

Coslor Calls 'Playboy' Role Best of His Theater Career

By Frank Jacobs

When Rex Coslor states of a University Theater role that, "It's the best part I've ever had," audiences can be certain that he has had many previous dramatic experiences on which to base his statement.

He is referring, of course, to his characterization of Christy, main role in "Playboy of the Western World," opening tomorrow night in the Temple.

Coslor, a married arts and sciences senior from Sargent, is perhaps the most well-known and hardest working university actor. Award-winner of Best Contributor to University Theater in 1946 and Best Male Actor in 1947, he has appeared in nine major theater productions, the latest being as the cocky football star, Boze Hertzlinger, in "The Petrified Forest."

He has been used almost extensively in dialectical roles. From the humorous Greek, Apopolous, in "My Sister Eileen," to the interesting German, Fokker, in "Return to Surigao," his parts have consisted of many foreign variants. He portrays a youthful Irishman in the forthcoming play.

When asked the character of his role of Christy, in "Playboy of the Western World," Coslor stated, "Christy is a very inter-

Open Letter of Thanks:

About 200 high school students are going to remember the fun they had at the Student Foundation party during the basketball tournament when they make their choice of a university. Such a successful party would not have been possible had it not been for the co-operation and hard work of a great many people around the University, and for their fine assistance, the Student Foundation wishes to thank them.

To Duane Lake, Union Director, goes our deepest appreciation for his indulgence and co-operation. To his staff, especially Dorothy Brown, who tended music, and G. C. "Mac" McKeen, who's a grand guy, go special thanks.

To George "Potsy" Clark many thanks for one of those inspirational talks for which he's famous. And thanks to friend George Round, Director of Public Relations, for his advice and co-operation.

Our appreciation to the many N-Club men who gathered to impress the visiting athletes and "rush" University of Nebraska.

Thanks to all the students who started the dancing and added to the fun.

And to all the Student Foundation members, especially ex-member Bonnie Voss who engineered the event, thanks.

To The Daily Nebraskan staff, George Miller and Bob Duis, and to the Athletic Department's John Bentley and Al Lewandowski, thanks for the publicity needed for a truly successful party.

We are realizing more and more the importance of keeping outstanding students in our state university, and such events as this dance, give us an opportunity to "sell" the University of Nebraska.

Sincerely,
GENENE MITCHELL,
President,

Not An Election . . .

An election that is not an election is due today as students vote on acceptance or rejection of affiliation with the National Student Association (NSA).

It is an election in the sense that ballots are available, that the usual campus polling places will be in use, and that the usual election officials will supervise the polls. But it is not an election because the outcome of today's balloting will not decide definitely whether the University of Nebraska joins with the members of the NSA by ratifying the NSA constitution.

The results of today's election will be used by the student council as a guide to future action.

Boosters of the NSA have been in action since the beginning of the school year. But only recently, with the time for determining the university's status approaching, have students begun a thorough examination of the constitution and aims of the organization.

A number of valid objections have been raised. Chief among these is the worth of the organization on the local level, which in the final analysis should be the fundamental reason for Nebraska's acceptance or rejection of the organization.

Events of recent weeks have indicated that a hasty scanning of the constitution and aims of NSA results in a favorable reaction. But just as conclusively, the events of recent weeks have shown that when the constitution and aims are subjected to closer scrutiny, a less favorable reaction is usually the result, as witness the consensus of opinion of those attending the NSA discussion at the library auditorium.

Significant in the whirlwind of action which has swept across the campus in recent weeks on the NSA question are the resignations of two members (one a Nebraska student council member and the other a Mo-Kan-Neb regional officer) from the district organization for the reason that they had no wish to be personally connected with NSA.

Students with similar doubts as to any part of the NSA constitution or the workability of its proposals have a chance to register their opinion by a "no" vote today.
