Our perennial plague of inadequate student government can be laid to three causes: Disinterest of students, an incoherently un-sound governing set-up, and un-inspired student officers. Together these create the University's frustrating "political situation."

Any one cause is enough to reduce attempts at student government to a parlor game. Yet, the three are inseparable.

Ten thousand students cannot display interest in their council if it has not real authority. The faculty dare release no major powers to a council without representative support and vigorous student backing. Without major decisions to make, the most able student officer cannot evolve policies worthy of his talents. Desire for work and responsibility will find other primary outlets than a powerless council post.

THE COUNCIL operates on an activities fund dole, like the ward of a relief agency. A budget estimate is made each fall but the council runs in the red until the year's end. Currently no council member has the vaguest idea how much money could be requested successfully.

Few budget estimates are turned down. But the necessity of making a final budget estimate in the fall effectively prevents the start of any new project requiring money.

Clerical help, student or otherwise, under council supervision is unavailable. Administrative processes are by necessity slow and

Baptist

Supper will be served at 5:30 and the devotional will be held at 6:30. The guest speaker will be Rev. Kendal S. North, pastor of the First Baptist church at Fairbury, Nebraska. He is a former Army chaplain and is a trustee of the Nebraska Baptist Student Council.

Christian

The Earners and Learners of the First Christian church will have Ben Kuroki as their speaker Sunday, January 11 at 4:45. He will discuss racial problems. Students from Doane College will be guests of the group.

Presbyterian

Friday, January 9th, the records which were given to the Presby House for Christmas will be played. The "concert" will incomplete. The council, if worth having at all, must operate efficiently. At least the officers should be paid and performance of specific duties required.

Membership should demand more than weekly attendance at a Union tea party. The last meeting was under 15 minutes in length. None at all took place the week of the "Big Six racial conference."

THE FACTION is symbolic of campus attitude. Its operation is neither good nor bad. Its presence or absence, however, has dominated the void of campus politics in recent years. Parties organized since the "early '40s have had one of two purposes: (1) to front for the faction, or (2) to break the faction.

Concern of "reform" parties with keeping the faction "out" prevented their political development. Such an attitude gives an office no importance beyond its name. All elective posts are fast approaching the status of the class presidencies, one point honoraries for ivy gardeners.

Until an idea with two sides catches student interest, the number of winning votes cast at an election will, as at the last one, strangely equal the number of eligible fraternity men on the campus.

THE PERSIANS are (1) an unauthorized group of five members, and (2) getting the royal run-around.

There are other and bigger groups on campus with a political bent and the laddies know it!

Dorm Residents

Students who intend to room in building "A" of the Dormitory group should have their $10 security deposit paid before Saturday, Jan. 10. They are to be paid in temporary classroom building "C," according to Burt Brown.
