

The Last Word . . .

Rumor has it that all members of the history department faculty are back teaching history, having had their little fling at making some of their own, even if it was a back-firing manner. The Schuschnigg incident has lost its timeliness, consequently this will be THE famous last word and the affair will be forgotten hereafter.

While few persons objected to the stand of the department, many did register an objection to the manner in which they approached the subject of their objecting. After all gentlemen, the important part of the entire convocation was the fact that the students and members of the audience were afforded an opportunity to fire questions at a man whose pre-war political affiliations still remain questionable to many.

From this office, this campus and even this country, Central Europe is a long way off and the above mentioned question period partially bridged that gap. Those of us who can't see the logic in attempting to answer the questions of the world today by citing examples of the ancient Romans, attended that convocation. However, the group which had registered the original objection to the speaker was quite conspicuous by its silence and by its apparent absence.

This silence brought many back-of-the-hand snickers coupled with disgust over all the hullabaloo that was raised over nothing. Had the authors of the letter been present and verbally confronted the speaker with their questions, the audience might have been greatly enlightened. As it was, we heard but one side of the argument, which was the very thing that the history department was objecting to. How under the circumstances, could its stand be considered a valid one?

What could have been a real education for all, boomeranged and became a "now I'm mad so I'm taking my marbles and going home!" situation. At any rate it may have established a precedent. Henceforth it might be a good idea to speak when spoken to or maintain a very humble silence.

Dear Mr. Novotny:
Editor Daily Nebraskan:

In recent copies of the Daily Nebraskan have appeared stories concerning the Sadie Hopkins Hop to be presented this weekend, stories both effective and well-timed.

We should like to take this opportunity to point out, however, that this event, sponsored by the Union Activities committee and taking place in the Union ballroom Saturday evening, should not be confused with the BUM'S BALL. The BUM'S BALL, a hard times party, is being held at the College Activities Building of Ag College Friday, November 14, from 8:30 to 11:30 P. M. under the direction of the Un-affiliated Students Association.

The USA Council has planned the BUM'S BALL on a non-profit basis, as a service to all unaffiliated students on both campuses. Music will be provided by the Smith Warren orchestra; costume prizes will be awarded, and a variety program has been arranged.

While it is unfortunate that the two occasions have been scheduled during the same weekend, their similarity in intent and theme should not stand in the way of the success of both. However we feel that the differentiation should be made clear and that the BUM'S BALL should receive equal recognition in the Daily Nebraskan.

Thanking you for your co-operation in this matter, we are,
Sincerely,

MEMBERS OF THE USA COUNCIL

Straight Stuff

By Bill Wenk and Jim Sullivan

John Connelley has found the sure fire way to cut the ties with old gal-friends. It's painless—one of the brothers calls her up and asks for a date.

Messed up foursome at Alpha Phi open house Saturday—Norma Lee Stribling with ex-pinmate from Colorado, ex-boy friend from K. U., and current throb from N. U.

What's Developing?

Students in photography lab are griping. There are two darkrooms, but Jack Pesek and Dode Travis seem to keep one all to themselves.

Johnny Jones has decided yellow is not his color after an embarrassing "switcheroo" at the pike. He got involved in another "Pythagorean theorem." Donna Marsh is the "hypotenuse."

Clive Ostberg started throwing that ATO pin of his around Tuesday night and it ended up on Mimi Loomis. Nice catch, Mimi.

Duke Shumow's giving Sally Merer the big rush. Let's watch that couple.

Sweet Dreams

Buck Barger was seen out on his back porch at about 3 o'clock Sunday morning in deep reverie.

He couldn't have been thinking about anybody but Hattie.

Walt Dorothy and steady are touring Omaha Jewelry stores this week-end. Ring hunting?

Betty Guidinger's been having trouble keeping track of Bruce and Dee Villiers. She grabbed Dee when she had a date with Bruce and did the town.

Place Your Bets

Parlay Charley comes out of retirement to take all bets on ye annual bloody battle between the Rag and the Cornhusker.

