

Ag Cafeteria Wins Nat'l Award In Mag Food Service Contest

The Ag college cafeteria recently won an award of merit in the second annual food service contest conducted by Institutions magazine.

The awards, presented to 37 public feeding establishments, were given at the meeting of the National Restaurant association, held in Cleveland, Ohio, in April. Winners were selected from 121 entries and were chosen on the basis of efficiency of equipment, sanitation, saving in work hours, serving facilities, speed in preparation of food and ingenuity in meeting special problems.

Supervise Cafeteria.

Miss Florence Smith, Ag college food service director, and Miss Marie Harris, food service manager, planned and supervised the installation of the cafeteria equipment. Both are instructors in Foods and Nutrition courses. The cafeteria which is located in the Foods and Nutrition building, opened September 8, 1947. It was formerly in the Home Economics building.

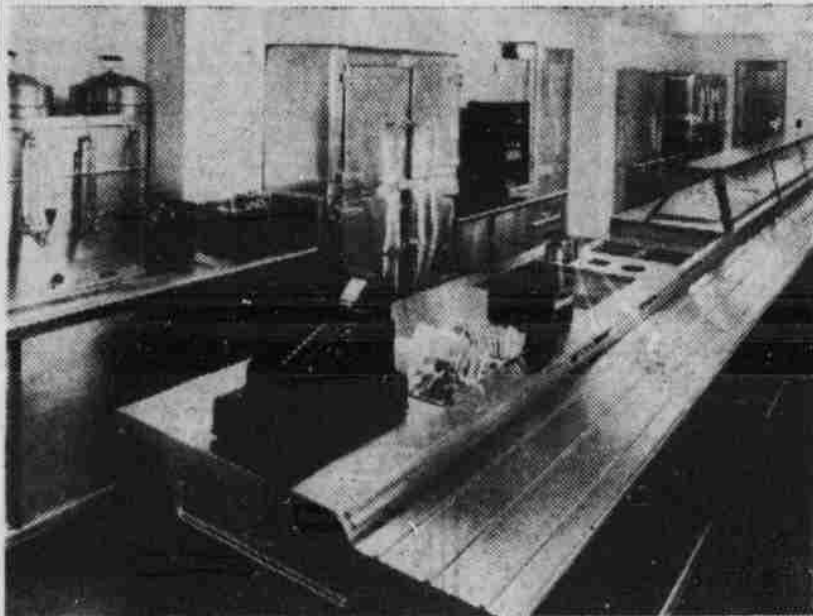

An average of 400 to 550 meals are served daily. The cafeteria has seating room for 116 persons. Besides the cafeteria, there is also dining room space for 175 which is used for banquets and special occasions. A smaller dining room which seats 24 is available to smaller groups. The cafeteria serves three meals a day, Monday through Saturday.

Miss Smith and Miss Harris are the general directors. Cafeteria assistants are Mrs. Paul Bachberg and Miss Myrtle Johnson. Both are graduates in institution administration from the University of Nebraska. The cafeteria also employs regular full time and part time workers and some students.

Laboratory for Students.

Students who are studying quantity cookery use the cafeteria kitchen as a laboratory. Girls trained in institution administration find employment as food service managers in tea rooms, hotels, college residence halls, student unions, and hospitals, and may have charge of personnel in food service organizations, or serve as consultants in kitchen and dining room arrangements and in equipment manufacture.

The Ag campus cafeteria is designed for efficient service to stu-
