

Six Staff Positions Open On New Monthly Magazine

A campus publication designed to contain the best features of a literary magazine and a humor magazine will become a reality on the Nebraska campus in November. The publication, to be published six times a year, will be for and about students at the university, and will be made up entirely of student contributions in writing, art and cartoons.

The six top staff positions of the magazine, recently authorized by the publications board, will be filled Saturday when the pub board meets to select the editor, two managing editors, business manager and two assistant business managers.

Any university who meets the requirements for participation in extra-curricular activities may make application for any one of the positions. Other staff positions, feature writers, cartoonists and artists, will be named by the newly chosen editor. Students who want to work on the publication should report to the new editor Monday afternoon in the magazine's office which is located in the Daily Nebraskan office. Students wishing to apply for one of the appointed staff positions, may obtain applications blanks in the office of Dr. W. F. Swindler, head of the publications board, in University hall.

Choose Harvey Contest Winner At Friday Rally

A rally planned for Friday night will not only give vent to students pre-game spirit for the Nebraska-Iowa match, Oct. 11, but also will reveal the winner of the free trip to South Bend to see the Nebraska-Notre-Dame game the following Saturday.

Martin Pesek, yell king, has announced that the rally will begin promptly at 7 p. m. in front of the Union. Preceding as usual through the streets of the campus dormitory area to rout less enthusiastic students out, the rally will reach the end of their trek as they approach the front of the coliseum.

Phyllis Harris, the 1947 Pep Queen, will draw a number from the fish bowl, or barrel, or whatever it takes to hold the entry tickets. If the holder of that number is present, he will be awarded the Harvey free trip ticket. However, if the person holding the number is not present, he can do nothing but read about his chance at a later date. Another ticket will be drawn. Which should emphasize one important factor: The holder of the winning number must be present to claim the prize.

Reports from Harvey's indicate that over 1,000 names are already registered, and students are registering at a rate of 100 a day.

Gustavson Will Address Annual Chamber Meet

Chancellor R. G. Gustavson and Education Professor Walter K. Beggs will speak Thursday at Lincoln chamber of commerce luncheon and dinner meetings, respectively, addressing an annual session of South Platte Valley United Chambers of Commerce. A special train will bring 200 business men to Lincoln from a general area west of Hastings and south of the Platte river.

"The University and Business" is the title of Dr. Gustavson's noon address. Mayor Clarence Miles and Gov. Val Peterson will speak briefly. Byron Dunn, vice-president of the Lincoln chamber which sponsors the affair each year, will preside.

After visiting various local points of interest, the chamber's guests will hear Professor Beggs speak at dinner on the basis for community growth. Telling why certain towns grow large while others become satellites to them, Dr. Beggs will relate the growth to a community's business interests. Senator Hugh Butler and Representative Carl Curtis will also speak, and J. E. Curtiss will preside.

Graduate Exams Deadline Oct. 9

Registration for graduate record exams will close at noon Thursday, Oct. 9, Prof. Henry M. Cox, director of the bureau of instructional research, said Tuesday.

The exams are open to seniors and graduate students and will be given Monday, Oct. 27 and Oct. 28. Applications should be made at Prof. Cox's office in the administration annex. A $5 fee is required of all registrants.

A previous announcement that registration would open Thursday was erroneous.

Barbs to Hold 'Hello Dance' At Union Friday

The Hello Dance, one of the most important social events of the year for unaffiliated students, will be held Friday, October 10 in the Student Union ballroom from 9 to 12 p. m.

Representatives from the independent groups and co-op houses on campus will be present. Entertainment and refreshments will be provided. The "Hello Girl" will be presented at 11 p. m.

Tickets are on sale at the Union Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday and at the door, 40c a single. Come stag or bring a date.

Music Recital Will Feature Voice, Piano

The second senior recital in the weekly Wednesday afternoon series will feature Jacqueline King, soprano, Gwendolyn Taylor, pianist, and Ray Schaumburg, tenor, at 4 p. m. in Temple Theater. Jeannette Dolezal and Dorothy Taylor will accompany the soloists.

