

Lawyers Wind Up Moot Court Prelims; Prep for '48 Docket

At 3 o'clock on Thursday, Dec. 18, the gavel fell at the Supreme Court of Allen announcing the termination of the annual fall Moot Court session. The court had observed its longest session, rendering 31 decisions during the 15-day period. Twenty-six freshmen were announced by the court as winners in the opening practice round of the competition. They will be automatically entered in the actual Allen competition which will commence with the spring session of the Supreme Court. In the junior and senior class competitions the court has narrowed the field to six and two teams, respectively.

Highlight of the coming spring session will be the final case in the Senior competition in which Attorneys Nelson and Schwartz will argue against Attorneys

Three freshman law students plead cases in recently-completed fall Moot Court competition before a judicial panel comprised of a trio of Lincoln lawyers.

Guenzel and Wilson before the Nebraska State Supreme Court, who will declare one of the teams as winner of the coveted Allen competition for the year 1948.

In the Junior competition six teams remain of the original 50. They will compete again this spring and the winners will enter the Senior competition next year. The six teams, from which will come the ultimate winner for the year of 1949, are: Moore and Harper, O'Leary and Jeffrey, Kratz and Sheaff, Rundle and Stong, Binning and Haggart, and Jorgenson and Curry.

Fresh Winners.

The following were the winners in the freshman competition: Howell and Peters, Bramson and White, Shaneyfelt and Cassel, Coyne and Wilson, Slothower and Hiber, Howard and Houston, Barton and Lyle, Anthony and Pinnely, Ellis and Luedke, Damon and Berkheimer, Chotena and Nielsen, Windstrom and Coffee, Beachly and Cypreansen, Hunter and Bock, Erickson and Johnson, Zimmerman and Zimmerman, Toy and Powell, Kratz and Calkins, Meyer and Heinke, Boyd and Zimmerman, Hathaway and Rice, Simmons and Abbott, Irlie and Holquist, Kokjer and Castner, McAneny and Starrett, and Schwartz and Putman.

The Allen Competition was inaugurated through the efforts of Mr. Thomas Stinson Allen, Dean F. K. Beutel and the law faculty in the spring of 1945. At that time Mr. Allen, who was the first graduate of the Nebraska Law School, gave a bequest to the Law College intending that it be used in some way to encourage the student in practice work. With this bequest the law faculty originated the Allen Competition, a contest between law students in brief writing and arguing cases.

A Board of Student Advisors submits a set of actual facts on the records of the case which the student argues before a court made up of practicing attorneys, advanced law students, or faculty members, depending upon the status of the competition. The winners eliminate the losers and go on to further arguments. In the last year the two winners present their argument before three judges of the State Supreme Court, and the winners' names are inscribed on a permanent bronze plaque. There are now two inscriptions on the plaque which hangs on the first floor hall. In 1946 the winners were Blaine Sloan and Jack Stewart. Last year the winner was Budd Bornhoft.

The New Look

The resignation of A. J. Lewandowski as university athletic director heralds what may be the beginning of a new era in Cornhusker sports.

Meeting three times over the holidays, Nebraska's athletic board announced that Lew had resigned as director in order to devote his full attentions to the post of business manager. To replace able Mr. Lewandowski, the board announced that a "czar," as yet unnamed, will have control of the entire picture at Nebraska and that this director's word will be final on the composition of the coaching staff.

Some of the boys in the back rooms of Omaha and Lincoln will nod wisely at this move and comment that it is a neat piece of buck-passing. However, this "buck-passing" should unify the athletic set-up and make one man directly responsible for all phases of competition. Conceivably, this czar, if his word is actually final, can clear up a muddled situation and silence the baseless criticisms of Bernie Masterson.

Because of the board's silence after the original announcement, rumor has spread that Biff Jones or Dana Bible will return to the Cornhuskers as the new director. It is to be hoped that the university athletic board makes some definite announcement as to their plans within the next few days before the rumors get too deep.

At any rate, the athletic board is to be congratulated on taking a positive step which should go a long way toward putting Nebraska back in the win column in all sports.
