

Game Story . . .

ND 17 yard stripe while the Huskers rolled to four successive first downs.

But this first sign of Husker offensive strength wilted as a fierce Irish forward wall held Moomey for no gain on two successive line smashes and swarmed Little Del Wiegand twice while the workhorse quarterback vainly sought open receivers.

The Irish took over and the Nebraskans could not generate a serious threat throughout the remainder of the contest.

Novak Individual Star.

If one individual standout could be declared from either the Cornhusker crew or the Notre Dame unit, the honor would rest on the shoulders of Novak. The tireless bone-crushing defensive star was all over the field for the Huskers continually rocking Irish ball carriers.

Cletus Fischer, Husker backfield spark, turned in a strong backfield performance along with Mueller and Wiegand, who shouldered the entire Husker quarterbacking assignment with the exception of two plays.

For the Irish it was simply a case of two much all-around talent, John Panelli, starting full-back, ripped through the Husker defense for the first Irish touchdown. Mike Swistowicz carried the brunt of the attack while ramming over for the second Notre Dame tally.

Little Coy McGee, elusive Irish speedster, slipped through the Husker defense for 13 yards for ND's third period score.

All-American Johnny Lujack gave way to reserve quarterback Frank Tripucka throughout most of the second half. And the Lujack understudy responded with a tremendous passing exhibition climaxed by a touchdown flip to End Dough Winbright in the final stanza.

The injured Emil Sitko returned to action late in the contest but showed no apparent ill-effects as he romped through a tired Husker crew for the last Irish tally.

Husker Forwards Strong

In the Husker forward wall End Ralph Damkroger, Tackles Charlie Toogood and Carl Samuelson and Guard Fred Lorenz turned in top rate performances matching the display of All-American George Connor, tackle and ND captain.

Representatives of the Nebraska student body presented the Cornhusker squad with a large red and white floral "N" before the game. Across the "N" was a banner which read "We're Behind You—The Student Body."

Harriet Quinn of Gothenburg, president of Tassels, women's pep organization, presented the floral piece to Game-Captain Novak.

Turkey Race Top Intramural Event

The annual cross country turkey race will get top billing on this week's intramural athletic program.

The race over a 3/8 mile route will be run Thursday starting at 4:30 p. m. The race will start in front of the east stadium and will end west of the coliseum on the athletic field.

Intramural table tennis matches continue daily action this week.

Pioneer Co-ops meets Kappa Sigma Monday and the Phi Kappa Psi paddle wielders play Sigma Phi Epsilon Tuesday afternoon.

Sig Eps Take Final Grid Win

Sigma Phi Epsilon intramural gridders wound up league play Friday night in the only contest at the Coliseum layout by dropping Zeta Beta Tau by a 6-0 count.

A Skotchdopole-Fowler aerial accounted for the lone Sig Ep tally.

The Sig Eps concluded play with three wins and three losses. Newan Club won a 2-0 forfeit decision from Huskerville.

Unbeaten Beta Theta Pi will meet once-beaten Phi Gamma Delta in a feature battle at Ag campus Monday night.