Pharmacy Group To Hear Dretzka

Sylvester H. Dretzka, president of the American Pharmaceutical association, will address members and guests of the University of Nebraska student branch of association on Wednesday, November 19, at 7:30 p. m. in the Social Science auditorium.

James E. Dusenberry, Lincoln, president of the university student branch, said all pharmacists and others interested in the Lincoln area are invited to the meeting.

Kenton Plans Concerts Tour To Exhibit "Progressive Jazz"

BY STEVE SWARTZ.

Stan Kenton was here! Those few words are almost sufficient to describe Kenton and his band, one of the most thrilling aggregations of musicians yet to play this territory.

Stan, who justifiably calls this the greatest band he has yet organized, said "Although I hear the same numbers again and again, I get a new thrill each time."

Each section of the band from th rhythm to the brass, includes at least three outstanding soloists who are capable, in themselves, of making a great band out of any of the many mediocre bands of today. For example, the trumpet section is composed of five members, each one able to reach a note higher than the next, and all five outdoing the highest notes of the birds themselves.

Enjoy College Dances

Although Stan enjoys playing for the type of dance held at the Turnpike Friday night, he remarked that his main ambition is to make a success of his concert tour which he will start in the near future. He wants to get out of the ballrooms and present modern jazz to the average person. His plans include a tour of the major midwestern cities and perhaps even Europe.

In an interview with a Daily Nebraskan reporter he stated, "It's you college kids who will influence the trend of the music in the future. I think you will agree that the old jazz and jitterbug stuff is dead. I like be-bop and it will definitely influence the music of the future even as it is now influencing present day music. This music business is going to pop in a year or so." Stan went on, "and the fellows like Lombardo and Kaye are going to find themselves on the outside looking in."

Records Belong to Cowboys.

Stan expressed regret that, "the music business is mixed up, the records belong to cowboys like Tex Ritter."

The Kenton band bears out everyone of Stan's contentions; it is as modern as the new Studebaker and as thrilling as an airplane ride.

Early next year, Capitol will release, in album form, "The Prologue Suite" which Kenton recently recorded. It is in two movements, and the latest word in progressive jazz.

The band is as great as a band can be, and Stan, as great as a leader can be, left those who heard them with nothing to be desired in music and showmanship.

Hillbilly Hop Proclaimed This Friday

By Andy Tilly.

Mayor I. J. McGurgle has officially proclaimed the first annual Sadie Hawkins Hop! This high-falootin' affair that makes gals scream in delight and the best of the stronger sex turn pale and weak, is to take place on the Student Union Barnfloor about moonrise, Saturday night, Nov. 15.

Now there is a passel of you gals what ain't yet married around this community so dig up those short gingham dresses and get your man. Men, get out those repatched overalls and make yourselves available. It's open season, and every woman for herself!

Available Jones

Available Jones of the Dogpatch Union activities committee promises a gay time for all. Lonesome Polecat has a big pot of Kickapoo Joy Juice a'brewin' and the Yokum family is working from moonrise to sun-up putting a new roof on the Dogpatch Town Hall. All the Dog-patchers are digging out their glad rags and shining up their toe-nails for the event. Even Hairless Joe was so excited by all the goings on that he offered his beard to dust up the floor.

Dave Haun is taking time out from feudin' to furnish city music, so gals, get your dates and make plans for an evening of frolic-ing and fun amid baled hay and corn shocks on the Student Union Barnfloor.

When interviewed, Sadie said to give her best wishes to all the gals, and she hopes they are all in good running form, 'cause there will be games and races, and this is really the time for these gals to get their man. When questioned about any message she might have for the men, Sadie just sighed and looked at her track shoes with a gleam in her eye that would have put fear in the heart of the bravest wolf in Dog-patch.

According to Bryon Hooper, dance chairman, tickets will go on sale Wednesday afternoon at the Student Union. Admission price, is one dollar plus the revenue's tax.
