The University of Hawaii is offering scholarships to one of two men who are now finishing their sophomore year in agriculture. Men should be interested in tropical agriculture, but there is nothing in the scholarships which requires them to stay in Hawaii.

The grants are worth $750 for each year, in addition to $150 to help defray travel expenses to Hawaii.

Anyone interested should see Dean Burr in Ag hall.

At the present time Mr. Noel Hanson of the Agronomy Department is in Hawaii.
