Chancellor Tells About Atom Usage

"We could have practical atomic power in a year, according to many noted scientists, if they were allowed to go ahead," Chancellor R. G. Gustavson said before a meeting of 200 people who attended Ladies' Night at the Engineers' Club of Lincoln in the Union ballroom last night.

The military, with its "crystalized thinking," was the only group that doubted the practicality of the development of atomic research, the chancellor said, and he skillfully called attention to the fact that "it was this same military that doubted the practicality of the atomic bomb."

Chancellor Lectures.

Introducing his observations on atomic energy, Gustavson delivered a basic and complete lecture on the theory of atomic research and development. He traced the important advancements made in the study of isotopes, atomic weight, and radioactivity. Using a blackboard to illustrate his explanations, Gustavson showed the applications of the uses of radioactivity in medicine, describing how science is gaining a greater working knowledge of cancer from discoveries made possible through radioactive elements.

Prometheus II.

Stating that "atomic energy is the greatest discovery since man discovered fire," and that "radioactivity places in the hands of scientists the most powerful tool since the discovery of the microscope," Chancellor Gustavson pointed out that by means of this tremendous new power, man is now able to make important advances in the field of medicine and in all of the scientific fields, which will add to the general advancement of civilization.

House plays the winner of yesterday's game between Kappa Kappa Gamma No. 1 and Alpha Xi Delta No. 2.

All participants in the WAA competition must hand in health permits by Nov. 1.

Chancellor Will Discuss Benefits of AUF Drive

Noted Liberal Will Speak at Convocation

Adamic Keynotes Tolerance in U.S.

Louis Adamic, noted author and champion of civil liberties, will address an all-university convocation in the Union ballroom Thursday morning at 11, according to Prof. Carl M. Arndt, chairman of the convocation committee.

"Tolerance Is Not Enough" is the provocative theme which Adamic has chosen to discuss before university students. Background material for his topic is certain to include information gathered during a recent three-year project which the writer undertook. A three-year Carnegie grant-in-aid enabled him to complete a series of three books dealing with the contribution to American life by many years of immigration from foreign countries.

Immigrated at 14.

Adamic himself came to the United States from his native Yugoslavia at the age of 14. Then followed a rapid succession of jobs in which he dug ditches, loaded freight, wove textiles, waited on tables—and learned English as fast as he could.

All the while, Adamic was looking around his adopted country. When his first book was published in 1931, it showed he didn't like all that he saw. Entitled "Dynamite," it was a record of violence in the American labor movement.

Noted Author.

Since then, Adamic has written such books as "Laughing in the Jungle," which won him a Guggenheim Fellowship to spend a year in Yugoslavia; "The Native's Return," a Book-of-the-Month Club selection based on that trip, and "My America."

In addition to his books, author Adamic has made frequent contributions to such publications as the Saturday Evening Post, Readers' Digest and Harper's.

All-Nebraska Art Exhibit Opens Today in Morrill Hall

Two galleries of watercolors, oils, drawings and sculpture, that form the 11th annual All-Nebraska Art exhibition which opens in Morrill Hall today, constitute the third of three art groups showing concurrently. Sponsored jointly by the university and the Lincoln Artists' Guild, the exhibit displays the type of art now produced in the state.

Open To All Nebraskans.

Entries for the show, which continues through Sunday, Nov. 9, were open to artists in any part of the state and to native or former Nebraskans now living elsewhere. "Though there is wide use of Nebraska subject matter in the paintings," said Dwight Kirsch, director of university art galleries, "much of the work was done in summer vacation spots from Maine to California."

Many indoor subjects, such as still life figures and portraits are included, too. "On the whole," added Kirsch, "the regional flavor is not the strongest feature of these Nebraska paintings, certainly not in the style of execution, which is extremely varied." Several Nebraska artists who have

Second University Convo Scheduled in Union Today

Chancellor R. G. Gustavson will speak on the current All University Fund drive now in progress on the campus in the Union ballroom this morning at 10 a. m.

The speech, in behalf of the World Student Service in connection with the AUF, will mark the second all-university convocation of the present school year. It will also be the first speech by the chancellor before the students since the opening of the fall term.

Classes Not Excused.

T. J. Thompson, dean of student affairs, said Monday that no provision for excusing of regular classes had been made.

The purpose of the drive is to raise funds for foreign students and school facilities. It aims at improving student and faculty conditions in war-torn countries, with an eye at inducing higher enrollment in these schools. Facilities at many schools, especially in Europe, are in a poor condition, and it is hoped that the AUF drive will greatly alleviate the situation.

Quota.

The quota for the United States is $1,000,000 dollars, while the rest of the world is expected to produce an equal amount. The goal of the AUF here is to solicit $2 from each student.

Regents Boost Tuition

Semester Fees Upped to $75

Decision to assess a uniform tuition fee of $75 on all students was made Monday by the board of regents. Beginning the second semester of the current school year, all students carrying 12 or more hours will pay a flat fee of $75.

The tuition hike was prompted by a $129,000 deficit in the salary fund for non-academic employees, Comptroller John K. Selleck said. Salary increases voted by the state legislature last spring went primarily to faculty members.

The tuition boost will total some $200,000 in increased fees per school year, Selleck said.

Tuition costs at the university are currently lower than at most schools in this area, Chancellor R. G. Gustavson told the regents. The new $75 tuition will include all fees and assessments, except books, he said.

$10 Per Student.

Selleck said the tuition hike would average "about $10 per student per semester." He said that "about 15 percent" of students who are now paying more than $75, would benefit by the ruling. He did not say what percentage are paying less than $75.

The last tuition increase was voted by the regents in 1946. It raised the costs from $2.50 to $3 per credit hour.

Concurrently with the tuition assessment the regents voted a 10 percent wage increase for the 1,000 non-academic employees, effective Feb. 1. Better paying jobs elsewhere have lured many university employees away, Selleck said.

Sample Fees

Sample college fees under the new lump sum plan will set the total cost for a semester at an average of $75 for a full course of 12 hours. This fee will include matriculation, registration, Union, The Daily Nebraskan, medical charges, graduation and course fees, but will not include applied music, practice room and military uniform fees.

The college of dentistry fee will be $350 per semester and the college of medicine fee will be $175 per semester. The Wednesday edition of The Daily Nebraskan will carry a complete list of fees, both resident and non-resident, for all colleges in addition to a breakdown of charges to students carrying less than a full load.

Palladian announced its pledges for the first six weeks of school. They are: Bob Whitman, Bob Craig, Wayne Swift, Louella Brunken, Lorraine Vesah, Rodney Moss, Louise Metzger, Barbara Meyers, George Pierce, Bob Ros-enquist, John Taylor.
