(Continued from Page 1.) active and interested. When it has come to new ideas, he has been interested in progress and what the student needs and wants. He most truly represents the student body, and is unafraid to express his views."

Marge Anthony, old member: "Dale Ball is the most deserving. He works harder, is the most conscientious—he's the man."

Rex Hoffmeister, new member: "No comment. I do not know candidates."

Marge Reynolds, old member: "Dale Ball."

Lloyd Wirth, new member: "No comment will be fine for me."

Harold Mozer, old member: "On the basis of work for the Council, I believe Dale Ball, Dick Schleusner, Bill Schenk, and Jack Selzer should be considered. The first two worked on the Campus Improvement committee, and the last two Election and Constitution committee. They have all worked in different fields, and none has been particularly administrative."

Bill Palmer, old member: "I do not know who will be up, and I have not made up my mind. I haven't been thinking about it."

Bob Wenke, old member: "Look at the results Thursday to see how I voted."

Betty Aasen, holdover member: "Dale Ball!"

Owen Scott, old council member: "Dale Ball has shown more interest and put forth more effort than any other member. He is outstanding. Dale Ball is the man for the job."

John Osler, old council member: "I will give my opinion at council meeting tomorrow and then it may be publicized."

Harvey Davis, new member: "Any of the holdover members are qualified. Jack Selzer and Bill Schenk are particularly good men. The Presidency is no more important than the chairman of the Judiciary committee. The recent election proved that all council positions are important."

Dick Johnson, new member: "No comment."

Don Cockrane, new member: "I know the qualifications. A number would do well as president. I would hesitate to make a choice at this time. Any of the four men would do well."

Fritz Simpson, new member: "I want to think it over."

Bill Koehn, new member: "Bill Schenk has showed more enthusiasm than any other member. He's been there every time."

Bob Wallace, new member: "To state an opinion regarding the sanctioning of a candidate for an office in our Council would be contrary to my proposed policy. I am in my second post-war semester, and an opinion could be given only on a basis of social contact, and not on a basis of my familiarity with the candidates' achievements or worthiness."

Bev Sievers, new member: "It's a good question. I am not really acquainted with the work of the candidates but I have heard the best reports about Dale Ball. Still, I am not certain of my choice."

Phyllis Cadwallader, new member: "No comment."

Rod Franklin, new member: "Due to the fact that I have

Gooding Talks To Bizad Frat

Dr Gooding of the Agricultural College spoke before the members of Delta Sigma Pi, professional bizad fraternity, at their regular bi-monthly dinner, Monday night. The evening's program opened pledge week for the fraternity.

He iterated the farm condition of today, pointing out that they are better at the present than at any time during the last three-quarters of the century. The primary purpose of the speech was to impress these present of the close connection between the business man and the farmer. Also he sought to point out the opportunities which rural or county seat life offers the business man.

not been in a position to observe the candidates' work on the Council, which should be the basis for election, I have no opinion."

Joan Farrar, holdover: "I think that all are equally qualified. It depends on who would be the best leader. The Daily Nebraskan isn't honestly going to publish this, is it? Isn't that a little unusual?"

Pat Larsen, new member: "A girl could easily be elected. Therefore I would support Barbara Spear or Joan Farrar."

Ned Raun, old member: "I'm going to be there, and I'm going to vote, because I feel that there is only one person qualified and deserving."

Ruth Peters, old member: "Dale Ball and Dick Schleusner."

Whether the Council will vote as the poll indicates, remains to be seen.

Aukes, Boilsen Chairmen Elect Of Y Co-Weds

Co-Weds, a social group for university couples sponsored by the YMCA, elected officers for the coming year Tuesday April 20.

Those elected include: Chairmen, Mr. and Mrs. Lew Aukes; Vice Chairmen, Mr. and Mrs. Axel Boilsen; Secretary and Treasurer, Mr. and Mrs. Junius Leonhirth.

Preceding the election of officers, the couples' club held their annual banquet. Gordon Lippitt, executive secretary of the YM, acted as toastmaster. Six graduating seniors and their wives were honored as charter members. These were: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Foster, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Tomek, Mr. and Mrs. Hank Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Orman Mills, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Anderson, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fulton.

The club meets twice a month for a social and fellowship period. Plans are now being made for weekly picnics during summer school. All University couples are eligible for membership in the organization.

World Needs More Science Says Gustavson

Means to a lasting peace was Chancellor R. G. Gustavson's topic Monday evening as he addressed the Nebraska Ministers' convocation at the First Presbyterian church.

"Frequently the feeling is expressed that war is caused by too much physical science," Dr. Gustavson said. "The answer, however, is not less but more science, and along with it a realization of the tremendous responsibility we have to share with others."

Lasting peace is possible but to get it we must have more help from religious and social leaders than we have had in the past, he said.

Physical science, Dr. Gustavson said, is providing the path to peace by increasing the supply of the things men want but it remains for social scientists—including religious leaders—to show us how to share the path. It is time, he said, for the social leaders to catch up.

There will be a meeting of the NAACP tonight in the Temple YMCA lounge at 7 p.m. Those interested are invited to attend.
