

CRIB NOTES

by Bj Holcomb

NOTES . . . about vacation bring fond memories to Cribbers even on the first day back from the wonderful, long, restful weekend . . . aside from the usual too much to eat, there was too much to do in one coed's calendar. Seems she had to drive all day Wednesday in order to have Thanksgiving home on time, then drive all Friday in order to make Saturday's game, then study all day Sunday in order to make Monday's assignments . . . did we say vacation? The long weekend brought heavy hearts to at least three upperclassmen who wrecked their cars, and with the Military Ball and other functions coming up plus cold weather, they are certainly regretting the bad timing . . . which brings to mind the special note to all UN males to check up on formal attire. The big event of the year is not more than three days away . . . then only a short week from this Friday is the Mortar Board Ball, the fun ball of all where girls take the fellows for an evening's treat . . . some comment has come from feminine quarters at this early date about the crazy corsages in the making . . . one art major insists she will get back at her steady's habit of crooked ties by tying ties all over the poor boy and pinning one in his hair . . . this will be the major problem since the fellow has a crew cut!

FORMAL NOTE . . . for the men in the "know" of college fashion says the best buy of the season is Harvey Brothers Doublelite formal shirt. Smartly cut for real comfort and style, this beautiful shirt is made from finest materials for durable year-long wear. Removable studs make it 2-shirts-in-1! Save worry, save fuss and bother and save money, purchase your formal shirt at the headquarters for the best dressed men on campus, Harvey Brothers.

SONG OF THE SENIOR:

I wish I was a little rock
A sittin' on a hill
A doin' nuthin' all day long
But just a sittin' still
I wouldn't eat, I wouldn't sleep
I wouldn't even wash
I'd just sit there all day long
And rest myself, b'gosh!

WELL SAID: "When a politician makes his bed, he should lie in it. Unfortunately, he seems more inclined to make up his bunk and lie out of it."

Letterip

Dear Editor:

I wish to make a comment on the attitude of some of the students attending this university. I just came from a Poli. Sci. class, and for the benefit of the ones who were not there, I will tell what happened. There was some joker sitting in the middle of the room that insisted on whistling, just to annoy the instructor; apparently he thought that it was smart. It seems to me that it was a little childish to say the least. Of course I realize that the class is predominantly freshman who have apparently come from some place where they did not teach them manners. A person would think that, even though they lack manners, they would wiseup to the fact that a classroom is not a very good place to play marbles.

It was not this incident alone that was particularly ill-mannered but the attitude of the class 10 to 15 minutes before the bell is scheduled to ring. You would think that a major crime had been committed if the instructor even looked like he intended to talk a second longer after the bell had rung. Apparently "Pop" is paying for their education and they are out to rook the old man but good. If they don't like the class

Gould to Succeed Brokaw as Acting Extension Director

Harry G. Gould has been named acting director of the Agricultural Extension Service at the University of Nebraska, it was announced late last week.

Mr. Gould has been assistant director of the service since 1936. He will succeed W. H. Bokaw, who will retire Jan. 1, 1948, after serving nearly thirty years as head of the extension department.

A native of Harlan county, Mr. Gould was engaged in farming and general merchandising until receiving his degree at the university in 1918. Since that time he has served in the extension department.

The new director has done graduate work at the University of Wisconsin and is a member of Alpha Zeta, Gamma Sigma Delta, and Epsilon Sigma Phi, honorary agriculture fraternities.

why don't they keep their mouths shut and let the rest of the class sleep in peace.

I don't think that a university should be a social institution predominantly but a place to obtain an education. Instead of always criticizing the instructors why don't the students look on their own side of the fence.

An Irritated Observer.

Straight Stuff

By Jim Gwynn.
Unusual Sights.

Upperclassmen being led to Monday morning classes by freshmen who used their vacation to study.

Professors striving vainly to keep the class interested in the day's assignment he forgot to give.

Dorm girls comparing newly acquired pins and exchanging their stories of success to the less fortunate.

Past Parties.

Thanksgiving vacation held such an abundance of parties that there isn't enough room to mention them all. Ginny Hines threw an informal party on the holiday with a huge crowd attending. It must be nice to have the family leave once in a while. Also seen partying Friday night out East Hills way was Shirley King and Joanie Bauer who drew their men all the way from Denver U. An odd twist on another party concerns Wendy Corkin and her steady Jim Worcester. Jim was so broke upon arriving in Omaha that he had to borrow five dollars from a fraternity brother to take Wendy to the Phi Rho party.

Steadies—Pinnings.

Margie Alexis has evidently found the man of her life as she and John Carson are now going steady. Being the magician that he is maybe John tricked her into it. Another couple on the steady list are Liz Schneider and Tom McGeahin. At least Tom thought the deal was on since he last called her. Trying something new are Paula Woody and Bill Keifer. They were pinned over the weekend. The time—Saturday night.

Alpha Phi-Fiji Feud.

Having excess energy with no apparent way of using it—the Fiji pledge class declared war on the Alpha Phis last week. So far Fiji pledges have been found tied up in the Alpha Phi closets and the Alpha Phis have had the extreme pleasure of washing dishes for the Phi Gams.

Extension of Cornhusker Pix Deadline Announced

An extension for individual Cornhusker pictures has been announced by Nadine Anderson, managing editor of the yearbook. The new deadline is Dec. 20.

Miss Anderson said that increased applications for appointments toward the end of November and the inability of the studio to take so many pictures caused the extension. Pictures were to have been taken by Dec. 1.

Price for one picture is $2.50, and for two it is $3.00. The appointments are to be made in the Cornhusker office in the basement of the Union. The pictures will be taken by the Warner-Medlin studios in the Federal Securities building at 13th and N.

city of Colorado; and Harold Mozer and Dake Novotny, University of Nebraska.

Following the meeting of Saturday morning in the Student Union, the delegates were the guests of the university at the Nebraska-Oregon State football game and then of Lincoln Urban League for dinner and evening meeting.

The president of the University of Oklahoma student council notified Harold Mozer that they had not had an opportunity to elect a delegate. The conference sent a telegram to the Oklahoma student body expressing deep regret that they had "not had an opportunity to elect a delegate" and expressed the desire that Oklahoma would give consideration to the problem.
