CAFETERIA PRICES . . .

A few loose ends in connection with The Daily Nebraskan's survey of Student Union operation remain to be incorporated into the information gleaned thus far.

Answers from schools in South Dakota, Montana, Minnesota and Nebraska indicate that cafeteria prices as established at the Campus Line compare favorably and in most instances are lower than cafeteria prices at other schools in the midwest.

A national survey covering the question of prices at school cafeterias shows that the University of Nebraska is within the lower third among colleges and universities having cafeterias. This national survey cannot be considered as a fair guide however, because excessive prices in eastern schools boost average prices to a point out of proportion to price scales at schools in their regions.

The average price of a main dish at the Campus Line is 24.3 cents, as compared to 28.7, 24.9 and 24.1 at neighboring schools. Ten main dishes common to all cafeteria menus were used in figuring this comparison.

Further information on the price range comparison question has yet to arrive, and we will publish these findings for you as soon as they are received.

HONOR WAR DEAD . . .

Early response to the plea for suggestions of names for the men's dormitories show that naming the buildings after university students who died in World War II is a popular plan.

One student suggests that the dorms be named after university war dead according to the order in which university students died; naming Dorm A after the first student to be killed, Dorm B after the second student to die, and so forth.

Another student informs us that a similar plan was used at Penn State last year to take care of naming 13 temporary dormitories. The buildings were dedicated to both students and alumni of the school who had died in World War II.

Keep thinking about this problem. The Daily Nebraskan will make known all new ideas which it receives.

Proposed Ag Building To House Youth Groups

. . . Says Dean Burr

The proposed Youth Memorial Building on Ag campus will provide facilities for housing many state-wide organizations who come to the University campus during the year, according to a statement by Dean W. W. Burr of the College of Agriculture.

"We have no suitable place to take care of these groups now," Dean Burr says. "We have crowded them into whatever space could be made available. Usually these spaces were not equipped with adequate sanitary facilities. We have even moved machinery out of buildings to make room for these groups."

Varied Use Illustrated.

As an indication of the varied use to which the building is put Dean Burr listed the youth and agricultural groups which have met in it.

The following have used or plan to use the memorial building: Cornhusker Boys' State and Girls' State, Rural Youth, Organized Agriculture, Smith-Hughes contests, short courses, various agricultural conferences and meetings, Feeders' Day, various state Home Economics organization meetings, Extension meetings, statem usic meetings, and many other types of agricultural and youth meetings.

Leadership Emphasized.

Dean Burr points out that leadership training meetings for 4-H Club activities alone will result in reaching from 18,000 to 20,000 youngsters in the state, as hundreds of these leaders take such courses at the College of Agriculture each year.

"This building will be truly a living memorial," Dean Burr concludes. "Surely such a structure, dedicated to the boys and girls of Nebraska, will do much to keep young people interested in the ways of democracy and the traditions of our form of government."

Election Rules

Official Interpretation of Article IV, Section IV of the By-Laws of the Judiciary Committee of the Student Council.

"No vote shall be solicited at the polls or in the building in which the election is being held during election day."

"No vote shall be solicited" shall mean no person eligible to vote for any candidate shall, in any way, by means of the spoken or written word or any other means, be influenced at the polls or while in the building where the election is being held, to cast his or her vote for any particular candidate.

"At the polls or in the building" shall mean any place in the building, at any of the entrances to the building, and within fifty feet of the building in which the election is being held.

"The Daily Nebraskan shall publish on the regular publication day prior to the election an impartial election edition containing publicity of all candidates and of all political parties."

"Impartial election edition" shall mean equal publicity for each candidate and each recognized political party without editorial and staff comment, with the same nature of information, identical style of type, pictures of the same size for all if used, and the like for each candidate and political party.

"No printed, mimeographed, typed or otherwise mechanically printed material nor any handbills in behalf of any candidate or party shall be permitted."

"Any candidate violating these rules either in person or thru his supporters shall thereby be declared ineligible by the Judiciary Committee upon the presentation of conclusive evidence."

This is interpreted to include the declaration of ineligibility of a party or candidate who is found guilty of attempting to disqualify in any malicious manner his or his party to opponents.

"The Student Council has created an Election Publicity Committee to approve and administer all election campaign publicity. This committee shall consist of four members the chairman being a member of the Student Council Elections Committee with the other three members being appointed from the Council."

The Election Publicity Committee shall have authority to:

- 1) specify each year the number of hand made posters to be used by each party and each candidate with no more than six posters per party and no more than four posters per candidate;
- 2) receive all posters from all candidates and parties, to be posted by the Council members only after the committee approval has been obtained.

The Election Publicity Committee shall be charged with keeping an accurate record of the posters for each candidate and party.

Any sort of organized campaigning through mechanical, vocal, and auditory means shall be prohibited.

UN Singers Do 'Requiem' At 5 Today

The University Singers will present Brahms' "Requiem" at 5 p.m. today at First Plymouth Congregational church for its annual Palm Sunday concert.

Dr. Arthur E. Westbroek will direct the 120 voice choir in their presentation of Brahms' famous choral work. Dora Lee Niedenthal, soprano, and Dale Ganz, baritone, will be the group soloists.

Preceding the "Requiem," Prof. Myron Roberts will play Bach's "Prelude in G Major," and Schumann's "Evening Song." Prof. Roberts will accompany the Singers on the organ.

Both Miss Niedenthal and Ganz have been active in music activities at the University. Miss Niedenthal is a member of University Singers, Sigma Alpha Iota, music fraternity, and a music major. She is affiliated with Gamma Phi Beta, and is a member of the YWCA cabinet and Lutheran Students Association. She is currently the soloist at Grace Lutheran church.

Ganz has appeared in four "Messiah" productions, "The Creation," "Carmen," "Pagliacci," and was active in the former men's glee clubs, madrigals, and octette. He served 52 months, and was discharged as a captain. He is an assistant voice instructor, and affiliated with Delta Upsilon.

The "Requiem" was written by Brahms upon the death of his friend, Robert Schumann, and was added to at the time of death of the composer's mother. The text is taken from Luther's translations of the Bible.
