

Beta Theta Pi Nips Delts, 6-0; Gains IM Finals

Beta Theta Pi moved into the final act of the intramural football play Monday night with a 6-0 victory over Delta Tau Delta on the Coliseum grounds.

Rod Emmett sparked the Beta gang to victory with a 60-yard touchdown scamper in the second half.

After Delta Tau Delta staged a fierce goal line stand, Emmett fielded a Delt punt and streaked up the sideline behind effective blocking for 60 yards and six points.

Sharp Hurried.

The Betas rushed the passing efforts of Jim Sharp, sharpshooting Delt aerialist. Strong line play was the keynote of play of both teams.

The Beta Theta Pi crew rolled into scoring territory in the first half on a long pass from Emmett to George Peter, but the Delts stiffened and held for four downs.

Dick Means put the Betas back into scoring range in the second half with a pass interception, but once again the Delt forwards held only to have Emmett return a punt for the winning touchdown.

In a playoff for fifth place Beta Sigma Psi outlasted Kappa Sigma in an overtime contest to cop honors with a 1-0 decision.

Finals Start at 4:30.

Tuesday night's intramural finals will start at 4:30 with the Betas clashing with the Alpha Tau Omega squad for the title. Sigma Alpha Epsilon will tangle with the Delts in a battle for third place honors in the interfraternity league.

The championship match pits two unbeaten clubs. The ATO crew rolled through League I play with six straight victories while the Betas racked up six wins in League III action. The Taus edged the Sig Alphas 14-13 in their only playoff tilt while moving into the finals. Monday's win was the Betas' first playoff clash.

PLOTS REVENGE — Coach George Sauer of the Kansas Jayhawks plots revenge as he readies his Jayhawkers for the Nebraska Cornhuskers' Homecoming celebration at Memorial Stadium Saturday. The KU mentor saw his gridders fall into a tie for the Big Six conference crown last year as a result of a 16-14 loss to Coach Bernie Masterson's Huskers in the first meeting of the two rival coaches.

Coach Good Drills Cagers

Although the season's opener is still five weeks away, 32 University of Nebraska basketball candidates continue to drill daily under the direction of Coach Harry Good.

Six major and three minor letter winners form the nucleus of this year's team. The returning veterans are Joe Brown, Bob Cerv, Rodney Cox, Claude Retherford, Dick Schleiger, Paul Shields, all major lettermen; and Ken Anderson, Anton Lawry and Dick Srb, minor letter winners.

Neal Mosser, Hebron; Jim Sandstedt, Omaha; Bus Whitehead, Scottsbluff; and Don Barry, Norfolk, have reported, adding height to the squad. Mosser and Sandstedt were sidelined last winter because of injuries while Whitehead, a 6' 8 1/2" center, and Barry sat out the year.

Good lists five members of last season's B team as outstanding material. They are Bill Denker, Tom Milliken, Fred Simpson, Bill Saler and Jim Van Burgh.

The Cornhuskers open a 24-game slate Dec. 8 against Purdue in the Nebraska coliseum. Teams added to the card this year are Purdue, Colorado A & M and Colorado at home; Stanford, San Jose State, Nevada, and Colorado State away.

Mizzou Cops Big Six Lead

Missouri university gained sole leadership of Big Six football race Saturday as they trounced Nebraska's Cornhuskers, 47-6, at Columbia. Kansas and Oklahoma, both undefeated but once tied, stayed in the race by downing Kansas State and Iowa State, respectively.

The Nebraska Cornhuskers traveled to Columbia Saturday to receive one of the worst peace-time shellackings in Nebraska history. The Tigers took a 21-0 lead in the first half and scored in all periods. They added insult to injury by using second and third stringers for three scores in the last quarter. The Huskers showed only one good play, a 45-yard touchdown run by Captain Cletus Fischer in the third period.

Cyclones Scare O U

Iowa State's Cyclones gave Oklahoma a rough afternoon Saturday before succumbing to the Sooners, 27-9. Two Cyclone errors and a pair of Sooner break-away plays iced the game for Oklahoma. However, the score did not show the true nature of the game. Statistics showed that the Cyclones racked up 13 first downs while the Sooners were gaining only four. Iowa State led, 3-0, at the end of the first frame and finally pushed a touchdown across in the last quarter. The loss was the sixth of the season for the Cyclones.

Kansas State suffered its worst defeat of the football rivalry Saturday as Kansas university smothered the Wildcats, 55-0, at Lawrence. The Jayhawks won the annual classic before a record crowd of 20,033 fans. The victory kept Kansas in the loop's undefeated but tied class and was Kansas State's 23rd straight loss.

Husker Lineup Juggled; Novak Appointed Captain

First steps on the road to recovery after Saturday's dismal showing against the Missouri Tigers were taken Monday night by Coach Bernie Masterson as the Huskers began the long week of preparation for their homecoming clash with Coach George Sauer's Kansas Jayhawks.

Masterson announced two changes in his starting lineup and named Tom Novak game captain.

Hard-running Jim "Squat" Myers, triple-threat York high school star, received Masterson's nod to open in All-Big Six Dick Hutton's left halfback spot and Gerald Jacupke, scrappy guard, was nominated for a starting guard assignment in place of veteran Gene Wilkins.

Novak Spark.

Novak's sterling defensive performances have earned him captaincy honors for the second time this season. It was the bone-crushing linebacker who captained the Huskers in a spirited exhibition against the touted Irish of Notre Dame two weeks ago.

The Scarlet gridders spent the largest portion of Monday night's practice session reviewing movies of last year's Kansas game and discussing play in Saturday's game with the Tigers. Light exercises and play reviews constituted the only outdoor workout for the Huskers.

Masterson's crew appeared in strong physical strength in spite of the beating at the hands of the Tigers. Ralph Damkroger, out of the Missouri test with an injured side, is being counted on for duty Saturday against the Hawks.

Prospects for a win over Sauer's crew have taken a hazy outlook. Kansas manhandled Kansas State 55-0 Saturday while the Huskers were absorbing their worst defeat of the peace-time football. And it was the same Kansas State crew that held Nebraska to a 14-7 victory only a week ago.

The Jayhawks are in a second place deadlock with Oklahoma with a tie apiece and will need a win to stay in the conference running, and they have a further incentive to win—atonement of last year's 16-14 loss to Nebraska, a defeat which forced them to split loop honors with Oklahoma.
