

Morton Steinhart Elected Head Of UN Alumni Association

Morton Steinhart, Nebraska City, is the new president of the University of Nebraska Alumni association.

He succeeds Clyde Dempster of Beatrice. Mrs. Robert G. Simons, Lincoln, is the new vice president. John E. Curtiss, Lincoln, was elected as member-at-large of the executive committee for a three year term.

In a report to the association's board of directors meeting, Secretary Fritz Daly said paid membership in the association now stands at about 8,600, highest in history. He said Nebraska's paid alumni membership now ranks percentage wise in the upper fourth among universities and colleges in the nation.

Other highlights from Mr. Daly's report:

(1) Over 10,000 alumni attended Charter Day programs of alumni clubs over the nation—a new record.

(2) More new memberships were issued by the association in March, 1948, than in any other month in association history.

(3) Circulation of the association's monthly magazine, the Nebraska Alumnus, increased 20 percent in 1947-48 to set a new record.

(4) Two professional alumni associations were created within the framework of the university alumni association by the college of medicine and dentistry.

talk for special University radio releases. At noon he will talk to the Lincoln Rotary club on The United Nations and New Zealand.

To Talk Tuesday

The Teacher's College workshop seminar group will hear Dr. Harris at 2 p. m. Tuesday. He will discuss "Teaching About the United Nations." All seven groups in the workshop seminar will hear the talk since all are particularly interested in United Nations clinics.

Director of the workshop seminars is Dr. Frank Sorenson, assistant director of the department of educational service. He has also been directing, along with Dr. Royce Knapp, arrangements for the United Nations clinics and has been setting up the United Nations display in Love Memorial Library. The display was prepared at the UN headquarters at Lake Success, N. Y. and weighs two and one half tons packed. Details of the exhibit appear elsewhere in the Daily Nebraskan.

News in Brief

The Campfire Girls, Y Teens and Girl Scouts need assistance in their summer program. Any interested persons may contact Mildred Taylor at the university YWCA office in Ellen Smith Hall or may apply directly at the offices of the respective organizations.

The groups need help with games, handicraft, music or camp cookery for the day camping program in Lincoln. Work would be at a playground of YWCA centers.

Anyone interested in planning a picnic and vesper service for June 27 are to meet Friday evening, June 11 at the YWCA, 1432 N street. University YW secretary Mildred Taylor will meet with the committee.

Students may attend a coffee hour and organ interlude in the Union lounge at 5 p. m. Sunday. There will also be a free variety show in the Union ballroom. Feature will be "Les Miserables."

An Unusual Opportunity . . .

This session of the University of Nebraska summer school offers students, not only study in their chosen academic work but an unusual opportunity to get an international educational background about the United Nations.

On the front page of this morning's Daily Nebraskan are stories about the United Nations educational clinic being held on the campus Monday and Tuesday and about the United Nations Display on exhibit in Love Memorial Library until June 24.

The display and the clinic are to tell people what the United Nations is, what it tries to do, and how it operates.

To most of us the United Nations is a vague thing. We know it exists and we know the general idea behind it and a few of its aims and concrete accomplishments. But perhaps we do not know enough about its actual beginning, purpose, accomplishments and great importance to the world.

The display which has been made available to the University and the general public, attempts to explain these factors of the UN. It gives a description of the people of each of the member nations, tells how the world has failed to achieve peace over the centuries, how the framework of the UN was set up, and explains each division of the UN—how it was organized and how it operates.

Students have a unique opportunity this summer to learn about the United Nations through this educational program. Details of the summer experiment appeared in the June 8 issue of The Daily Nebraskan.

Everyone should take advantage of this opportunity while the UN display is right on the campus. It is not, however, an exhibit that may be glanced at in five minutes. In order to get the full story and a clear picture of the United Nations a person should devote some time to its study. It is an opportunity that will probably not be available to Nebraskans for some time as the display it not likely to be in this part of the country again.

Nebraskans should be proud of their University and Nebraska educators for bringing this program to Nebraska and making the school the center of a project that might develop into an international program of education!