Opening the program with a group of varied numbers, Miss King will sing German, Italian and American songs, ranging from Mozart to Richard Hageman. For her operatic selection, she has chosen the aria from Puccini's "La Tosca."

A member of University Singers like the other two soloists, Miss Taylor will play an impressionistic picture of the west wind by Debussy and a ballade by Chopin. Songs by Brahms and Klemm and an opera aria comprise Schaumburg's group.

He will sing "The Flower Song" from Bizet's "Carmen" to close the program.

Open without charge to the public, the complete program includes:

- Deh vieni, non tardar..... Mozart
- Der Nussbaum..... Schumann
- Die Forelle..... Schubert
- Vissi d'arte ("La Tosca")..... Puccini

- Mr. Schaumburg

Early Student Unions Started As Men's Debating Groups

The student union of today is a far cry from the first union of the nineteenth century.

Student unions started primarily as debating groups in England. A short time later, Harvard set up a student union, the first one in the United States. In the late 80's these unions were used as clubs and had expanded to include Brown University and Ohio State. The clubs were for men students only.

Now the unions have become a community recreational center for all students matriculated in the university or college. In 1940 there were 145 college union buildings.

Convention.

The Association of College Unions gives national scope to college unions. The association has officers and holds annual convention meetings. It provides a consulting architect to schools planning unions. This avoids "million dollar mistakes" made when unions have been planned and built without assistance from a competent architect. An exhaustive research is carried on by these architects in New York.

At Nebraska, election to the union board presupposes familiarity with college unions. Each board member is chairman of a certain phase of the work and has assistants under him. Students aid in the direction of the union and are

Dillard Accepts Journalism Date Editorialist Able to Appear At Annual Awards Banquet

Irving Dillard, past national president of Sigma Delta Chi, and D. R. Fitzpatrick, St. Louis Post-Dispatch cartoonist, will speak at the annual fall journalism awards dinner Thursday, Oct. 9, Dr. W. F. Swindler, school of journalism head, announced Tuesday.

Innocents Will Revive Custom Of Dinner Visits

The Innocents' tradition of dining as a group at organized residence houses was revived by the society's acceptance Monday of a dinner invitation to the Sigma Phi Epsilon house Wednesday, Oct. 15.

Tentative invitations from 12 other fraternities have been received by Stan Johnson, Innocents president. Additional dates will be scheduled as invitations are received. Johnson stated that he hoped the society would have the opportunity to meet with all major groups on the campus before Homecoming weekend.

Alumni members and faculty advisors will address the houses visited as part of the Innocents' program this year to stimulate the Cornhusker spirit. Among those speaking will be Ellsworth DuTeau, former secretary of the Alumni association; Bill Day, president of the Innocents Alumni association; Col. C. J. Frankforter, and Professor E. F. Schramm, both faculty advisors of the Innocents.

The visits, last conducted in 1942, according to Johnson, give new students interested in an activity a chance to meet the Innocents who are leaders in organizations.

Scientists Discuss 'Heredity Puzzle'

One of the greatest achievements of science in the present century is the solution of major problems in the "puzzle of heredity," Dr. T. M. Sonneborn, Indiana University zoologist said in addressing members of Sigma Xi.

Dr. Sonneborn traced the steps in solving the problems, and pointed out that once laws of heredity were established students of heredity could turn their minds to other related problems.

Explaining plasmagones, Dr. Sonneborn said that they are revolutionizing modern concepts in genetics and have raised a whole series of puzzling questions.

The possibility that Dillard might be unable to appear was removed Monday when Dillard notified Dr. Swindler that both he and Fitzpatrick had obtained accommodations aboard the Post-Dispatch private airplane.

Illini Man

A university of Illinois graduate, Dillard has been writing Post-Dispatch editorials for about 15 years. In the war he served with the Allied Military Government in Germany, and he has been a contributing editor of the Dictionary of American Biography.

