Huskers Cheered on Way

BY RALPH STEWART
(Sports Editor)

Nebraskas tried but unproved "T" performers, set for Saturday's clash with Notre Dame's famous "T" experts, entrained Thursday night amid the cheers of Cornhusker student rooters for South Bend, home of the vaunted Fighting Irish.

Coach Bernie Masterson's Scarlet gridders, exhibiting a high degree of team spirit and will to win, wound up practice sessions at Memorial Stadium Thursday afternoon by running through pass plays and concentrating on an aerial defense against the pass-minded Irish.

The Huskers went through the final drills Thursday without pads.

Huskers Arrive Friday

Scheduled to arrive in South Bend Friday morning at 11:00, Nebraska will get a warm-up workout at the Notre Dame Stadium Friday afternoon.

The Husker coaching staff has been drilling the 38-player Scarlet traveling squad primarily on defensive maneuvers all week to check the flipping of All-American Johnny Lujack.

But the Huskers haven't devoted all week to defensive tactics. Purdue's 22-7 losing struggle to the Mighty Irish indicated that the powerful Notre Dame forward wall could be penetrated. And Nebraska ball carriers are set to live the heretofore inept Husker running attack.

The Nebraska forwards will hold a slight two pound weight advantage over Frank Leahy's line-men.

Although the South Bend crew has racked up most of its yardage via the air route, several of the nation's most dangerous ball toters in the persons of Coy McGee, Emil Sitko, Terry Brennan & Co., dot its backfield roster.

Irish Favored 42 Points

Playing at home for the first time this season, the Irish have been rated an overwhelming 42 point pre-game favorite, largest

To Revive 'Husker Spirit'...

'Meet the Team' Rally Plans Made for Monday Morning

Win, lose or draw, the Cornhusker football team will step off the train from South Bend Monday morning to be greeted by what promises to be the most spirited station rally in recent years.

The cheering squad, led by Norm Leger, all Corn Cobs and Tassels and pep band will hustle hundreds of students to the C. B. & Q. station Monday morning at 9:15 to welcome their football team back from the land of the Leahymen.

Chancellor Gustavson himself will be on hand to welcome home Coach Bernie Masterson, and Coach Masterson and game captain Tom Novak will speak for the team.

Tentative plans to drive the 'Huskers players in open convertibles in a triumphal parade from the depot to the campus via the "O" street route are being drawn up by the Daily Nebraskan in conjunction with the junior and senior Chambers of Commerce.

The "Meet the Team" rally is being sponsored by the Daily Nebraskan as an attempt to revive the Cornhusker fighting spirit on the part of the students, an esprit de corps that waned considerably after reaching a high mark in the 1941 Rose Bowl season. "Meet the Team" can be a very effective demonstration that student indifference and pessimism is dead, and that the traditional Cornhusker spirit is returned.

Altho Dean T. J. Thompson refused to grant a school-wide dismissal of Monday morning 9 o'clocks, he indicated that dismissal of individual classes would be left to departmental discretion. In an attempt to get 9 o'clocks dismissed, or at least to forego roll-taking, The Daily Nebraskan in-

Swing Concert Here October 31

Norman Granz' 'Jazz at the Philharmonic' Features Everything From Blues to Be-bop

"Jazz at the Philharmonic" will make its only Lincoln concert appearance of the season, Friday, Oct. 31, 8:30 p. m., at the University Coliseum, sponsored by the Student Union Activities committee. Norman Granz' show features some of the world's leading jazz artists in a program ranging from blues to swing and be-bop.

Instrumental and vocal virtuosos will star in the production which brings jazz to the concert stage. The individualistic style of the performers make them experts in their particular fields. Included in the show will be Coleman Hawkins, tenor saxophonist; Bill Harris, former Woody Herman star on trombone; Flip Phillips, also a prominent Herman alumnus, and Howard McGhee, a leading exponent of the be-bop, or modern, school of jazz.

Helen Humes, blues vocalist, who was featured with the Count Basie band for several years; Ray Brown, bassist, fresh from the Dizzy Gillespie band; Hank Jones, pianist, and J. C. Heard, formerly with Cab Calloway, on the drums, are other artists who will offer the best in jazz on the Student Union presentation of Jazz at the Philharmonic.

Granz, who has been tabbed the "Barnum of Jazz," by Down Beat's editors, originated "Jazz at the Philharmonic" in 1944. Since then, the show has grown into the nation's most popular jazz concert group. For the last two years it has been the only jazz group invited to appear on the Carnegie Pop Concert series. Prior to their Lincoln appearance, the show has been a sell-out in New York, Philadelphia, Detroit, Toronto, and Boston.

In 1944, Granz, together with Gjon Mili, made a short, "Jammin' the Blues," for Warner Brothers, which was an academy award nominee for the best motion picture short of the year. At present he is working on a second jazz film short and a jazz ballet which he hopes to debut in New York before Christmas.

Tickets for the Lincoln concert are on sale at the Student Union and Walt's Music Store.

'Ask Marshall To Speak Here' Says Careker

Laying down a challenge to the entire university, KOLN radio commentator George Careker, a university graduate student, asked in blunt terms over his nightly broadcast why the university is not making plans to invite Secretary of State George C. Marshall to speak at a convocation here.

Careker, former member of the Office of War Information, stated, "there is no doubt about the fact that Secretary of State Marshall would accept speaking engagements all over the country and if I were a member of the faculty or administration of the University of Nebraska or a public official of the city of Lincoln I should invite the secretary to come here to the bread basket of the state department's foreign policy and state the department's case."

Leave Boston.

Basing his entire broadcast on Marshall's recent speech in Boston and on the Marshall plan in Europe and the United States, Careker asked, "why not invite Marshall to desert his Boston rostrum and speak before a university of Nebraska convocation?"

The soft-spoken, British accented commentator made it clear that he felt it to be a necessity that Marshall be invited to speak to university students here.

Total Enrollment Reaches 10,100

University enrollment reached 10,100, according to final registration figures released Friday by Dr. G. W. Rosenlof, registrar and director of admissions.

This includes students on all campuses of the university.
