

New Library Auditorium Features Comfort, Style

An air-conditioned, modernistically furnished auditorium has been completed in Love Memorial Library, according to Richard A. Farley, assistant director. Restricted to use by university groups, the auditorium is designed for large meetings or programs featuring lectures, motion pictures and musical presentations.

Seating Capacity 350

With a seating capacity of approximately 350, the auditorium is paneled in natural walnut wood with floors formed of inlaid linoleum tile in shades of beige, rose and maroon. The theater-type seats are of air-foam cushion construction, upholstered in beige and aqua-colored material.

The turquoise velvet stage curtains are contrasted by the gold-colored cyclorama hung at the sides and back of the stage to create a sense of perspective to the audience's view. The curtains are mechanically operated from the projection booth at the rear of the auditorium.

Dressing rooms at the rear of the stage open onto what will one day be a student lounge, now used for registration purposes. Both incandescent and fluorescent house lights have been installed. Venetian blinds and black-out curtains for movies are hung at the windows.

Films Will Be Shown

A series of documentary films such as The March of Time is soon to be shown without charge to students, and the University Bureau of Audio-Visual Aids will furnish films. A Bell-Howell 16 millimeter projector is installed. A series of non-hour musicals featuring guest talent and recorded music, has been planned.

Only groups affiliated with the university may use the auditorium, where visiting professor Karl Friedrich of Harvard recently gave three Montgomery lectures on the democratization of Germany. Application blanks may be obtained from Farley at room 207 Love Library.

Applicants should indicate lighting, equipment and stage furniture needs, as well as listing the hour, person in charge, and nature of meeting.

LECTURES, MOVIES, MUSICALS may now be shown in this newly-completed auditorium in Love Memorial Library. Decorated in a color scheme of turquoise, beige and maroon, the auditorium has been finished with latest construction improvements. Eye-appealing features include natural walnut paneling, contrasting curtains of turquoise and gold colors, and inlaid linoleum tile. Open to use by university groups only, the auditorium will seat 350 persons, and was the scene recently of three Montgomery lectures by Professor Karl Friedrich of Harvard.

mulated a novel dating system for the affair. The boys will draw numbers as to first and second choice and it is guaranteed that excitement will run high littery night.

The bad luck of Friday the thirteenth will be emphasized by the YWCA and YMCA at their joint hard times party at the Temple. Seated beneath a ladder will be Curtis Elliot as he auctions off box lunches.

No, not a hen party, but a Poultry Club party will be held at the student activities building at Ag Friday. Chairman Richard Steffen has asked us to stress that come fair weather or "fowl" the party will take place.

The Intervarsity Christian Fellowship will hold their Valentine party in parlors A and B of the Union Saturday night. Chairman Lois Cook has planned games and group singing for the event.

Non-Valentine Events

The Phi Deltis will ignore St. Valentine at their Klondike party Friday. The old silo will be decorated saloon style and fellas and girls will dress accordingly. Chairman Jack Adams must have started a gold rush rumor the way out-of-town girls are arriving for the event.

Topping the roster will be the Interfraternity Ball at the Coliseum. Warren Dunnett will play and Prexy Rod Franklin promises a fine evening for all you party planners.

Students Find Outlet for Secret Interests in Union Hobby Shop

The newest project of the ever-busy Student Union Board is the conversion of Room 12 into a diverting, highly practical Craft Shop. Room 12, until recently was only unused space in the basement of the Union, but with the help of the Hobby Interest Committee, working for the Union, it was officially opened for instruction and practice in various crafts Tuesday, February 10.

First Stages

According to Duane Lake, director of the Union, "the shop, only in its beginning stage, will grow as the demand warrants." The shop will offer to interested students such diversion as leather work, silk screening, wood carving, block printing, engraving, finger painting, metal foil work, monotyping, textile painting, sketching, and wood burning.

Instruction in these various crafts will be available from 1 to 5 p.m. on Tuesday and Wednesdays, and from 7 to 9:30 p.m. Wednesday evening. The Craft Shop, however, will be open every afternoon to students who wish to practice these skills. Although materials such as leather, wood and metal will be sold at cost price, the tools will be furnished free of charge.

