for the viola which usually is included with piano and violin. Making up the trio are seniors Bonnie Compton, pianist; James Price, violin; and Jack Snider, horn.

Miss Compton is a member of the University and Symphony orchestras, playing string bass. She has been Union organist for several semesters, and gave her junior piano recital, required of arts and science music majors, last spring.

Orchestra Members.

Price and Snider are also members of both orchestras. Altho Price is principal violist with the groups, he switches to the violin for today's performance. Snider, who graduated last spring, is now a member of the instructing staff.

The Brahms "Trio in E Flat," was composed for a special friend of Brahms' who was an excellent hornist. The difficulties of the horn part make frequent performances of it unusual. As far as music school authorities can determine, the trio has never been performed in Lincoln before in its entirety. It is scored in four movements, andante, scherzo, adagio and allegro con brio.
