'U.N.'s' New College Orchestra Opens for Newman Club Dance

Slightly sentimental strains of scintillating harmony sounded across the campus Friday night when the "U.N.'s" new university dance band, played their premier engagement.

the Student Council athletic commission, announced that the field would be available for organized sports, and on days when no games are scheduled, anyone on campus may use it.

sorority house parties as well as all campus functions," said the band's founder, director and vocalist, Russ Krueger.

Krueger, an Ag college senior, says that the band's repertoire will include the kind of slow, danceable music college people prefer. The full band is a nine piece organization, but the use of a combo is also planned.

Although the personnel is drawn from the student body, it is not necessarily inexperienced. All of the men have had dance band experience, and some of the members have played with the U. S. Army band and the Lincoln Symphony.
