Make Them Feel at Home

The University of Nebraska is serving as an unofficial host this week, and is glad of the chance to handle the duties of greeting and entertaining the guests.

And the guests are the most important part of the occasion. They are potential university students.

For the rest of the week the 38th annual high school basketball tournament will be under way at the coliseum. The attention of patrons and students of every high school in the state will be directed toward Lincoln and the Coliseum in particular as 32 basketball teams struggle for championships in four classes.

Many students have followed their teams to the tournament, other students and players who failed to win trips to the tourney as official entries are on hand for the weekend to observe the athletic activity.

As a result, the campus, is being visited by what is probably the largest delegation of high school students of the year.

Potsy Clark, new Husker football coach, and athletic director, set the tempo for the week by instructing all N men to wear their N sweaters at the tournament games and help make the visiting high schoolers feel at home.

In the same vein, the Student Foundation has planned an afternoon of entertainment for the high school players and followers this afternoon in the Student Union.

All of which goes to show that the school is aware of its future needs. These high school students and athletes will be the college students of the next several years. It is fitting that they be familiar with their state university and be entertained while here so that they will decide to take their future educational training in the state.

Not only for the future of Cornhusker athletics, a vital reason for the current hospitality, but also for the purpose of making high school students aware of the benefits and outstanding academic features of the university is such an effort being made.

Just as the hopes for success on the football field and basketball court in future seasons hinge on the number of proficient Nebraska high school athletes the school receives, so does the general spirit and enthusiasm of the school as a whole depend on the entrance of students who are already fired with at least a touch of the Cornhusker spirit.

WEATHER

Lincoln is promised no relief from the cold. Thursday's high is predicted near seven above, with occasional light snow.

THE 'COLD WAR'

Jan Masaryk, Foreign Minister of Czechoslovakia, plunged to his death from the window of his second story office Wednesday. He was 61.

Announcement of his death to foreign correspondents in Prague was delayed several hours by Communist dictator Klement Gottwald's government. The body was found at daylight.

Foreign comment took the view that he was a victim of the cold war. Some statements from western European cities classed him as a "martyr." Others termed the death "plain murder."

Sixteen days ago the Communists took over the Czech government.

Plans to train personnel to administer selective service in the event of Congressional action along such lines, was announced in San Francisco Wednesday.

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, national director of the Office of Selective Service Records, said the move would provide "reasonable preparedness" in case of future need.

The OSSR is a civilian agency with no power to draft. Hershey has been touring the country to set up a program similar to that of the 1935-40 period.

STASSEN

Harold Stassen termed his record in Tuesday's New Hampshire presidential primary, a "moral victory" Wednesday.

He won two of eight delegates to the GOP national convention. Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, who took all eight in 1944, won six.

Stassen opens a three day whirlwind tour of Nebraska Thursday. He is scheduled to arrive in Alliance by plane this afternoon. His tour, by chartered bus, through the state, includes stops in eight cities.

GRAIN

Grain prices on the Chicago market edged upward Wednesday amidst cries of anguish from the nations millers.

Wheat was up 2 cents a bushel, corn, 2 1/4 cents.

The millers objected to failure of the Production and Marketing administration to buy more than the flour equivalent of 700,000 bushels of wheat. It had requested the release of the equivalent of 900,000 bushels.

Future prices dropped and many mills took extensive losses.

Letterip

To the Editor:

We would like to have the following questions answered concerning NSA answered by any NSA representative:

- (1) Why did the head of the Wisconsin Student Union resign connections with NSA?
- (2) Why did Northwestern and Texas defeat NSA on their campuses?
- (3) What schools have affiliated NSA other than radical eastern schools?
- (4) Of these school which adopted NSA, what concrete benefits have been evidenced?
- (5) Why did our regional convention delegates resign?
- (6) Only ten cents a student per semester? That amounts to $2,000 a year.
- (7) Where does this money go?
- (8) How much do national and local officers receive for their services?
- (9) What is the political position or viewpoint of NSA? Since AYD (American Youth for Democracy) has a direct connection with communist party, we are curious if NSA might be connected with the same political organization.
- (10) Just exactly what is the NSA's "Culturale" program? What purpose would this serve?
- (11) What connection do United World Federalists have with NSA?
- (12) Why have NSA representatives been dodging questions, similar to the ones we are asking?

Mr. Dale Ball:

I should like to comment upon the analysis of Friday's Daily Nebraskan bridge hand.

In so far as the opening lead is the queen of diamonds the analysis is quite correct, but if the opening lead is the king of clubs, the analysis, I believe overlooks several important points.

A—First of all the squeeze suggested is non-existent. For the squeeze to exist, West must (1) have an entry to the dummy after trumps are run and (2) have given up another diamond. These cannot be accomplished because if two diamonds leads are ducked South would obviously overtake the second and return a diamond for a ruff, resulting in a two trick set.

B—Secondly the declarer has overlooked the fact that if the club king is ducked and a diamond led that South may overtake and return a heart, resulting in one club, one diamond, and two hearts for the defense. North need only wait for his club queen for the setting trump.

C—Thirdly all the possibilities of end plays etc. still exist if the club king is taken on the first lead and in addition several fine possibilities present themselves. A club lead toward the jack will certainly produce one more trick and if clubs break or if the ten is finessed will produce two additional club tricks. Nothing further is needed, three clubs, one diamond, and five spades.

If clubs do not break or are guessed wrong, the ace and a small diamond may then be played. If North wins this, he must lead from his hearts. If the established club is cashed, declarer pitches his losing diamond. If South overtakes the second diamond lead, West makes two diamonds, two clubs, and five spades. I see no way the declarer can make nine tricks even if he ducks the club king, the diamond queen (South failing to overtake for the heart lead) and wins the second diamond.

The important point is that if two methods of attack present themselves, it is wise if possible, to select the line of play which if it fails may still leave the possibility of winning three club tricks and stakes everything on North having only two diamonds.
