

IM Softball Tourney Starts Wednesday

Nebraska University's Intramural softball tournament will get under way with five games scheduled on the Coliseum diamonds and three on the Ag fields.

Nine leagues have been formed to take care of the 56 teams entered in the competition. There are 25 fraternity teams and 31 independent teams playing in those two divisions.

Eligibility

Any man in school is eligible except all members of varsity baseball squads and any men specifically barred by varsity coaches of other sports. A man may play with only one team during the league play and the playoffs.

Postponement of games will come from the Intramural office only. In case of doubt, teams should be on the designated diamond ready to play. Teams failing to show for games will lose by forfeit.

The championship fraternity team will receive a trophy, and ten official Intramural medals will be awarded to the winning independent team.

Three Scarlet Track Men Hit By Injuries

Coach Ed Weir's University of Nebraska track squad was hit hard last week when three Huskers turned up with injuries.

Monte Kinder, Cambridge high jumper and the squad's only senior, ripped a leg jumping at Lawrence, Kansas, last week. A dozen stitches were required to close the wound and Kinder probably will not see action until the Big Seven championships.

Jim Myers, York vaulter and spring football candidate, also spiked himself during the Kansas meet. But he is expected to be ready by next week.

Loyal Hurlbert, Nebraska's top quartermiler, was the latest injury. The Ord runner sprained an ankle in a classroom fall Monday and will be out of competition at least a week.

Hurlbert was being counted on for a leg in the Cornhusker 880-yard relay team in the Kansas and Drake Relays.

Lewandowski Seeks N-Men

Correct addresses for all University of Nebraska N-men are being sought by Business Manager A. J. Lewandowski.

More than a thousand letters have been sent to athletes who won N's during their college careers. Many of these, Lewandowski said, would likely be returned. He suggested that all N-men not receiving letters should send their present address to his office.

Tough Cut Rules Affect Collegians

Things are tough all over for class-cutting collegians, but for students at Emory and Henry College in Virginia things are really getting tough.

Some of the new rules governing attendance are:

"Any student with more than three unexcused absences shall not receive a grade above 'B' for the course."

"Any student with five unexcused absences will not be allowed to attend classes until he has appeared before the attendance committee."

Needles in the Haystack

By Louise McDill

During the past few weeks, plans have been shaping up to make the week end of May 1 go down in pleasant memories as a traditional University of Nebraska week end of tradition.

First May Day, with traditions galore—inter-fraternity sings-crowning of the honored May Queen and her attendants, and most exciting, the masking of new Mortar Boards and tapping of the new Innocents. Then Engineer's Week and open house which many Ag students will also be participating in and the rest of us will find interesting what the boys in "Engine college" do.

Ag college has their own special celebration for the memory book this year. The Farmers Fair, starting on Friday and lasting through Saturday, is back this year after four years of war hibernation. The Fair board is literally "starting from scratch" this year since none of them have ever seen a Fair before. But with movies and advice that oldsters in the Fair tradition have offered, all Ag college is picking up the spirit and is sure to come out with a week end up to Aggie tradition.

A convocation was held several weeks ago to acquaint students with the Fair traditions. Various committees have been functioning for many months. Early in April postholes were dug for the Rodeo arena to be erected south of the Ag Union.

Next Tuesday the next in the sequence of events before the Fair will take place. The Goddess of Agriculture will be elected at an all Ag campus vote to be taken in the Ag Union.

The Fair will have many other features that will be worthy of the memory book. I'll have more about it next week.

Excused absences may not receive above the grade of 'D' for the course."
