

NU Final Against Beavers

Lorenz, Wilkins, Jacupke Captains

This coming Saturday the Nebraska Cornhuskers will tread over the Memorial Stadium sod for the last time this year when they encounter the Oregon State Beavers in the final game of the season.

The Husker gridders will this Saturday try to give to Nebraska faithfuls their first home win of the year. Improvement in the play of the team has been coming along in fast style for the past three weeks, and in the past two games against Kansas and Oklahoma, victory was but a step away from reality.

The Oregon Staters are more on a level with the Huskers, and although they are rated fifth in the Pacific Coast League they promise to give Coach Lonie Stiner, a former Nebraskan, a showing of which he can be proud.

Seniors to Captain.

Captains for Saturday's contest will be seniors Gene Wilkins, Freddie Lorenz, and Gerald Jacupke. These three will be playing their last game in Cornhusker uniforms. Lorenz and Wilkins started the year as the first string guards with Jacupke close behind all season. In the Kansas game Jacupke hit his peak as he led Husker linemen, playing his best ball of the year. The loss of these three men will leave a big gap in the now-potent Husker line when next fall rolls around.

Six Ag Judges To Exposition

Nebraska livestock judging teams will swing into action for the second time this year in the 48th International Livestock Exposition and Horse Show to be held in Chicago Nov. 29 to Dec. 6.

M. A. Alexander, team coach, announced that the team would be composed of Dillard Huffaker, Broken Bow; Rudy Tomek, Table Rock; Ned Raun, Minden; Harold Clean, Ainsworth; Don Jensen, Newman Grove; and Richard Wahlstrom, Oakland.

Teams will be entered in meats, wool and livestock competition, in the three day judging contest to be held in conjunction with the annual show.

The International show is regarded highly in agricultural circles as being one of the three finest livestock expositions held in the United States," remarked Prof. Alexander. "The contest ordinarily attracts teams from most state colleges in the country."

Raun and Wahlstrom turned in outstanding performances in the American Royal contest at Kansas City which was held in late October. The team placed sixth in competition there.

Personal Background Lends Realism to Drama

If it's realism and authenticity that theater goers want, and the trend of the past two and a half decades has been in that direction, they will have to go no further than the Temple to find it. "Return to Surigao," university three act production scheduled for public performance on Dec. 4, is set in the Philippine Islands. The play's author and director, Clarence Flick, speech department instructor, spent several months in his army career on the island of badly, the bad aspects were the long hours of "waiting it out" and the diet. The food which they received consisted mainly of vegetables and rice, with very little meat.

Born in Manila in 1929 of American parents, Innis took his schooling at the Manila public high school. During the Japanese occupation of the islands, the Innis family was put into an internment camp where they were held for a period of three years.

The major plot of "Return to Surigao," is a romantic one, with a subplot with Philippine politics. In connection with Innis' work in the show, Flick stated, "His assistance with dialogue and his advice on customs and ways of life have been invaluable."

Tickets for the production which will be presented in the Temple Studio Theatre may be purchased at the Temple box office.

The committee plans to have this show every other Friday afternoon, in the Union ballroom. They also stated that if there was enough interest shown in the program, that sometime in January the show would be put on the air.

This talent show should be of special interest to many university students, since it is a good chance to become known on the campus, said Duane Lake, union director.

Don Rice and his Combo and the Deboniers are two of the many who have already registered for the first event, Lake announced.

Ag Junior Places High In Contest

Jack Baird, Ag College junior, returned late last week from Cincinnati, Ohio, where he was awarded second place in the annual essay contest sponsored by the student division of The American Society of Agronomy.

The title of Baird's composition was "How Nitrogen and Phosphorus Affect the Protein Content and Yield of Wheat." He received a medal and a cash award at a banquet honoring outstanding achievement in agronomy.

The contest is a feature of the agronomical society held for the purpose of encouraging research in the field of Agronomy. Essays for consideration must be written by students regularly enrolled in a state college. They must be at least 3,500 words in length and conform to a general topic assigned by the society.

This year's contest was the first to be held since the war forced its suspension in 1943. Students wishing to enter next year's competition should contact Dave Sanders at the Crops Laboratory.

AER Taps 4 Pledges

Initiation and pledging ceremonies were held by Alpha Epsilon Roe, national radio honorary, in the radio studio at the Temple building Tuesday Nov. 25.

Betty Jeanne Holcomb, president, and the other officers initiated four new members, Kenny Greenwood, Dean Neill, Ralph Sears, and Mike Vaggalis.

Four Conference Schools to Attend

Delegates from four of the seven Big Six schools will attend the student meeting sponsored by the University Student Council for discussion of racial discrimination in conference athletics.

The first session will open in Lincoln at 9:30 a. m. Saturday. Council President Harold Mozer indicated the discussions will be principally concerned with how far the northern student bodies wish to go in demanding elimination of discriminating conference regulations.

Resolutions have been passed by student bodies at Iowa State College, the University of Missouri and the University of Nebraska, asking that Negro students be permitted more participation in conference athletics.

Missouri Backs Council.

In lieu of a delegation the Missouri Student Government association sent its resolution to be used as a vote at the Lincoln meeting. The Missouri resolution advocated that any student in good standing should be allowed to participate in athletic events held at Missouri.

Robert E. Byers, president of the Missouri association, stated in a letter to the council. "Due to the short notice of this meeting, a delegate could do no more than present this resolution."

Acceptance of the council invitation has not been received from the University of Kansas. Acknowledgement of the invitation was sent the council by Tom Yoe, director of public relations at Kansas.

Oklahoma Silent.

"Two wires were sent the University of Oklahoma," Mozer said. "But no response has been forthcoming." It is assumed that Oklahoma will not attend.

The issue of racial discrimination was labeled "unfair" last Thursday by Walter Kraft, athletic council chairman at Oklahoma, according to press dispatches from Norman.

Kraft said, "This is unfair, because no racial discrimination rule exists in the Big Six. Missouri and Oklahoma are the only schools that do not allow Negroes to play on their athletic teams, and that is something that is out of the hands of both schools' officials—since the states enforce segregation laws."

Bridge Meet Set by Union

Duplicate bridge tournaments to be held Dec. 6 and 13 in the Union will begin the series to choose contestants for the national intercollegiate and Big Six bridge tournaments.

Tournaments are open to both boys and girls and entrants should sign up by teams in the union office. Eight finalists at Nebraska will participate in the play-by-mail series to begin in February to determine finalists for the intercollegiate tournament. The colleges of the country have been divided into zones according to location, Nebraska participating in the Western zone.

Two colleges from each zone will be represented by their sixteen finalists at the national play-offs in Chicago in April. Winning teams from Nebraska will be given a trip to Chicago for the playoffs.

Tournament director is Dale Ball. Prizes will be awarded by the Union, director Duane Lake stated.