Planners

The shop, which has been planned and created by the hobby interest committee, will be supervised by the same committee. The members of this group who have put their time and effort into the organization of the Craft Shop are: Chairman Marge Cherny, Kirk Lewis, Mary Jean Mulvaney, Bill Poe, Gordon Otte and Paul Vlan.

One of the many worthwhile and entertaining projects of the union, the Craft Shop promises to not only offer diversion for already interested students, but it will also open up unlimited fields of opportunity to those who desire to learn a new craft or hobby, or simply wish to find a new, worthwhile interest.

GI Students Work There; Not Inmates

Eighteen students at the University report to the state reformatory for men after they have finished their day's studies.

But don't get them wrong. They just work there.

They are the eighteen GI students who attend university classes by day and instruct the reformatory school classes and patrol its stone walls by night.

Faculty

Roger Hansen, who is a junior in Teachers college, is director of vocational and trade training at the reformatory. His "faculty" members, also GI's enrolled in the university, teach practical courses like bricklaying, carpentry, wood turning and welding at the reformatory's school. Recently the welding instructor resigned, and Hansen is looking for a replacement.

Charles Machovic, a graduate student, has charge of the evening correspondence school, which supervises the 150 University of Nebraska extension courses which reformatory inmates study.

Directors

Among the other director of the reformatory's education program are Willard Nelson, in graduate college, who is director of the compulsory day school; Waldo Dahlstedt, also in graduate college, who directs instruction in the elementary grades; Robert Hall, senior, who is director of physical education.

Purpose of the educational program, like that of the Navy ("learn a trade") is to prepare young men to take a job and find a useful place in society.

McBride, Anderson Fight For UN Coaching Job

Reports that Gregg McBride has accepted the post of Director of Athletics at the University of Nebraska were denied today in a confidential telephone conversation with a "good friend" of a man "very much trusted" by those in "high places."

Whether or not Norrie Anderson will accept the post, as is expected, remains problematical.

Party Plans

By PAT NORDIN

Valentines and sweethearts are necessarily the themes of the social events of this week-end. By Saturday night the campus will have gone red and white with hearts all over.

Students will rush into the Valentine season this afternoon when they attend the Student Foundation Valentine Tea Dance in the union ballroom. Everyone will want to be on hand to learn the identity of this year's beauty queens.

Tonight the Tri Deltis will dance to Gene Moyer at the Cornhusker at their annual formal. Party goers are expected to get a bang out of the gay red and white balloons hung from the ceiling since party favors will be hidden inside.

More party sweethearts will be chosen at the Amikitas ball on Ag campus Friday. Dancing under holiday streamers will be chairman Votas Fidel and home town beau Calvin Darlky.

Valentine Spirit Runs High

The height of the Valentine spirit will be reached Friday by the Betas at their Honeymoon Party. Couples will make the annual march beneath the canopy to the marriage ceremony and receive the keys to the Honeymoon Hotel. A Latin-American theme will be used from the "Chey When" Lounge to the heathen altar in the "Aztec Room." Highlight of the evening will be the floor show ala Latin America featuring rhythm band and legitimate tango and rhumba dancers. Social Chairman Bill Boydston especially enjoys decorating the Lip Room which includes autographed lip prints of a good share of the girls on the N. U. campus.

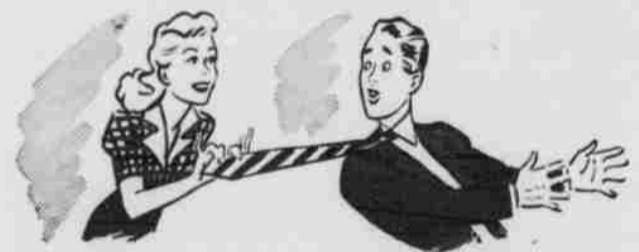

The Paladians Valentine dance is another on the slate of Friday night parties. The club has for-
