

Sickle the Cyclones

Shouts of "Sickle the Cyclones" and the tune of "Rally Huskers, Rally One and All" will summon university students tonight to the second rally of the year which will demonstrate Husker enthusiasm before the Iowa State-Nebraska game tomorrow.

Highlight of the rally will be the Harvey Brothers drawing which will determine the winners of the two free tickets for the "Cornhusker Tour" to the Notre Dame-Nebraska game Oct. 18. Miss Phyllis Harris, the 1846-47 Pep Queen, will draw the two winning numbers. Holders of the winning numbers need not be present in order to receive the prizes.

Promptly at 7 p. m. the pep band will lead the procession of Corn Cobs, Tassels, cheerleaders and pepsters thru fraternity and sorority row on its way to the coliseum where the drawing will take place. Yell King Martin Pesek will lead the student group in several Cornhusker cheers and songs. From a container holding well over a thousand cards obtained from men students who registered at Harvey's for the drawing, Miss Harris will take two numbers to be claimed by the winners.

Tonight's rally precedes the first away from home game of the year, which starts a series of four consecutive games to be played out of the state.

The Huskers return to Memorial Stadium November 8 for the Homecoming game with Kansas university.

Pesek stated that he hoped tonight's rally would be even a bigger one than last week's. In a statement to the Daily Nebraskan, he said, "I'd like to thank the student body for their fine spirit shown last week at both the rally and the game. I also express my appreciation to the organized houses for the reception that they gave to the cheerleaders who went to the various houses to teach the students new yells and the chant. tative plans for the formation in Nebraska of a professional Sigma Delta Chi group to work in conjunction with the undergraduate group on campus.

YM to Present Classic Russian Drama Tonight

"Crime and Punishment," a French language film of the great Russian novel to be presented by the YM tonight at 8 p. m. in the Temple Theater, is a drama of a man's four-fold personality, produced in a 19th century St. Petersburg setting.

The central character, Raskolnikov, is a sensitive student at the outset, happy and confident. With changing economic conditions and as a neurosis develops within him, he lives as a half-starved intellectual. Now a psychopath, he leads a twisted existence patterned after that of Napoleon, his hero. As the story progresses to the last phase of his life he becomes a child-like martyr, radiant in redemption.

In the same year that Pierre Chenal's French version of the classic Dostoyevsky novel was produced, Hollywood released its version. Comparing the two versions, Helen Mary Hayes of the Lincoln Journal writes, "This critic remembers not one person in the American cast, or anything else about the picture except the slickness of the settings and properties. Probably nobody who saw the French version has forgotten the superb acting of the late Harry Bauer as the police commissioner."

Tickets may be purchased at the box office before the performance or at the Union and YMCA offices. Price is 50 cents.