Banquet plans include awarding of gold keys bearing the school of journalism seal to five second-year journalism students who made high grades in their freshman year.

SDX Professionals

Another feature of the program this fall will be the formal installation of a Nebraska professional chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, men's journalism honorary. The undergraduate chapter was revived last year after wartime suspension, and the state professional chapter will be made up of alumni who are now actively practicing newspaper people.

Banquet tickets are being sold for $1.25 by members of Sigma Delta Chi and Theta Sigma Phi, women's journalism honorary. The banquet is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Thursday in Union parlors ABC.

Ag College Exec Board Plans for Dec. Convocation

A new feature to appear on Ag campus this year will be an all-Ag honors convocation to be held some time in December. Ag Exec Board is sponsoring the affair and no definite date has been set.

In order that all students deserving such recognition may be acknowledged, it has been requested that all sophomores with an average of 80 or above and all juniors and seniors with an average of 85 or above register with Miss Wheeler in Room 108 of Ag Hall. The registration will be carried out on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week between the hours of 8 a. m. and 5 p. m.

The fact that students register will not insure their appearance on the Honor Roll but it is from this group of students that the selections will be made. All eligible students are urged to register early to facilitate plans for the convocation.

Parents Honored Iowa State Test

AMES, Ia.—When Nebraska's gigantic Cornhuskers invade Clyde Williams Field here Saturday, it will be for more than just another football game.

It will be Parents' Day, "Olympic Contribution Game," and the first home Big Six game of the season.

The parents of the nearly 10,000 Iowa State students have all been asked to be present. The parents of the players will be guests of the athletic council and will be seated in a special section at the game.

Swindler Writes On Law of Press

"Bibliography of Law on Journalism," written by Dr. William F. Swindler, director of the school of journalism, was published this month in New York by the Columbia University Press.

Included in the volume is a bibliographic essay and more than 1,100 annotated references to books, pamphlets, theses and periodical articles on the subject published in the English language during the last century.

Wirths Set Up Ag Scholarship Memorial Fund

A $1,500 scholarship fund has been established in memory of Lt. Kenneth B. Wirth by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Wirth of Dunbar, and by his widow, Mrs. Eleanor C. Wirth of Lincoln, it was announced Tuesday by Perry Branch, secretary-director of the University of Nebraska Foundation.

Lt. Wirth, missing in action after an air force mission over New Guinea in October, 1944, was presumed dead in March, 1946.

The fund will provide a scholarship of $150 each academic year for junior and senior men students in the College of Agriculture who possess scholastic ability, good citizenship and character and promise of success.

Recipients will be selected by the agriculture college scholarship committee, assisted by Dr. H. C. Filley, head of the rural economics department.

In a statement to the press Mr. and Mrs. Wirth said it was their feeling that this memorial would be more satisfactory than any other form it could take. They expressed hope that many worthy young people attached to the College of Agriculture would be able to participate in its provisions.

Farm Magazine Stresses Need For Education

"Is college practical" is the title of the feature on the relative merits of education for farming which appears in the October issue of Successful Farming, popular rural magazine.

Betty Camp, editorial assistant of the magazine, wrote the article after a visit to Ag campus last spring. Complete with pictures, the story is another in a series which has to do with college education for a farming career.

Miss Camp used for concrete examples two students enrolled in the college and followed them through a day's activities on the campus. Her subjects were Freshmen Maurine Steyer, of Exeter and Norman Reynolds, of Lexington.

In the story, Miss Camp gives her readers a fairly complete idea of life on the Ag campus. Various departments are reviewed, including both Ag and Home Ec courses. Timely shots of Norm and Maurine doing typical campus activities add to the attractiveness of the feature.

Miss Camp concludes that while college is not the answer for every farmer, many benefits are to be derived from attending an ag school such as Nebraska's in the way of making farming a more enjoyable profession and the farmer a better informed individual.
