Improvements . . .

Last semester and in previous semesters much adverse comment has been leveled at the Student Council, centering around the actual worthiness of the organization, as it was being administrated. In some instances council members themselves admitted the futility of attempting to give student government to the campus with the limited powers delegated them while at other times their wrath displayed their displeasure with the charges.

Although the current semester is still in its comparative infancy, the Student Council apparently isn't waiting to begin functioning—as has been the precedent. Who or what "shotgunned" the organization into action remains a mystery but from this angle it assumes the proportion of a needed shot-in-the-arm.

Dale Ball and his Improvements committee apparently aren't waiting for grass to grow under motionless feet. Not only have they outlined several improvements which are needed, but in addition, they plan a campus-wide poll for more ideas. Now is the time for the students to do their part and help the organization which is their channel of liaison with the administration.

If the organization bogs down again this year, then it isn't even worth the activity points attributed to its members. Unless the Council accepts the reins of government and exercises its authority as the official representation for some 10,000 students then why not abandon the idea, altogether? If, however, it swings into full scale action, as it appears to be doing, then the Daily Nebraskan pledges complete support.

The action of Improvements committee has already made it tough for the multitude of other committees the Council embraces, but such a stimulating ingredient has been needed for many moons. To repeat, it's early but it still looks like a "new deal" in student government. If it's true, let us be the first to congratulate the Council, if not . . . well, we'll wait and see if the work of one chairman and one committee isn't what has been lacking in the past.

Letterip

To the Student Body:

The Innocents and Mortar Boards, university senior honorary societies, having met in joint meeting, wish to announce to all students that we have voted to give our endorsement and support to the National Students Association.

Believing it to be an organization worthy of the support of the entire university, we wholeheartedly recommend that all students take an active part in furthering its aims and aiding it in carrying out its proposed national program.

The Innocents Society
The Mortar Board Society
Black Masque Chapter.

Ed. Note: Immediately following the presentation of the National Students Association's agenda to the Student Council this week, The Daily Nebraskan will carry a series of articles informing the student body as to the makeup, aims and plans of the NSA.

Letter to the Editor:

This is a call to have every student-veteran or faculty member, of voting age, to register with the election commissioner's registrars now in the Love Library.

About the only thing nowadays that the soaring high prices haven't affected here in the U.S. for an ex-G.I. is his right to vote.

That "right to vote" is one of the few ways through which the average ex-soldier, sailor, marine has to fight back at high prices. He can help turn out of office congressmen and senators who have continuously voted for legislation which has helped create this upward spiral in prices.

Most of the more than 6,000 veteran-students on the campus will still be attending the university next spring and fall when the national elections will be held throughout the country. Few will take time out to write home for ballots, thus few veterans will be able to have a voice in the selection of persons who seek our highest offices.

Therefore, as a sort of last call, we urge that all veterans register with the registrars in the Love Library in order to vote in Lincoln and out-state Nebraska. The registrars from the city's election commissioner will be on hand both on WEDNESDAY at the Love Library and on THURSDAY at the Agriculture building on the Ag Campus.

Everyone over 21 years of age, both students and faculty members, can register for voting regardless of how long they have been in the state or county.

One day, according to Election Commissioner Raymond Frohn, is long enough to be in the state in order to register. The six months requirement, according to Frohn, refers only to voting.

Out-of-state veterans attending the university should remember that the actions of Senators Wherry and Butler and Nebraska's four representative affect them as well as native Nebraskans, and thus should take part in either defeating these men or re-electing them.

We urge all veteran students to register.

PAUL SCOTT, Vice-chairman of University of Nebraska Young Democrats Organization.

Crossfire

By Norm Leger

And then there's the wisecracker who approached us with, "You're a Daily Nebraskan communist, aren't you?" To which we replied, "No, socialist, and that's a pretty poor pun."

Hip, Hip

Hooray and Hallelujah! If yesterday's lead story in the Daily Nebraskan can serve as a reliable indication, the student council may do something this year other than perpetuate itself, or revise the constitution. Get enough of these council committees working and doing something constructive, perhaps the council will be able to redeem itself after getting a black name last spring for dealing brashly in dirty politics rather than in council duties. At the time, as a Letterip expressed it, redemption could be in only one form: "That is by mass resignation." Well, time and elections will tell whether or not such a drastic step should have been taken.

Question on Quotas

To May Wherry, Roland Bruntz, Jack McCullen and others who flatly oppose an increase in immigration quotas, as revealed by yesterday's poll, let us pose the question, "Then what should be done with the remaining DP's who haven't been aided by the IRO, many of whom fought valiantly during the war against the enemy that was ours?" Sure, bringing in these immigrants would have its disadvantages, and might compel us to deal with a few new problems, but we kind of suspect things would work out better with them (a portion of them, anyway) in a country that has never experienced a bombing and still has enough to eat than in the devastated and poverty-stricken areas where they are now. Okay, so we sound preachy, but hang it, it's about time we started shouldering instead of stuffing some of our international responsibilities.

"House of the Week"

Incidentally, if there are no objections to our mentioning the blood list again, we'd like to cite Terrace Hall as the "House of the week." Ten of the coeds living there have volunteered to donate blood for the World Student Service Fund.
